Bennett Insists On Share

By JOHN MIKA

Premier Bennett has declared virtual war on the federal government's intention to build and operate the Roberts Bank superport entirely through the National Harbors Board.

He said Tuesday night he will proclaim today the B.C. Harbors Board Act which the cabinet had pigeon-holed since its passage by the legislature a year ago.

The cabinet order proclaiming the act was expected to be signed later today by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes.

The government move came so suddenly that there was insufficient notice for obtaining royal assent this morning as Gen. Pearkes was tied up greeting Lord Louis Mountbatten.

The legislation would allow the cabinet to appoint a board of three to seven members with power to borrow up to $25 million for development, in conjunction with private enterprise, of port facilities in the lower mainland area.

HAS MONEY

Although it does not specifically deal with Roberts Bank, Mr. Bennett said it would be used to build a provincial superport there and he would advance the board all the money it needed "within three minutes, if necessary" from provincial government funds.

He added he still is leaving open his offer to Ottawa that it share the project on a 50-50 basis.

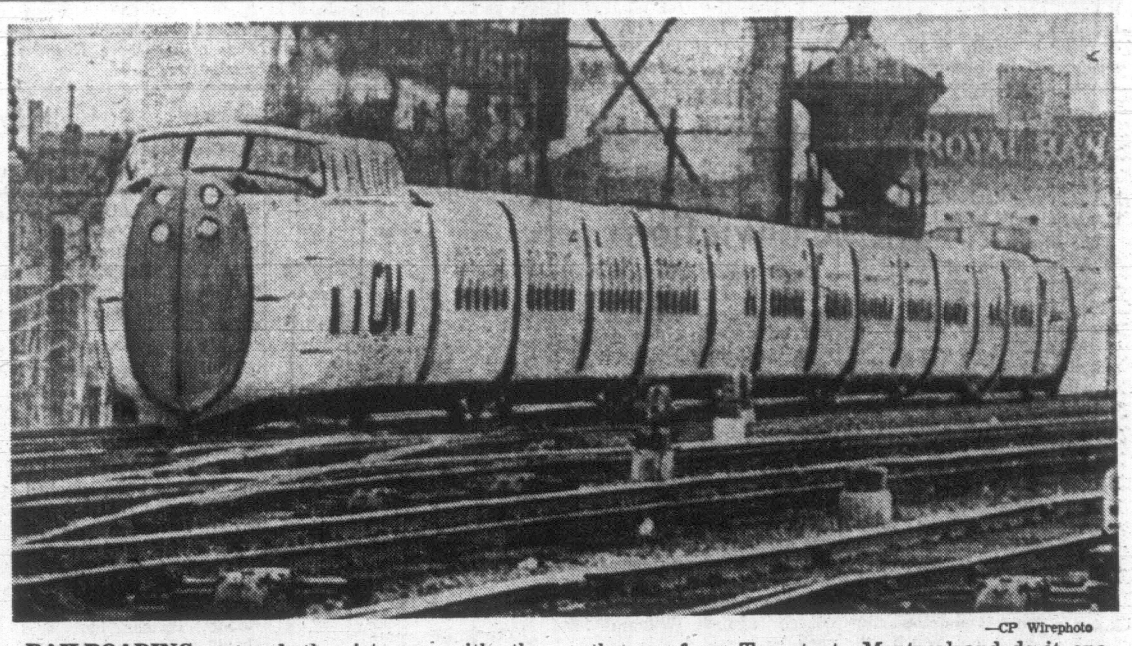

Mr. Bennett made the announcement to reporters outside the legislature at the start of Tuesday night's sitting, following by a couple of hours a press statement by NHB chairman Howard Mann.

Mr. Mann said in Vancouver the federal government will build and operate the superport and ruled out any possibility that administration would be shared with the provincial government.

He said while the NHB will exercise its exclusive jurisdictional right to build the docks, it

In Ottawa, Transport Minister Paul Hellyer was not available for comment but a spokesman from his office said they are still awaiting an official reply from Mr. Bennett in regard to the port development plans.

Murder Charges Pondered by U.K.

100 OTHERS TO FOLLOW?

Three Negroes Executed By Rhodesia

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Three convicted African murderers were hanged today and speculation mounted on whether the hangings foreshadowed a mass execution of more than 100 other Negroes under sentence of death in Rhodesia.

The three men—central figures in a new Anglo-Rhodesian constitutional drama — were hanged here shortly after dawn despite reprieves granted by the Queen, still recognized as Rhodesian head-of-state.

The execution of the three Negroes—sentenced to death before Rhodesia unilaterally declared its independence in November, 1965—seemed to open the way for an early declaration of a Rhodesian republic and final break with Britain.

107 IN DEATH ROW

The three men were the first to be executed here since the independence declaration. Their bodies were buried immediately in graves at the prison where they were hanged.

News of the hangings was flashed on local radio programs and spread quickly through the city.

Their hanging turned the spotlight on 107 other Negroes waiting in "death row." These include murderers and guerrillas captured in action against Rhodesian security forces.

The notices announced that Victor Siferani Mlambo, James David Dhlamini and Duly Shadreck were hanged at 9 a.m.

Mlambo and Dhlamini were convicted of killing a white farmer in a gasoline bomb attack and Shadreck was condemned to death for murdering a tribal chief.

POSES THREAT

Their hanging was the strongest challenge yet to the British government by the breakaway, white-ruled colony and plunged the two countries into the biggest head-on clash since Rhodesia declared independence.

The Queen commuted the sentences on the three Negroes Saturday after the Rhodesian Appeal Court refused a stay of execution. Smith and his government previously said they still recognized the Queen while

LONDON (AP)—Britain is urgently considering bringing murder charges against key Rhodesian rulers and the hangman who executed three Negroes reprieved by the Queen, the government disclosed today.

Commonwealth Secretary George Thomson told a tumultuous session of the House of Commons that Britain's attorney-general, Sir Elwyn Jones, "is giving urgent consideration" to all the legal implications of the executions in Salisbury early today.

These implications, he told Labor member Andrew Faulds include proper retribution from those held personally responsible for the executions.

Faulds had asked specifically if the British authorities would seek to punish—even with the death penalty—the "judges, officers of the so-called government of Southern Rhodesia, the warders and the hangman."

Thomson replied: "All those matters are for the attorney-general and, as I have already indicated, he is giving them urgent consideration."

MARCHAND

Marchand Quits As Leader Of Quebec Grits

OTTAWA — Manpower Minister Jean Marchand has resigned as leader of the federal Quebec Liberal caucus because of his support of Pierre Trudeau for the leadership of the Liberal party.

There have been rumblings of dissension among other candidates for the Liberal leadership in the cabinet over Mr. Marchand holding the key post of leader of the federal Quebec caucus and at the same time actively and openly supporting Mr. Trudeau.

Supporters of other candidates who are members of the cabinet have made no secret of their annoyance.

Their indignation has been shared by some of the candidates although in the interests of cabinet solidarity they have not spoken out against it.

Mr. Marchand made public today his letter to Prime Minister Pearson. He said, "it is with regret that I request you to relieve me of my functions as leader of the Quebec Liberal caucus.

"I came to this decision as a result of the double announcement of your intended resignation from active political life and holding, in April, of the convention of our party. As I intend to support one of the declared candidates, I think it only fair that I resign from the position to which you named me," he said.

"I would have taken this action, in any case, after the election of the new leader of the party," said Mr. Marchand in his letter.

MP Resigns Seat

OTTAWA (CP) — Maurice Allard, 46, independent member of Parliament for Sherbrooke, has resigned his Commons seat, Speaker Lucien Lamoureux announced in the House today.

Mr. Allard told newsmen his reasons were personal.

NEW TAX MEASURES THURSDAY

Freeze on Hiring Ordered by Sharp

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Sharp announced today he will introduce new tax measures Thursday to raise $390,000,000.

He also promised further spending cuts of $75,000,000, an immediate freeze on civil service hiring and "within a day or two" proposals for a program of restraint on prices and wages.

He said the long-promised program of restraint will be handled by a review board.

Mr. Sharp opened a full-scale economic review in the Commons with a plea for early debate on the tax increases, which will be revealed in detail Thursday.

REPLACES LOST REVENUE

The $390,000,000 in revenues are designed to replace $425,000,000 of revenue lost with defeat Feb. 19 of the government's income tax bill.

On his proposals for restraint, Mr. Sharp said legal controls will not work and persuasion must be attempted.

"We must give priority in our fiscal policy to resisting inflation.

"We must also plan, in consultation with business, with labor, and with all those whose decisions are important in determining prices, a means of greater understanding of the mutual danger of excessive increases in prices and in wages, and other costs by which those in positions of strength can exploit their market power under present circumstances."

Crew Lifted Off Oil Rig By 'Copter

LONDON (AP) — Battling 80-mile-an-hour winds, a British Coast Guard helicopter ran a life-saving taxi service today and lifted all 45 crew members from an oil drilling rig breaking up in the North Sea. No casualties were reported.

The rig, the $6,000,000 Ocean Prince, radioed from 110 miles off England's northeast coast that the gale winds and heavy seas were threatening to sink it and rescue ships could not get near.

Top Czech Officer Defects

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maj.-Gen. Jan Sejna, until recently a top political officer of the Czechoslovakian army, has been admitted to the United States as a refugee, U.S. officials said today.

Sejna, a former official in the defence ministry and a member of parliament, fled Czechoslovakia last week with his 18-year-old son and a 22-year-old girl. Authorities here said they understood the girl is his son's fiancee.

The state department said Sejna, 40, had applied for permanent residence in the U.S., and that the request is under consideration.

The general fled while Czech courts were taking away his parliamentary immunity. Press dispatches from Prague reported he was accused of misappropriating state funds.

Washington authorities said they believed he wound up on the "wrong side" of a political controversy which has unseated top Communist officials in Czechoslovakia.

Chief Justice Moves Out

SALISBURY (CP) — Sir Hugh Beadle, Rhodesia's chief justice, was reported Tuesday to have moved out of Government House after a dispute with Sir Humphrey Gibbs, the governor.

Beadle has lived at the residence since Rhodesia's declaration of independence from Britain.

Informed sources said the two parted Monday after an argument over Beadle's recent High Court judgment in the cases of three Africans sentenced to death for murder.

The argument between the two men apparently centred on judgments which the High Court gave in the appeals by the condemned Africans, whose hanging has plunged Britain and Rhodesia into a new constitutional crisis.

20-Point Decline In Rate of Pound

LONDON (CP) — The pound sterling dropped 20 points today as speculators continued to change their paper money for gold, silver and even copper.

Dealers emphasized, however, that trading on the foreign exchange market was extremely thin and the Bank of England did not support buying of sterling.

The pound opened at $2.4025 in U.S. funds, 10 points below Tuesday's close but quickly soared to $2.4077. Business dried up in the afternoon and the rate trailed off to close at $2.4015, 10 points down on the opening and 20 on the day.

The early strength of sterling was reflected at the fixing in the pound price for gold, which at 292 shillings, 10 pence was 8¼ pence below Tuesday's figure. The dollar parity was unchanged at $35.19⅞.

MINERS' LAST WORDS: 'PULL UP THE CAGE!'

CALUMET, La. (AP)—Twenty-one miners were trapped deep in the caverns of a salt mine today after fire in a shaft put an electric hoist out of action.

The last word heard from the men, about midnight Tuesday, was: "Pull up the cage!" After that communications cables were burned through. The fate of the 21 was unknown.

Emergency units swarmed into the remote marshy area bordering the Gulf of Mexico, where salt mining is a multi-million-dollar industry in large domes that reach like smokestacks into the earth.

Police reported workers were trying to build another shaft to reach the isolated men.

Explosion, Fire At B.C. Refinery

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — An explosion and fire broke out today at the Pacific Petroleum refinery at Taylor, eight miles south of here, injuring one man.

Tom Gannon, 21, was burned in the initial explosion and was taken to hospital where he was reported in good condition.

EXECUTIONS AROUSE AFRICAN LEADERS

'Now Is Time to Crush Regime'

By REUTERS

Bitter criticism from many African Commonwealth countries was heard today in the wake of Rhodesia's execution of three convicted Negro murderers despite the granting of a reprieve by the Queen.

Vice-President Daniel Moi of Kenya said in Nairobi that Rhodesian defiance of the monarchy gave Britain the ideal opportunity of crushing the breakaway Rhodesian regime of Ian Smith.

In Zambia, a banned Rhodesian nationalist party, the Zimbabwe African Peoples Union, said those involved in the execution would be shot on sight when the opportunity arose.

A statement from the party's offices in Lusaka said Rhodesian Chief Justice Sir Hugh Beadle "must understand that he and his henchmen who have ganged up to execute or carry out this series of murders will be shot on sight when the opportunity presents itself."

A ZAPU spokesman added: "They have by this action condemned themselves to death."

In London, the chairman of Britain's United Nations Association called on the British government to bring charges against Rhodesians responsible for the hangings. Humphry Berkeley declared the government should "take steps at once" to charge Clifford Dupont, officer administering the Rhodesian government, Smith and Justice Minister D. W. Lardner Burke and the executioner for the "crime which has been committed."

Elias Chipimo, Zambian high commissioner to Britain, said the executions "would shock civilized world opinion and must be condemned internationally."

Zambia has called in vain for Britain to crush the Rhodesian rebellion by force.

J. N. Karanja, Kenyan high commissioner in London, said it was outrageous that the illegal regime should have defied the Queen.

"Hanging these people is judicial murder," he said.

An Indian high commission spokesman in London said in view of the Queen's reprieve the executions by Rhodesia was tantamount to murder.

NDP Demands Authority To Subpoena Witnesses

By JOHN MIKA

The legislature's public accounts committee will decide Friday morning whether it will subpoena six witnesses to explain government vouchers involving Highways Minister Gaglardi's department.

Formal demands were made by two NDP members for calling of the witnesses on two separate issues.

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) asked for calling of four witnesses to testify about alleged falsification of vouchers in connection with steel girders installed on Mr. Gaglardi's leased ranch.

And David Barrett (NDP—Coquitlam) said he wanted to cross-examine the two pilots of the department's Lear jet about their expense vouchers.

STILL AT HOME

(Mr. Gaglardi still has not returned to the house following an operation on an impacted tooth and jaw cyst more than a week ago. He has stayed in his Kamloops home).

The Social Credit majority refused unanimous consent when Mr. Barrett tried to lay a complaint in the legislature that he was being denied the right to call the pilots by public accounts committee chairman Evan Wolfe (SC—Vancouver Centre).

TO MEET FRIDAY

But after Speaker William Murray held private conversations with both Mr. Barrett and Mr. Wolfe, it was announced the committee would hold its first working meeting Friday to decide whether the rules required that his request be fulfilled.

Mr. Wolfe told reporters that Mr. Dowding's request would be decided at the same meeting.

The 13-member committee is controlled by eight Socreds.

Mr. Wolfe said he did not think Mr. Barrett had sufficient grounds to request subpoena of the two pilots and he was not prepared "to see this develop into a general public inquiry.

"This is a committee matter and we normally deal with vouchers in camera and then hold a windup meeting to report to the house."

Mr. Wolfe said he also wants Mr. Dowding to indicate the questions he would like to put to the witnesses he wants called before a decision is made by the committee.

Mr. Wolfe, in answer to questions by reporters, said he had not made any inquiries into the allgegations that some of the vouchers were fixed.

He said he had not asked for a copy of the affidavit of Fred Renk, a highways department truck driver, that last May 1 he was ordered to deliver five steel girders to the Silver Sage Ranch at Savonna and to charge his time to another job voucher.

(Mr. Gaglardi told reporters, after the affidavit was disclosed by Mr. Dowding to the legisla-

WILSON ACTION SHOWS MONARCHY WEAKNESS

Queen 'Dragged' Into Dispute

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

By deliberately exploiting the mystique of the crown for political purposes, the British Labor government has exposed the limitations of monarchy as an instrument of power beyond British shores.

The Queen reigns but does not govern. She not only reigns over Britain but over a number of Commonwealth countries including Canada. She has become a multiple person, expressing the advice given to her by each of her governments.

When the British government advised her to order a reprieve for the three Negroes condemned to death in Rhodesia, she signed it. Undoubtedly she privately agreed with the advice but may have had some doubts about its effectiveness. The power of a royal decree is the government's ability to enforce it. In the case of Rhodesia the Wilson government has shied away from using force.

Indeed there is little to indicate the Wilson government has been able to make effective the trade embargoes against Rhodesia which were supposed to bring the white-minority Ian Smith regime to its knees.

More than two years after declaring independence from Britain, Smith and his men still rule. The power of the British government has been dismissed. The decrees of the Rhodesian regime, while declared illegal in London, nevertheless are backed up by the courts in Rhodesia.

Dragging the Queen into the issue may have been Prime Minister Wilson's method of demonstrating to the world that Britain does not condone brutality and injustice against Rhodesian blacks. He also may have questioned whether Smith would dare defy the Queen which Rhodesian whites maintain is their sovereign as well.

But the political element is exposed. The Rhodesian chief justice, Sir Hugh Beadle, who was knighted by the Queen, says she is "quite powerless" in this matter. The Rhodesian whites are not defying the Queen in her own right but defying the British government whose instructions she could not disobey.

In the same way the Smith men have defied and ignored the British-appointed Rhodesian governor, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, and have installed a governor of their own—Clifford DuPont. It is to DuPont to whom the lawyers of the condemned Negroes turned for mercy.

DuPont's appointment does not carry the Queen's approval but it does carry the support of Ian Smith. No matter what words the British government may ask the Queen to express, it was on the decision expressed by DuPont that the lives of the three Negroes depended.

would be willing to share with the province development of an industrial park behind it.

The superport is a key factor in a $650 million contract for exporting Fernie coal to Japan.

Mr. Bennett said the argument over which government would build the superport would not affect the separate question of which railway—the CPR or Great Northern Railway—would haul the coal 500 miles to tidewater.

He had previously insisted that the U.S. railway be given half the hauling contract but only last week gave in to federal insistence it go via an all-Canadian route.

It was pointed out that an NHB drilling rig already is at Roberts Bank obtaining engineering data on which the federal government would base a tender call for construction of the port, while the provincial government has made no similar moves for speedy construction.

Mr. Bennett replied the B.C. government has all the information it needs to proceed.

He denied that his announcement was prompted by Transport Minister Hellyer's request that B.C. share only in the cost of developing the industrial park but he did say he felt it was "a complete discourtesy" that Mr. Hellyer released the letter to the press before it arrived here.

"But we'll give them deathbed repentance," he added grimly.

Earlier, he had shrugged off the federal government's plans to build the superport because "this Liberal government is dying anyway."

Asked if he had some assurance from the Progressive Conservatives that they would allow B.C. to build the port should they form the next federal government, Mr. Bennett said he was not predicting defeat of the Liberals in the next election.

But, he added, whatever Liberal administration "succeeds this Pearson government will change the policy, they will have to come back to real co-operative federalism."

He said last year when his administration called for construction of the superport by Ottawa, then federal transport minister Jack Pickersgill refused.

Mr. Hellyer changed that policy to an agreement to a joint federal-provincial project "and now he wants to take it over. What kind of a sequence is that anyway?"

Boy's Face Cut In Car Mishap

A six-year-old boy is in fairly good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital after he was knocked down by a car Tuesday afternoon.

Police said Gordon Draybie, 67 Wellington, was hit as he darted west on Cook St. just north of Farifield. They said the car involved was going north on Cook, driven by Kenneth Graham, 4128 Elwood.

The boy suffered facial cuts and possible internal injuries.

Appeal Due In Perjury Conviction

Conviction of Frank Hulbert, 40, of Port Alberni on a charge of committing perjury in 1943 will be appealed, his counsel, Jack Gatehouse, said today.

Mr. Gatehouse said both the conviction and the five-year jail term passed on Hulbert will be appealed before the B.C. Court of Appeal.

Hulbert was sentenced in Victoria county court Monday by Judge Montague Drake. He was found guilty earlier by a 12-man jury of committing perjury in July, 1943, during the preliminary hearing of a murder charge against William Mitchell.

'DIDN'T LIKE HIM'

Hulbert was found guilty of committing perjury at the hearing by testifying that Mr. Mitchell told him he killed Molly Justice at Saanich in January, 1943.

Mr. Mitchell was later acquitted.

Subsequently Hulbert was quoted by police as saying: "Mitchell never told me he killed Molly Justice. I just didn't like him."

The body of Molly Justice was found near Swan Lake Jan. 18, 1943, bearing 20 stab wounds. The murderer has never been found and the case is still under investigation.

Two Acres Added To Elk-Beaver For $20,340

The Capital Regional District is expanding its park at Elk-Beaver Lake through purchase of a 750-foot long strip on the west side of Elk Lake.

The land, comprising 2.03 acres, has already been bought by Saanich for $20,340 and the regional district will pay the same sum.

District chairman and Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis said interest in the property, one of the two remaining pieces of privately-owned land on the west side, goes back several years.

Saanich moved last year to expropriate the lake frontage part of the land, known as the Brinkworth property, and the price of $20,340 was agreed upon prior to arbitration.

Defence Dep't PROs Kept Busy Last Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Number of press releases issued by the defence department rose to 2,649 last year from 1,656 in 1964, Defence Minister Cadieux says in a Commons return for Douglas Harkness, former Conservative defence minister. Mr. Cadieux also gave figures showing that travel expenses of his predecessor, Transport Minister Hellyer, and his staff and public relations officers rose to $32,389 in 1966-67 from $12,194 in 1964-65.

Mr. Hellyer was defence minister from April, 1963, to late 1967.

claiming full independence from Britain.

Britain warned this week that all Rhodesians concerned in any executions in defiance of royal clemency would face the gravest responsibility.

Many Rhodesians, some of them well-placed, now predict today's hangings could quickly lead to a final break with Britain by declaring a republic here.

Dhlamini and Mlambo were sentenced to death Dec. 14, 1964, as members of the outlawed Zimbabwe African National Union's "Leopard Gang" which ambushed a white family, killing Petrus Oberholtzer.

The family was attacked when their car was stopped at a roadblock. When Oberholtzer got out he was stabbed 16 times and his skull fractured in four places, apparenty from blows with stones.

Gasoline bombs were thrown into the car where Mrs. Oberholtzer and her young daughter were cowering.

Though dying, Oberholtzer scrambled back into his car and forced his way through the roadblock but he lost control and the car overturned.

The gang chased after the car and threw gasoline and lighted matches into it.

Mrs. Oberholtzer was pinned down by her husband's body and she and her daughter would have been killed if a passing motorist had not arrived by chance at the scene, frightening off the gang.

ATTACKED BY THUGS

Shadreck was sentenced to death in September, 1965, for the murder of a Negro who was attacked by a gang of thugs when walking home.

The court found that the motive was probably robbery. Shadreck was found to have struck his victim two blows on the head with an axe while another member of the gang stabbed him in the chest with a sharpened screwdriver.

Mlambo's father, mother and sister travelled 60 miles from a tribal reserve to try to see him but were refused admittance to the death cell.

A prison officer said the condemned men requested not to see anyone.

When the death notices were posted, Mlambo's family wept and wailed "yawehe," the Mashone tribe's word for "please God."

ture Feb. 23, that he leases the Silver Sage ranch from Karobill Enterprises Ltd. Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) told the legislature Monday that the highways minister had told a cattlemen's meeting in Kamloops that his sons own Karobill).

Mr. Dowding's formal requests for subpoenas covered: Mr. Renk; Frank Methot, a highways department employee who ordered dispatch of the steel; G. C. Nicol, manager of A. C. Leslie and Co. Ltd. in Kamloops which supplied the girders; and Savona rancher George Bowers who is reported to have witnessed the delivery.

In his letter to Mr. Wolfe, Mr. Dowding reminded the chairman that Attorney-General Robert Bonner had said he should raise the matter in the public accounts committee instead of on the floor of the legislature.

Mr. Barrett's written request for subpoenas covered pilots T. B. Toye and J. M. McNeill.

He said he had examined "scores of vouchers" including some by the two pilots and he had "uncovered information" which could only be clarified by cross-examination of the pilots.

(Public accounts for the last fiscal year show Mr. Toye received a salary of $10,075 and travel expenses of $3,304 while Mr. McNeill was paid $9165 salary and expenses of $2,004).

Mr. Barrett said his request for subpoenas was refused by Mr. Wolfe although standing rule 72 of the legislature made it clear subpoenas could be issued on the request of a single MLA.

He tried but failed to read a letter by Mr. Wolfe to the legislature which said he should submit written questions through the chairman.

Outside the house, he told reporters the Socred refusal to allow him to lodge his complaint that the rules were being violated suggested it was afraid of letting the pilots testify.

"I can only surmise the government is extremely sensitive about what I have uncovered in my searches of the vouchers," he said.

Mr. Barrett added he had asked for the committee to meet so he could press his request for the subpoenas but Mr. Wolfe had refused to do that too.

He declined to say what he had found in the vouchers because the rules required he maintain secrecy until a committee meeting is held but he added:

"If I can't have normal access under law to a committee hearing, my responsibility will be to consider another course of "action."

He would not say what form that action would take.

Devaluation Chances Grow

PARIS (Reuters) — The official Gaullist newspaper La Nation says the possibility of devaluation of the U.S. dollar is starting to be taken seriously.

It quotes an article from the Wall Street Journal which says bankers and financiers are asking the U.S. government to raise the price of gold without devaluing the dollars.

It says "it is now certain that the possibility of the devaluation of the dollar is starting to be taken seriously."

The paper says internal expansion in the U.S. is slowing down, and the worsening of the situation in Vietnam will bring measures which could only accentuate the American balance-of-payments deficit.

Seven Seeking Golden Gavel

A total of seven speakers will take part in the Golden Gavel speakers contest to be held in room 158, social science building, University of Victoria, at 8 tonight.

The contest is sponsored by Toastmasters.

The two top speakers at tonight's event will qualify for the finals to take place March 20.

Speakers are: David Garman, Michael J. Foxe, W. F. Hibbert, Barry G. Low, Pat Burns, Mrs. Julianne Henry and Preben Lind.

63 KILLED

Big Jetliner Slams Into Mountainside

POINT-A-PITRE (CP) — An airline captain radioed he was landing in 1½ minutes but instead his Air France Boeing 707 jet plunged into a rocky mountainside on the French island of Guadeloupe Tuesday night, killing all 63 persons aboard.

A revised air line list showed 49 passengers and a crew of 14 were aboard. Originally 53 passengers were reported aboard.

Among the passengers were two newspaper men from the popular French magazine Paris-Match—reporter Hubert Herzog, 43, and reporter-photographer Tony Saulnier, 42. They had been on an assignment in South America.

Herzog was a brother of Maurice Herzog, a well-known mountain climber and former minister in the French government.

Mrs. William Zeckendorf Sr., wife of the New York real estate man, was also aboard the plane.

The captain radioed Le Raizet airport control tower as he began his final approach above the rugged volcanic peaks of Basse-Terre Island. But radio contact ended abruptly and officials saw flames explode on the slopes of La Soufriere (Sulphur Mine) Mountain only 12 miles from this capital.

Rescue teams found no survivors when they reached the burnt-out hulk of the giant jet on the mountainside near Le Camp des Anglais (English Camp).

Cause of the crash was not immediately known.

The crash is the worst Air France disaster since all 101 passengers and 10 crew members were killed six years ago when another of the airline's Boeing 707 jets crashed while trying to land during a tornado at this French West Indian possession.

This crash, June 22, 1962, came less than three weeks after another Air France air liner crashed and caught fire while taking off from Paris' Orly Airport, killing 130 persons.

When the crash occurred Tuesday night weather conditions were good and skies clear.

But clouds swirled around the treacherous 5,000-foot volcanic peaks where the plane, en route from Santiago, Chile, to Paris, started its final landing run to Le Raizet Airport.

Guadeloupe lies about 400 miles off the Venezuelan coast and is surrounded by several smaller French territories.

CANADA WAITING FOR FRANCE TO PAY

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — France has not yet offered to pay Canada a penny — or any other amount — for the military bases in France which this country was forced to abandon last year, officials said Tuesday.

Two years ago this month France withdrew militarily, though not politically, from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and ordered all NATO troops on her territory to leave.

Canada had to evacuate its bomber base and air transport terminal at Marville and its RCAF headquarters at Metz in northeastern France.

The French government agreed to help pay part of the transfer costs — NATO had to build a new military headquarters in Belgium — and to pay some compensation to Canada and the U.S. for the loss of their military facilities in France.

Canada paid $8,744,000 in capital costs for the Marville base and $2,270,000 for its facilities at Metz. It also paid $8,940,000 for the Grostenquin base in France, which was abandoned in 1964.

Officials said there is no accurate estimate of the costs of moving the RCAF air division to West Germany from France. But they ran into millions of dollars.

In the meantime, France had not offered to make any payments.

'QUAKE VICTIMS PITCH TENTS IN ROME

ROME (Reuters) — Sicilian earthquake victims and disabled war veterans created chaos outside Parliament Tuesday with a demonstration that blocked traffic for miles in the heart of Rome.

About 200 Sicilians pitched tents and made bonfires on the square outside Parliament. The veterans tried to break into the building but were repulsed by police.

The Sicilians demanded more government aid for towns devastated by earthquakes in January. The veterans and invalids demanded better pensions.

The Common Ground

THE BUDAPEST CONFERENCE of 66 Communist parties has concluded with plans for a Moscow meeting later this year. The theme of the forthcoming discussions will be anti-imperialism and the objective apparently will be to define and consolidate the various Communist parties' policies in opposition to the "imperialists." A few years ago such an objective would have been seen solely as a preparation for further action against the West. But today, with all the changes that have taken place in the Communist world, it is fair to say that half, at least, of the intent of the meeting will be to continue the power struggle within the Communist structure.

The theme of the coming conference in Moscow has been described as a compromise—the nearest Moscow could get to the meeting it wants to have to settle the recalcitrance of Red China. Such a showdown meeting has been avoided by most of the other Communist countries and the parties maintained in non-Communist lands, and Russia has been unable to force the issue. But under the heading of anti-imperialist plans almost any topic could be introduced, and the Moscow gathering may yet see efforts to obtain a resolution condemning Peking's stand on essential Communist theory.

Each year recently, however, there has been evidence of more independence in the attitudes of the so-called satellite countries. At the talks just concluded, Romania created a sensation by calling its delegation out of one discussion in protest against Moscow's domination of the proceedings. And next winter's conference may well find still further signs of initiative and self-interest among the lesser Communist partners.

The significance of the anti-imperialist emphasis should not be lost, however, in contemplation of Communism's internal problems. Regardless of their choice between the Russian or Chinese interpretation of Lenin's ideology, almost all the Communist parties can agree on one issue—that of getting United States armed forces out of Southeast Asia. And while the war goes on, particularly in view of widespread suspicion that the United States will not remove its influence even in the event of a victory, there remains a cause of unanimity among the Communists which can only serve to strengthen them, consolidate their efforts, and curb the liberalizing tendencies toward greater independence and individuality which have been seen during the past few years.

Vietnam provides incentive for a joint effort—one of the few common grounds on which Moscow and Peking can co-operate. That fact, plus the loss of opportunities to pursue what appeared to be a most promising indication of closer contact between the United States and the Soviet Union, must be regarded as among the greatest costs of the Vietnam adventure.

The Right to Counsel

BRIEF DISCUSSION IN PARLiament last week of the right of an arrested person to have competent counsel present while he is being interrogated by police again underscored one of the difficulties of establishing that right.

While the desirability of providing counsel is widely accepted, a division of opinion exists over the manner in which it should be done. As long as the division continues, arrested persons can be left without the protection of a lawyer.

Mr. David Orlikow, NDP member for Winnipeg North, cited instances in which people taken into custody had suffered because they did not know their right. He suggested that an amendment to the Criminal Code cover the issue and noted that Justice Minister Trudeau's preference to include it in a bill of individual rights might be ineffective in provinces which declined to subscribe to the bill of rights.

Mr. D. S. Macdonald, parliamentary secretary to the minister of industry, recapitulating the position taken by the minister of justice, argued that cases could arise in which the Criminal Code would not be applicable and consequently a clause in the Code would provide no protection to the individual.

No doubt there is merit in both arguments. Each recognizes a gap in existing procedure which can leave a person without the protection generally considered desirable to safeguard his individual rights. The gap will eventually be spanned. But how many people must drop into the chasm before the bridge is built?

Just Once in a While

THE CANADIAN PRESS, IN ITS report of Mr. Robert Stanfield's address to the Conservative Party's youth wing in Ontario, says the Tory leader told his audience "that each of the eight ministers could have abstained from voting last week on the Liberal government's motion of confidence in itself. But none took the opportunity to put principle before party."

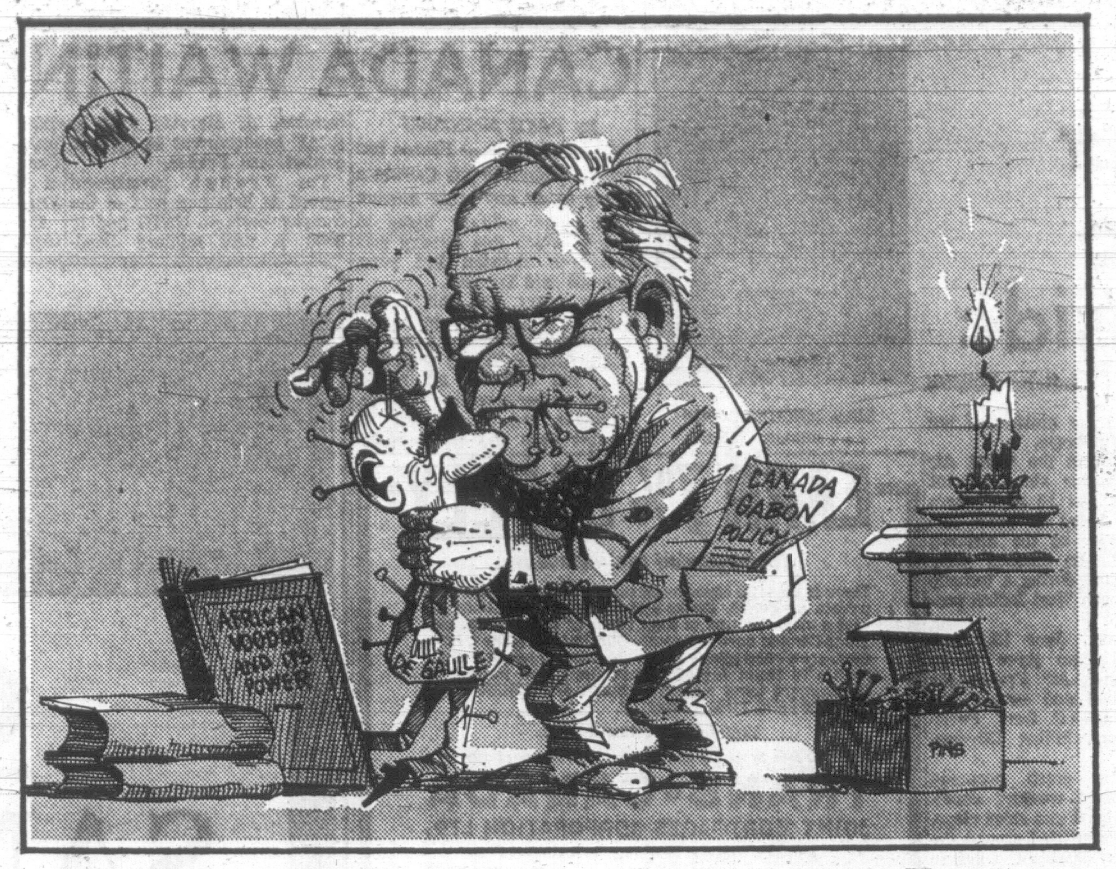

Mr. Stanfield's complaint seems a trifle ingenuous. Just because sufficient members of the cabinet absented themselves from a crucial vote on the surtax bill—and thereby let the Opposition reject that legislation—he should not expect Liberals to co-operate always for the defeat of a Liberal government. Once in a while, yes. But all the time? Just possibly they really don't want to encourage Mr. Stanfield's prime-ministerial ambitions.

Beauty and the Beastly Meter

MRS. PATTY ANN McMILLAN, who eight years ago reigned as Miss Nanaimo, has served a day in non-jail to defend a principle she feels was dishonored in Duncan.

Mrs. McMillan was charged with a parking meter violation. She contended the meter was defective but her defence was rejected. Given the option of paying a fine or spending a day in jail, she chose the latter, only to find that no accommodation was available for her and she was sent home to her children, though legally serving time.

The court, no doubt, had ample opportunity to weigh the evidence and was apparently disinclined to accept Mrs. McMillan's explanation of variations in the meter mechanism which, she says, give short time in winter, long time in summer. But whatever the court has decided, there seems reasonable grounds to question the effectiveness of some meters. They do, on occasion, get out of order. To err is human and it can also be mechanical. Mrs. McMillan has made a point, fought the fight of man against the machine, or of beauty and the beastly meter.

FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

Time to Cool the Tax Bill Fires

THE government, having weathered the parliamentary crisis, must now set a course either for a March adjournment or for prorogation of the present session. In his comments following Wednesday's vote, the prime minister recognized these two possibilities but indicated that the cabinet has yet to take a decision. Much depends on the priority which the government attaches to a new tax measure. There is a firm commitment that Mr. Sharp will not re-introduce the bill rejected on February 19. On the other hand, Mr. Pearson has said emphatically that "we are going to balance our budget because a balanced budget is required in the circumstances of today and for a balanced budget you have to have a financial program to bring that about."

Western

Accordingly, there have been some hints that a new budgetary measure will be introduced almost immediately. As the government is anxious to clear up some relatively non-controversial legislation now on the order paper; must in addition secure approval of the supplementary estimates; and must obtain supply for April or May, the case for adjournment is obvious. Mr. Sharp will be starting from scratch with the tax bill. Once committed, he will have to fight it through all stages. If there is protracted resistance, a subsequent decision to prorogue would simply mean that much parliamentary time had been expended to no purpose.

More Sensible

The alternative is to postpone tax legislation to a new session following the April convention and the reconstruction of the government. This would seem, for a variety of reasons, to be the more sensible procedure.

To begin with, the crisis has altered both the mood of the House and the parliamentary situation. Prior to February 19, the government had been lulled by many easy victories, and the high rate of absenteeism, into over-confidence and complacency. Now the Opposition has tasted blood and is eager to repeat the performance. It is not likely to pass up opportunities for return engagements and it is bound to be particularly critical of any new measure of increasing taxes. This will certainly make life miserable for the Liberals; the closer the convention approaches the more they will be tempted to stray from Parliament, but any member venturing far afield will do so at risk to the government.

Thus there is much to be said for prorogation as soon as the necessary business is completed.

Prestige

It is arguable that, since the government was defeated on one tax bill, the passage of an alternative would be the best way of establishing its prestige. Moreover, there is the financial imperative, Mr. Sharp having warned the House that the Canadian dollar is on trial.

On the other hand, the government has not lost much in revenues for the present fiscal year and even at this date could probably restore the position by more stringent economies. The balanced budget, now properly its objective, is for 1968-69.

Mr. Sharp has explained on more than one occasion that the problem of inflation is largely psychological. If people expect further inflation in consequence of a budgetary deficit, they tend to anticipate higher costs and prices. In this situation, however, the government is publicly committed to a balanced budget; but for an accident in Parliament it would already have imposed higher taxes (indeed it has been drawing the money off); and it has stated flatly that it will recoup the lost revenue by other means.

This being the case, where is the urgency of bringing the actual measure before Parliament in March, a relatively early date for a budget? There might even be some advantage in delay because there has probably been some change in long-term forecasts since Mr. Sharp placed his last budget before the House. It would restore the freedom of manoeuvre which Mr. Sharp lost on February 19. He cannot now use the device rejected by Parliament at that time: the rules forbid it and in any case a precise commitment has been given. And unless the new measure is substantially different from the old, its admissibility will certainly be contested in the House. By April all will be different.

There will be a new prime minister, a new government, and — if Parliament prorogues in March — a new session. There will be no barrier, either in the rules or in the commitments, to the introduction of a measure not radically different from that which Parliament struck down.

Moreover, Mr. Sharp, in attacking the Opposition, has made the point that an increase of income tax would have to exceed five per cent to make up for the lost surcharge. The reason is that income tax must be shared with the provinces; thus a higher rate must be levied to yield the federal government the equivalent of the surcharge proceeds. If the government waits until April, it may be able to secure its revenue in a way less expensive to taxpayers.

The mood of Parliament changes, sometimes rather quickly. The prospect of early prorogation would probably contribute to a lessening of tension; a new tax bill following so swiftly on the old would doubtless have the opposite effect. It is also desirable for other reasons that Parliament should not continue long into March for the business facing Liberal delegates, the choice not merely of a leader but of a new prime minister, is important public business, as Mr. Stanfield has recognized.

In the normal way a new prime minister will probably enjoy, even in a minority Parliament, an initial period of relative quiet and goodwill. This position will certainly be much stronger than that of Mr. Pearson today. Thus, there appears to be a strong case for the course now being urged by some experienced Liberals — deferment of the tax measure and prorogation at the earliest possible date.

FROM WASHINGTON — By RICHARD PURSER

No Conspiracy in the Ghetto Rioting

ONE of the most important services rendered by the report of a presidential commission on the racial disturbances of 1967, was to demolish the basis of a belief popular among white Americans. This belief is known as the conspiracy theory. As the seriousness of last year's wave of outbreaks dawned on the public, it became evident that many among the white community preferred to take refuge by imagining some sinister organizing influence at work. If it should prove to be Communist, so much the better.

Purser

The conspiracy theory allows its partisans not to think about what life in the black community is like. And this "shutting-from-the-mind" syndrome is common in the United States. Reporters, social workers and others who make it their business to be acquainted with the black realities, are often questioned about their observations at white middle-class social gatherings. They are just as often cut off in mid-reply, the questioner disturbed by anything too deep to be explained by cliches about Negro laziness or the need for stronger police power.

The president's commissioners, headed by Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois as chairman and Mayor John Lindsay of New York as vice-chairman, obtained and studied thousands of investigative documents from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the State, Defence, Treasury and Post Office Departments, the Internal Revenue Service, and the Central Intelligence Agency. They set up their own special investigating staff, which gathered information from state and local law enforcement agencies and interviewed hundreds involved in the disturbances, including police officers, black militants and ghetto residents.

They studied the role of domestic and foreign organizations dedicated to the incitement or encouragement of violence. They considered the incidents that triggered disorders, and searched for patterns in sniper activity, etc. They checked out hundreds of rumors.

Their conclusion:

"The urban disorders of the summer of 1967 were not caused by, nor were they the consequence of, any organized plan or 'conspiracy.' Specifically, the commission has found no evidence that all or any of the disorders or the incidents that led to them were planned or directed by any organization or group, international, national or local."

Besides the commission's work, intensive investigations have been carried out by local police departments, grand juries, city and state committees, federal departments and agencies, and congressional committees. "None has thus far identified any organized groups as having initiated any riots during the summer of 1967."

The commissioners were unable to identify unvarying patterns in civil disorders. "We have found that disorders are unusual, irregular, complex and . . . unpredictable social processes. Like most human events they do not unfold in orderly sequences."

If one generalization can be made, it is that the 1967 disturbances were racial in character but were not inter-racial. They did not pit white and black mobs against each other, as was the case in the genuine race riots of Chicago in 1919 and Detroit in 1943. The 1967 cases "involved Negroes acting against local symbols of white American society — authority and property — rather than against white persons."

Demanding a Share

Despite the extremist rhetoric of individual agitators who contributed to the poisonous atmosphere last summer, there was no general attempt to subvert the social order. Most participants, the report finds, seemed to be demanding "fuller participation in the social order and the material benefits enjoyed by the vast majority of American citizens."

While disorders often appeared to result from a single triggering incident, this seldom happened without pre-existing causes: "an increasingly disturbed social atmosphere, in which typically a series of tension-heightening incidents over a period of weeks or months became linked in the minds of many in the Negro community with a shared network of underlying grievances."

The standard grievances — abusive police practices, unemployment, ghetto housing conditions — were often aggravated by incidents involving the police, or the inaction of municipal authorities on Negro complaints. When incidents recurred and tensions remained unresolved, "there was a cumulative process in which prior incidents were readily recalled and grievances reinforced.

Last Straws

"At some point in the mounting tension, a further incident — in itself often routine or trivial — became the breaking point and the tension spilled over into violence."

The commission notes that "many grievances in the Negro community are based upon discrimination, prejudice, and powerlessness which Negroes often experience."

The word "powerlessness" should perhaps be signalled out for special notice. When the commissioners said, as recorded above, that those involved in the 1967 incidents were attacking symbols of white American society — authority and property — they might just as well have said that they were attacking "white power." That is what it's all about.

Second of a series.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Looking Back

From the Times, March 6, 1908.

A development which is detrimental to the cause of good administration of the affairs of this country is the practice on the part of the B.C. government of taking to itself all kinds of power which should repose in other bodies more in touch with local conditions.

An example of this is the taking of the liquor license control in unorganized districts out of the hands of license commissioners and placing it under the provincial police. They will have the power to cancel any license.

Letters

Protecting Animals

Viewers who were distressed by the suffering involved in production of a drug from pregnant mares, as shown on a television program, will be thankful to know the Ontario Humane Society in co-operation with the other societies are endeavoring to have measures taken to alleviate this suffering.

They are also asking for a ban on the export of foals separated from their mothers soon after birth. The suffering of these small animals is shocking.

This industry is carried on almost exclusively in Ontario and Quebec but British Columbia sympathizers can help by writing the Honorable John James Greene, Minister of Agriculture, Ottawa, asking that effective steps by taken to lessen the suffering of both mares and their young.—Violet E. Cowie, 4611 Vantreight.

Cruelty

I am sure that those people in Victoria who watched the March 1 television program concerning the use of animals in scientific research will not soon forget it. It was presented in a most reasonable and unsentimental manner by Mr. Michael Doyle of the Council for Laboratory Animals. The council does not advocate that the use of laboratory animals be prohibited, but it does insist that only truly worthwhile experiments should be carried out and only under the most humane conditions possible.

According to Mr. Doyle, the majority of experimental laboratories in Canada are extremely callous in their treatment.

Canada has already acquired an unsavory reputation in other countries because of the annual slaughter of baby seals. It would be a pity to add to that reputation by blindly ignoring other inhumane practices.—Valerie Melville, 500 Transit Road.

Re-run

The March 1 television discussion on the use of animals in scientific reasearch was of great interest to all animal lovers, but unfortunately many were unable to see this program at that particular time.

Over 500,000 animals are used annually in Canada for scientific research, many needlessly subjected to prolonged pain and suffering.

Of 83 laboratories inspected only seven rated fair in their treatment of animals.

Canada is lagging far behind other countries in laws to control and restrict unnecessarily brutal treatment of these animals.

May I urge readers to send a short letter to the CBC asking for a rerun at a more convenient time.—Theodore R. W. Tremills, 3955 Telegraph Bay.

Away Out on a Limb: Trudeau Is Sure to Win!

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

Pierre Elliott Trudeau will be the next prime minister of Canada.

The Trudeau tide is rising quickly again and there just doesn't seem to be time left for it to ebb before the convention.

Fisher

It is a curious and complex thing. But there it is, and organization politicians deal with facts and with realities when they make their leadership calculations.

This is especially so when the main opponent has become revitalized and appears to be enjoying considerable public favor.

The Conservatives and New Democrats are aiding the Trudeau build-up. They have discovered him. He is a good opponent to have because he leaves openings for attack. But he always counter-attacks, and this delights the Liberals, and in the process they discover him, too.

Crowe

It is a repeat in the Commons of what happened with Premier Johnson at the Confederation conference, and with his exchanges with Quebec City since the conference. Politicians like a leader who is sure of himself and good in combat.

It is a search for leadership, wider than the Liberal Party, but most intense in it, which is settling upon this unusual man.

★ ★ ★

We quoted Kenneth Galbraith before in some shrewd insights into the "autonomous build-up" of a strong man.

When the search for leadership settles upon someone, "He is a man transformed—indeed he is no longer a man but a superman. His eccentricities become the mark of a unique personality . . . Where others ponder, he has solutions.

"That is because he is able to separate the essentials from the non-essentials, and then find a painless course of action by shooting straight for the target. It has been the fault of lesser men that they have left the impression that there was a choice only between equally grim alternatives.

"The build-up is likely to occur at a time when problems are numerous, vexatious and incomprehensible . . . The press and networks creats the master statesman who will see us through."

Galbraith helps us to understand the phenomenon of the Trudeau transformation, and Eric Hoffer helps us to understand the psychology of the Trudeau supporter.

It is not merely a revolt against the traditional style of politics in Canada, it is also a revolt against politics itself. And even more than being rescued from politics, an increasing percentage of our people wish to be rescued from themselves.

If they have jobs, families, obligations, they cannot physically run off to Yorkville. But they can do it symbolically in a leader whom they create out of their dreams.

A bachelor, wealthy, a judo expert, immensely confident, literate, unconventional, unabashed by great affairs of state, in fact slightly bored by them—the great dream of male and female suburbia. And on top of all that he will tell the Quebeckers to go jump in Lac St. Jean.

★ ★ ★

Hoffer wrote: "The frustrated follow a leader less because of their faith that he is leading them to a promised land than because of their immediate feeling that he is leading them away from their unwanted selves.

"Surrender to a leader is not a means to an end but a fulfilment. Whither they are led is of secondary importance."

National crisis and personal insecurity join together: "People whose lives are barren and insecure seem to show a greater willingness to obey than people who are self-sufficient and self-confident . . . In times of crisis, during floods, earthquakes, epidemics, depressions and wars, separate individual effort is of no avail, and people of every condition are ready to obey and follow a leader."

★ ★ ★

The qualities of leadership in the man selected are less important than the appearance that he possesses the qualities of leadership.

What are the characteristics of a man which will convey the appearance of leadership? The important ones are audacity, inflexibility, and contempt for the existing arrangement of affairs.

Mr. Trudeau has these characteristics in full measure, and also a capacity to instill great loyalty and devotion in a group of eager apostles.

We have met with the arresting observation that Canadians have seen this happen before. The suggestion was offered that this is 1935 and Alberta all over again. Pierre Elliott Trudeau is another William Aberhart.

The unfathomable French-English crisis is the unsolvable Depression. The federalist mumbo-jumbo is the social credit doubletalk. The French Canadian nationalists are the Eastern bankers. The TV lecture is the radio sermon.

It is a dusty off-Broadway Pygmalion re-offered as a glittering Our Fair Lady. It is a scenario worthy of either George Bernard Shaw or Dalton Camp.

THE GALLUP POLL

Liberals Had Pulled Ahead Before Parliament Crisis

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

In a national political study, completed just before the recent parliamentary crisis, the Liberal party had managed to re-establish its lead over the Progressive Conservatives in popular favor. Just what effect the defeat of the government's tax surcharge will have will be reflected in subsequent Institute studies.

The election of Robert Stanfield as leader gave the Conservative party a dramatic shot in the arm which peaked last October. In that month the Institute's continuing study of voter attitudes showed that the Conservatives were ahead of the Liberals for the first time since before the federal election in November, 1965. By January of this year, after the announcement of Mr. Pearson's resignation, the effect of this shot in the arm had worn off somewhat, but the Tories still outdrew the Liberals in public appeal. In today's report the Liberals have again grabbed the lead.

In view of the voter's mercurial mood, it will be surprising if this crisis does not have some effect on his party preferences.

The following record is based on voter response to this question, asked of a cross-section of eligible voters across the country:

"If a federal election were held today, which party's candidate do you think you would favor?"

	Liberals	PC	NDP	Soc-Cred. and Others
ELECTION, Nov. 1965	40%	33%	18%	9%
January, 1966	44	28	21	7
May	41	30	19	10
July	38	30	20	12
September	37	32	21	10
November	38	26	26	10
February, 1967	37	25	28	10
May	36	29	26	9
August	41	30	18	11
October	34	43	17	6
January	32	38	18	12
TODAY	42	34	16	8

In its January report on political preferences, the Institute mentioned the fact that the "undecided" vote had reached a low of about one-quarter of the population (25%). In today's poll this important segment of the electorate has jumped sharply to over 40%.

Old Family, New Family— It Depends on Where You Sit

By ART STOTT

Last weekend had conditioned us for the lecture we attended Monday evening. Elder daughter had come over from Port Moody with her two children for a delayed, small birthday dinner. Younger daughter had joined us for the occasion and her small son had remained as a house guest. From Toronto a son and daughter-in-law had phoned to report progress on an impending addition to their household. The strands of kin had been drawn together.

Stott

On Monday evening we listened to Donald W. Ball, lecturer in the Department of Anthropology and Sociology at the University of Victoria, speak on "The Changing Concepts of the Family in Western Society." His approach to the subject was substantially more realistic and scientific than our sentimentalized weekend experience.

The lecturer described the influences by which an urbanized, industrialized society, with its trend to more equality between the sexes and more equality between generations, had broken the mold of the large, extended traditional family.

In an era of agricultural life, the large family with grandparents, parents, children, uncles, aunts and other relatives housed under one roof or in close proximity, had economic advantages. Each had specific duties to perform, each had a definite position in the family organization from the master of the house down to the small tots who helped with the weeding and other chores.

Urbanization and industrialization altered the structure, favored the smaller family with little economic interdependence among kin and, in the kind of society we have today, was more efficient, providing, among other characteristics, higher mobility of the working force and virtually no need for the labor of the very young.

The results were, among other things, a change in values and a distinct shift in attitudes as well as behaviour.

At the close of the meeting, a member of the audience who had obviously given the question considerable thought, suggested an exploration of that phase of the subject, stating he thought we should be giving more attention to preserving some of the values which had been lost and reducing our concentration on the industrialization of society which provided more tangible wealth. I took it that he felt we had given up too much for what we had gained—and he may be right. Certainly it's my view that mobility, so desirable in an industrial society, has a tendency to create a certain rootlessness, and I think roots have some merit.

But the fact is that the old agricultural economy based on production that lacked much of the mechanization and technology of today no longer exists in our society. It has disappeared in our type of country and the family, from aged to the youngest, no longer goes out into the fields, each with an appointed task, to wrest a living from the land.

In the sunset glow of retrospect, which blurs the outlines of the disagreeable and the tragic, we can argue in favor of the "good old days" and meet counter-argument from realists who point out that the old days were not necessarily good. But the argument is profitless.

Had the questioner at the end of the address, and the lecturer, not been pressed for time, I believe they could have reached a great deal of common ground on the thesis that in our industrial development we've been too careless in discarding some values that were good,—swapping the whole kit and kaboodle for the material benefits of an affluent society, with its emphasis on creature comforts, its elastic permissiveness, its rejection of the spartan for over-indulgence in the epicurean.

In a sense we have become the creatures of industrialism as much as its creators, clamoring for what it can give us and ignoring the price we pay. This, some of my friends would say, is just bad planning.

Maybe it's not too late to salvage what was good in the old family for introduction into the new.

But who's to say what was good?

Only New Chief Can Save the U.S.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

NEW YORK — The United States can count itself fortunate that in these unhappy times there is an election near at hand. For this opens up the chance to begin to get a grip on the events which are at present out of human and political control.

There is no other way to begin unless the voters choose a new president with new advisers and a new party alignment. The conflicts within the nation about the war, the cities, the economy and the racism cannot be healed unless the nation as a whole can look forward to a new beginning. The nation cannot thrash around for another five years in its entanglements.

The dominant fact of our time is not that opinion is divided and that there is strong opposition to the administration. That is normal enough in a free country. The dominant fact is the crumbling of that binding confidence in the nation's purposes and its future, which in normal times may be taken for granted.

Lippmann

There is a disintegration of the hope, which is the inner genius of the American spirit, that men can solve their problems and that evils can be overcome. Lyndon Johnson has undermined this hope, and he has driven a whole generation of Americans into open or implicit revolt against their government and their own society; he has instilled in the rest of the people a sense of hopelessness and bewilderment.

The best that his most respected apologists can say is that they can think of nothing else for him to do. Such nihilism is not good enough. The United States has the right to leaders who mean to master its fate, not to drift helplessly with it. Only new leaders can correct the sense of uselessness and helplessness.

Turn Ins Out

With the ins having gotten American into trouble, the only thing to do is to turn to the outs. Unless Mr. Johnson retires and along with him his chief advisers, only a Republican president can save the country from its plight.

Sen. Eugene McCarthy cannot replace Lyndon Johnson in the White House. What that gallant man is doing is to rally the saving remnant of the Democrats in order to save the soul of the Democratic Party. He is saving its future. But for the dangerous present the hope of the country is that it can find a Republican to replace President Johnson.

The Republican Party does not have a wide choice of available and qualified candidates. There are in fact only two such men: former vice-president Richard Nixon and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller. Gov. George Romney has withdrawn; Gov. Ronald Reagan does not have the experience needed to be president of the United States in this critical age.

Nixon has had a long and rich experience in national government and in national politics, and there is little doubt that as time goes on he has matured well. The Nixon of today is a much more prepossessing candidate than was the Nixon of 1960. But we should note that he has had no experience in the administration of local and regional politics. Yet, that is where the action is. That is where the great problems arise.

GOV. ROCKEFELLER
. . . most qualified

Nixon's biggest liability is that as an opponent of Mr. Johnson he does not offer a choice, but produces an echo. He is an echo of the president on the Vietnamese war and on our future in Asia. He opens up no prospect of a better turn in this grim situation.

In terms of election politics, Nixon has an even greater liability. It is the same liability which Lyndon Johnson has—the credibility gap, which is the polite way of saying that masses of people do not much believe or trust him.

In a contest with Mr. Johnson, the country would be asked to choose between two men who, as Mr. Dooley once said of two other political candidates, are as far apart as the two poles (since they argue about so many things) and yet as much alike as the two poles (since they are both icy and barren).

White House Hope

It is not surprising that in the White House Nixon is now the preferred Republican candidate. If only Mr. Johnson could run against Nixon for president and Sen. Everett Dirksen as leader of Congress, his dreams would be fulfilled. He would be as sure of re-election as any president can be who is fighting a war which he cannot win and might lose.

Measured only in these electoral terms, the case for Rockefeller is virtually unanswerable. He is the one Republican who has the best chance of winning the election. For while Nixon is the preferred choice of the regular Republicans, they are a minority party and can win an election only when a great mass of Democrats and independent voters defect to them. No other Republican can match Rockefeller's attraction for this strategic mass of voters.

In this respect the Nixon-Rockefeller situation resembles the Taft-Eisenhower contest in 1952. Taft was also the preferred choice of the regular Republicans. But it was not certain that he could win the election.

Had the Ace

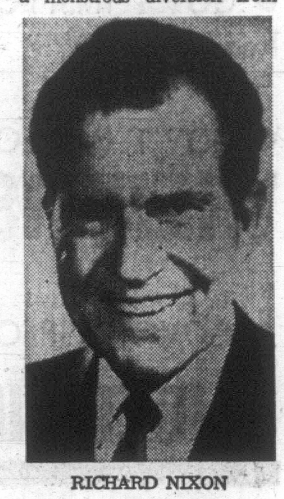

Gen. Eisenhower, who was not really a Republican, had the ace of trumps since it was certain that he could win the election. That is why he was nominated by the Republican politicians. If Rockefeller is nominated at Miami, it will be for the same reason, that he, if anyone, can win the election.

Rockefeller would not have this ace of trumps if the reason for making him president were not intrinsically solid and sound. I submit that in the year 1968 the reasons are compelling. For what the country will be choosing is not a war president who could win the war. It will be choosing a president for the reconstruction in which the war will be wound up and the wounds healed and the damage repaired, the damage which is not only material but moral and spiritual.

In one way or another the Vietnamese war will either expand and explode into a global catastrophe, or a way will be managed to close it down. I regard Nelson Rockefeller as the most qualified man available for this supreme task of reconstruction. I believe that Lyndon Johnson has disqualified himself.

For myself, I have never been concerned about Rockefeller's refusal to talk about Vietnam or align himself as a hawk or a dove. That is a politician's tactic. I have never talked about Vietnam with the governor because I feel the less he said the freer he would be to commit himself to the inevitable task of liquidating the war. I am sure that he would have to liquidate the war in order to be the kind of president he can be and wishes to be.

The central and critical fact is that the Vietnamese war is a monstrous diversion from the true American problem, which is not the policing of Asia but the mastery of the human adjustment to the modern, urban, highly technological society in which most Americans live. For the leadership of the country in this great task Rockefeller is pre-eminently qualified. New York is the vortex of the problem. If New York can be governed well, then the problem elsewhere is soluble.

RICHARD NIXON
. . . only an echo

Rockefeller is a successful governor of New York, which is to say that he has been tried and proved and tempered in the hottest of fires of modernity. The nomination and election of Rockefeller would be a guarantee to the American people that the essential problems of their lives would be the main concern of the nation.

China Sticks to Role Of 'Promoting' Fights

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH

HONG KONG—Faced with crisis in Korea and the violence of Vietnam, China today shows every sign of remaining the dedicated fight promoter who never enters the ring.

North Korea's readiness to talk to the Americans at Panmanjom about the Pueblo affair has left the Peking press disapprovingly laconic.

Suspicion that General Giap's offensive in Vietnam was planned as a short-cut to negotiations has evoked from Chinese leaders loud "go-to-it," exhortations to the Viet Cong to soldier on until final, if far-off, victory.

Small Print

However, if the neighbors must not capitulate but continue to keep the Americans off-balance, China is careful not to compound her own commitments. Although earlier Marshal Lin Piao promised that the Chinese would intervene in Vietnam if Hanoi asked for help, the Defence Minister's most recent offer adds in small print: "If it is in the interests of both our peoples."

The Maoists are still anxious to keep China's hem out of the Vietnamese mire. North Vietnamese MiGs operate from Chinese airfields, but when they flash back across the frontier after combat over Tonkong, all Chinese aircrews are grounded to avoid the danger of their tangling with American jets following in "hot pursuit," I learn.

Direct Attack

And when the Chinese shot down a U.S. aircraft over nearby Hainan Island recently, the intrusion was described as direct U.S. aggression against China—by implication unconnected with the air war over Vietnam.

The order of battle of the People's Liberation Army shows that there are no more than 150,000 regular troops in the Canton military region bordering Vietnam, against 350,000 of China's most modern, heavily-armed forces in the provinces opposite Formosa and 450,000 behind the Manchurian frontier with the Soviet Union. The 2,600,000-strong PLA is largely deployed around China's immense perimeter and has in addition been drawn, in unruly provinces, into the turbulence of the Cultural Revolution.

Restored Order

In at least three regions regular formations have restored order at the point of the gun after rival Maoist factions had fought it out with filched weapons in factories and city streets. In all others, local military forces are heavily involved in keeping the peace, and sometimes even running the railways, while disgruntled "revolutionary" workers squabble rather than labor.

Meanwhile, the Army's political department is saddled with the responsibility for ending the strife and anarchy of Cultural Revolution, reconciling warring factions and fabricating the joint "revolutionary committees" in which soldiers, chastened cadres and tranquillized delegates of the masses work together as the apex of the local administration.

Committees or preparatory committees have been imposed on 20 out of China's 28 main administrative divisions, but some already threaten to crumble with the dry-rot of hidden animosities.

Yet the Army's political task—virtually the resuscitation of the shattered party and administration—is not only prodigious but urgent, for it must be done before the Ninth National Party Congress is held in the early summer, despite persistent country-wide factionalism and ideological disobedience branded as "anarchism" by the nation's leaders. Moreover, the unity of the Army is fragile.

Risen Too High

Experts here split it into at least five "systems" of interlocking loyalties, and point out that Mao has now risen too high for him to hold all the stings of personal allegiance among field commanders.

This "fidelity gap" has inevitably been filled by generals—some now disgraced—each of whom has his own network of friends and followers.

The PTA is also threatened by a second gap, which may provoke an agonishing metamorphosis in the near future.

China became an atomic power in record time by concentrating resources upon nuclear development at the expense of normal military modernization in conventional arms.

The Chinese Army has metaphorically leap-frogged from cavalry to kiloton. It has no tactical atomic weapons now, but will inevitably get them.

Yet today the PLA does not even have enough vehicles. It is a mass force, created in Mao's grand guerrilla tradition, commanded by ageing revolutionary heroes who have missed a phase in their military education, and have no experience of such refinements as combined operations, use of modern tactical airpower or helicopter troop mobility.

U.S. Deterred

Acutely aware of its limitations today, observers say Chinese generals do not want to throw the PLA across the frontier against the arms of the United States. The Chinese believe furthermore, that the Vietnamese New Year holocaust has deterred the Americans from risking a similar debacle on a far vaster scale by invading China. Fear of American aggression has therefore abated.

The danger of a Sino-American conflagration in 1968 cannot be discounted, however. Americans in responsible posts in the Far East have talked earnestly of systematically destroying Vietnam from end to end, or of blasting an atomic chastity belt of scrambled radio-active jungle right across the country.

Also 'Election'

How far will LBJ go to win an election, many ask. Meanwhile, in Peking, where China's own political "hawks" are understood to have advocated armed intervention in Vietnam in the past, the power struggle must intensify as the Ninth Party Congress approaches. The hazard is doubled, for in China also it is, in a sense, "election year."

Shrubs Now Showing Signs of Spring

By HILDA BEASTALL

With a chorus of frogs and assorted toads each mild evening, the most pessimistic gardener (if one there by!) will be noticing several other signs of spring.

Hilda

One which might easily be missed is Drimys winteri or D. aromatica (I'm not sure which we have) now producing the first flower buds for us on these plants.

This is one of those delightfully useful evergreen shrubs that can be grown in our area if properly sited to get a little protection on north and east.

Drimys (pronounced drymiss) is upright and shrubby, with dark reddish stems, small dark green leaves slightly aromatic, and now has a cluster of white buds at the tip of every branch. According to whether we have D. winteri or D. aromatica, individual flowers will be "small," or, "an inch in diameter."

Ultimately the shrub will grow to about 10 feet in height and makes a handsome addition to a shrub border that offers a fair amount of sun in summer and protection from northeast winds in winter.

Not easily missed are the strongly vanilla-scented blossoms of Azara microphylla. The perfume reaches far. These are tiny flowers, have no petals, are yellow and appear in the axils of the leaves but are on the back of the twigs.

The pattern of this evergreen shrub is rather fine since the leaves measure between a quarter and three-quarters of an inch in length. In outline against a wall or fibreglass garden divider, a delicate Japanese effect is achieved.

These are only two of the many broad-leaved evergreen shrubs, both flowering early in spring, which our climate makes possible to grow here if their needs are considered and met.

CANADIAN CHAMBER PRESIDENT

'Disaster Brink' Warning

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — William M. Anderson, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, predicted Canada could tilt towards the "brink of disaster" if the federal government does not take appropriate measures soon.

Speaking Tuesday night at the 91st annual meeting and dinner of the Windsor Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Anderson said government expenditure was expanding at an "unsuitable pace."

He said more than 270,000 federal civil servants employed by the end of 1968—an increase of 71,000 or 36 per cent over the last three years—was a "danger sign" of a government overreaching itself.

Mr. Anderson, a Vancouver accountant, said recent "completely unrealistic" wage settlements could only hasten the day when Canada would be unable to export its goods because productivity, not keeping pace with wage increases, would price Canada out of the international markets.

U.S. to Hold Line On Economic Growth

PARIS (AP) — President Johnson's top economic adviser said Tuesday the United States will try to keep its growth rate down to four per cent this year in an attempt to halt the dollar drain—whether or not a surtax on income goes through Congress.

Arthur Okun, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, spoke at a closed meeting of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development—OECD. He was under heavy pressure from its members, the richest and most industrialized nations of the Western world, to promise to keep the American economy from growing too fast.

The fear is that if this happens, U.S. imports also will increase and with it the outflow of gold and dollars. A continuation of big deficits in U.S. international payments would further endanger the value of the dollar.

Okun said that if the president's request for a 10-per-cent surtax does not go through Congress, other methods would have to used to hold down the American economy.

TRANS-CANADA PIPE LINES

Expansion Plans Held Up

OTTAWA (CP) — The national energy board Tuesday reserved judgment on a Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. application for permission to start a 1968 construction program costing $57,000,000.

It also made no immediate ruling on an appeal by the city of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., against a company plan to locate its terminal nearly six miles within the city's boundary.

The company said the location was fixed before the boundary was extended, and is part of a contract with Northern and Central Gas which cannot be renegotiated.

D. M. Fraser, a member of the board, said Trans-Canada's prices should be examined in connection with the cost of expanding its facilities. But Ian MacKinnon, board chairman, said Tuesday's hearing was not a case involving rates, which are subject to the board's approval later.

Trans-Canada proposes to start tripling some sections of its western line, now doubled from the Alberta-Saskatchewan border to Winnipeg. It will also begin doubling parts of its line from Toronto to Montreal.

Further construction for 1968, also needed for next winter's heavy consumption prospects, will be submitted to the board later.

Sault Ste. Marie's objection to locating a meter station—where the connection will be made between Trans-Canada and the company's local distributor, Northern and Central—involved sharing the cost of construction of municipal utilities.

NEW SECURITIES

R. G. Wall, Trans-Canada treasurer, said the company has a $100,000,000 line of credit with four banks, two Canadian and two in New York. Negotiations are well advanced for issuing new securities to raise funds for the construction program, he added.

J. G. C. Weir, manager of purchasing, said Trans-Canada's new works will be 85 per cent Canadian. Canada now is exporting pipe and other pipeline materials whereas, 22 years ago when the pipeline was started, all had to be imported.

Walter Hindle, engineering vice-president, assured the board that topsoil will be preserved wherever the new lines go through farm land. Where tile drains have to be uprooted, they will be replaced at their proper level.

The Sault Ste. Marie connection with Trans-Canada will be made this fall when work is completed on the Great Lakes Gas Transmission Co. line running from Emerson, Man., south of Lakes Superior and Huron to Sarnia, Ont. Trans-Canada is half-owner of Great Lakes.

Additional compressor capacity will be built in Western Canada near Portage la Prairie, Man., and Moosomin, Regina and Cabri, Sask.

Scottish Shipyard Will Close Down

GLASGOW (AP) — The Scottish shipbuilding firm of Alexander Stephen and Sons says it will close down in August for lack of orders.

The company is part of the Linthouse Division of the Upper Clyde Shipbuilders, a group incorporating several shipbuilding firms.

The Stephen yard has a labor force of 2,200. Only 200 will be retained to work in other sections of the UCS.

June 30 Opening For Bank of B.C.

By AB KENT
Business Editor

A Victoria branch of the Bank of British Columbia to be opened concurrently with the main Vancouver branch is still part of the plan, according to a senior official.

General manager R. B. Burton said Tuesday there had been some delay in obtaining a suitable site here, but hopes were still oriented toward the opening of two branches on or about June 30.

Kent

Originally, the bank aimed at having branches open in Victoria and Vancouver early in the year. But the organization of staff and procedures proved more formidable than anticipated.

Recent speculation in Vancouver suggested the bank had given up trying to open a Victoria branch by June 30, having encountered too many problems in Vancouver.

"It is our wish—the directors, the president Mr. (A. E.) Hall, and myself—to be in operation in Victoria as soon as possible," Mr. Burton said.

But at the same time, he said "substantial renovations" to interior and exterior premises at 999 West Pender Street in Vancouver are required before the first branch can open, putting the earliest date at June 30.

The Victoria branch will follow at "about the same time or shortly thereafter," Mr. Burton said.

The Pender Street location was the original head office of the BBC. Executive offices have since moved to the Bentall Tower's 17th floor.

★ ★ ★

A generous offer from Mr. Hall's former employer, the Toronto-Dominion Bank, where he was third-ranking executive, will make the opening of the B.C. bank a lot easier.

Allen T. Lambert, president of Toronto-Dominion, has "donated" 2,500 forms necessary for the conduct of everyday banking business, thereby steering the new bank clear of a formidable paper barrier.

"It's like starting out with 112 years' experience," Mr. Burton said.

Substantial increase in 1967 net earnings was reported by Greyhound Lines of Canada Ltd. for the year ended Dec. 31.

On a per share basis the income last year amounted to 91 cents compared with 71 cents in 1966. But the company pointed out that a special item amounting to $431,350 added to income, a non-recurring sale.

Gross revenue last year was $29.67 million, boosted by Expo travel in confederation centennial year, as against $26.17 million the year before.

Net income before the special item was $3.78 million ($3.28 million), and $4.21 million including the non-recurring item.

Top executives of a major Canadian investment house are looking closely at the brewing industry and broadcasting equities for 1968.

The latter have shown remarkable growth in earning capacity in the last two years, partly through diversification into allied areas such as cablevision and other communication mediums.

It is partly the diversification factor that makes the brewing industry attractive.

For example, John Labatt Ltd., with its recent acquisition of Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. Ltd.—one of the largest milling and food processing firms in the Commonwealth—is showing the way to conglomeration of brewing, food processing and chemical industries.

★ ★ ★

Another firm deliberately involving itself with new facets of enterprise is General Bakeries Ltd., which operates bakeries across Canada.

The company recently spent between $4.5 and $5 million to acquire nearly all of Ogilvie's bakery operations, and according to president Joseph C. P. Conrad, it is still seeking new undertakings in baking or related fields.

The Ogilvie deal, of which details were not spelled out, is a long-term arrangement involving leases as well as outright purchase of assets and real estate.

It means, also, that a planned new Toronto bakery is postponed indefinitely for want of funds as well as the high cost of borrowed money.

Mr. Conrad's statement seems to clear up confusion a few weeks ago when the Labatt offer was still being considered by Ogilvie shareholders. It was rumored that General Foods were also offering to take over Ogilvie's, apparently a mix-up in the name.

★ ★ ★

Bad news for householders came from Mr. Conrad at the same time: higher wholesale bread prices this year are a "foregone conclusion" due to higher wages and fringe benefits desired by baking unions. These costs are usually passed right along to the breadwinner.

Confidence In Mexican Peso Shown

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican peso is emerging as one of the most stable currencies in the Western Hemisphere, foreign banking circles here say.

The peso already has gone the longest period in this century without a devaluation and appears to be stronger than 14 years ago, when its current parity of 12.50 to the U.S. dollar was established.

Evidence of how confidence in the peso has grown showed last December in Mexico following devaluation of the Britain pound sterling. Although there was a rush to buy gold, there was no exit of capital nor any heavy buying of dollars as previous international crises had precipitated.

Moreover, despite the uncertainty of last year and the high rates of interest in competitive world money markets, a record amount of foreign funds was channelled into the Mexican banking system.

APPOINTED secretary of the Canadian treasury board is Sol Simon Reisman, 58, deputy minister of industry, it was announced in Ottawa Tuesday. —(CP Photo)

Years in Red Face Columbia Cellulose

VANCOUVER (CP) — Columbia Cellulose, which showed a net loss of $4,116,024 in 1967, may not be out of the red for three or four years, president George W. Scrimshaw said in the annual report, released Tuesday.

The loss compares with net profit of $1,164,332 in 1966. It was attributed to starting difficulties at a new mill, a three-month strike at two mills, rising costs, pulp price conditions and other factors.

Net sales dropped to $58,494,758 from $64,396,661. The report said increases for pulp prices in the future will allow the company to amortize deferred costs out of earnings.

The new Skeena mill owned by Columbia and Svenska Cellulose Aktiebolaget of Sweden had loss from operations of $10,832,066 in the first 13 months of operation, plus $1,374,060 in pre-operating costs.

The total would be amortized over five years, the report said.

Kaiser Coal Names B.C. Operations Chief

OAKLAND, Calif. (CP)—Kaiser Coal Ltd. has announced appointment of Gerard E. Balsley as general manager and vice-president, responsible for mining operations in the Crowsnest area of southeastern British Columbia.

Kaiser Coal, a wholly owned subsidiary of Kaiser Steel Corp., has a contract for delivery of more than 45,000,000 tons of coal for the Japanese steel industry. It also serves domestic markets.

Seasonal Unemployment Hits Male Force Harder

A special report shows men are more affected than women by seasonal unemployment in B.C.

Trade and Industrial Development Minister Ralph Loffmark released the report Monday.

Material in the report compares male and female labor forces in the province, concluding that women endure fewer job fluctuations than men.

"On average," said the report, "male employment reaches a peak in January and then declines steadily to a low point in September, rising rather sharply again before the end of the year.

"The peak of unemployment among women also tends to occur in January, but does not decline nearly as rapidly. The low point is reached in August, rising slowly during the autumn but decreasing during the Christmas shopping season."

Average unemployment for men is higher than for women, although in a given month the rate for women could exceed or equal the male rate, the document said.

HIGH POINT

February 1961 was the highest point for male unemployment in B.C., a rate of 15.8 per cent, while the low point was reached in September 1965 with 2.8 per cent.

Extremes for women were closer, 8.8 per cent in January 1961 and 2.9 per cent in April 1966.

In January of this year the rates of unemployment were 9 per cent for men and 5 per cent for women, higher than a year ago but below the eight-year average.

The labor force growth since 1960 has been more noticeable for women, a rate of 7.1 per cent compared with only 2.9 per cent for men, the figures show.

Women have been taking a greater part in the labor force since 1960, when there was a participation of 25.2 per cent. Last year this figure was 31.1 per cent, or .4 per cent higher than the national average, but 5.4 per cent below the U.S. average in 1967.

ONTARIO CIVIL RIGHTS PROBE REPORT

Shocking Abuses Found In Operation of Laws

TORONTO (CP) — The state "is the guardian of the right to be free," says a royal commission report which advises a massive overhaul of laws that affect the civil rights of Ontario citizens.

In tabling the report of former chief justice J. C. McRuer Tuesday in the legislature, Premier John Robarts said an intensive study of its 559 recommendations will begin at once and will lead "to the application of the principles and recommendations embodied in it."

McRUER
. . . four-year study

Principal recommendations:

—More control of police methods;

—A full review of land expropriation procedures;

—A shakeup of the system of justices of the peace;

—Compensation for those hurt while trying to help police;

—A redrafting of the Public Inquiries Act;

—A self-governing press council;

—A more efficient court system.

Implicit in the recommendations of the three-volume, 1,331-page report of the commissioner is a constant emphasis on the possible abuse of power vested in the government.

4 YEARS IN MAKING

"State power is something in the nature of a trust conferred by the people on all those in positions of authority," said the report, which took the 77-year-old former chief justice of Ontario your years to prepare.

In pleading for greater protection of the individual and more control of the power of government and police, he said his inquiry, involving hearings in all parts of Ontario, had uncovered a number of "shocking abuses" in which laws infringe on citizens' rights.

Powers which allow police and other officials to stop and search individuals and to enter their premises to inspect and carry away personal property are a violation of civil rights, he wrote.

The report said the Liquor Licence Act provides "an extreme example of reckless legislative indifference to the rights of the individual."

It said that under the act, the Liquor Licence Board of Ontario may make any investigation it deems necessary in the case of a person holding a liquor licence "or any of his servants, agents or employees."

When such an investigation is about to be undertaken, the board may authorize and inspect or seize "any documents, records or other property belonging to, in the possession or under the control of any person that the board considers may be relevant to the investigation. . . ."

POWERS UNWARRANTED

"All concept of civil rights is abandoned," said Mr. McRuer. "No tribunal should be invested with the powers that are conferred on the liquor licence board."

The power to arrest without a warrant under the Highway Traffic Act and the Liquor Control Act should be restricted and warrants should be issued only when there is evidence a summons will not be effective, said the report.

Mr. McRuer's dozens of recommendations to provide the citizen with safeguards against the exercise of arbitrary authority included a proposal for appeals from the decisions of investigating officers and a careful statement of the rights of persons under investigation.

Conditions for granting bail should be made easier and "where there is little likelihood that the accused will not appear to stand his trial, the requirements of bail should be kept to a minimum."

A seven-man lands tribunal should be created by the provincial government to set prices for expropriated property, the report said. Its decisions could be appealed by affected property owners.

The report, which called the power of expropriation an infringement of civil liberties, made 53 recommendations aimed at curbing abuses.

DISMISS ALL JPs

The report recommended that all justices of the peace be dismissed and those qualified be reappointed.

In recommending an overhaul of the courts, it said the province should assume responsibility, including financial, for administration of juvenile and family courts. Only lawyers should be appointed magistrates.

Compensation should be provided for persons imprisoned for crimes of which they are subsequently proved to be not guilty. Compensatory payments would go to claimants whose innocence was clearly established by a tribunal to be comprised of Ontario Supreme Court judges.

In suggesting a self-governing press council to police irresponsible, unjust and unfair publication of news and comment, the commission urged that all news media come under its control.

It would have the specific objective of protecting the right to a fair trial of anyone whose guilt is indicated in the media before charges are laid.

The report made no suggestions as to the council's make-up, beyond suggesting that it be "self-governing."

LET HOPELESS PATIENT DIE —BARNARD

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Dr. Christiaan Barnard said Monday surgeons must have the right to withdraw supportive therapy from dying patients whose organs are destined for transplantation.

"Doctors are asked to cure, not just keep alive," the 44-year-old South African heart specialist said. "They must have the right to withdraw the therapy when there is no hope for the patient."

Barnard, who has performed two of the world's six human heart transplants, told 500 Commonwealth Club members he finds moral objections to heart transplantation unconvincing.

"The authority to decide legal and ethical implications in cardiac transplants rests with the medical profession alone," he said. "Doctors have one obligation—to treat their patients until no further means are available."

Education TV Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — Manitoba Tuesday recommended that the CBC assume responsibility for educational television in Canada and that an exclusive ETV network be established. But the provincial brief to the Commons broadcasting committee emphasized that while the ETV network should be part of the publicly-owned broadcasting corporation, it must remain physically independent to avoid conflict with commercial television interests.

SEIZED BY 'THREE YOUNG MEN'

Cuba to Release Hijacked Airliner

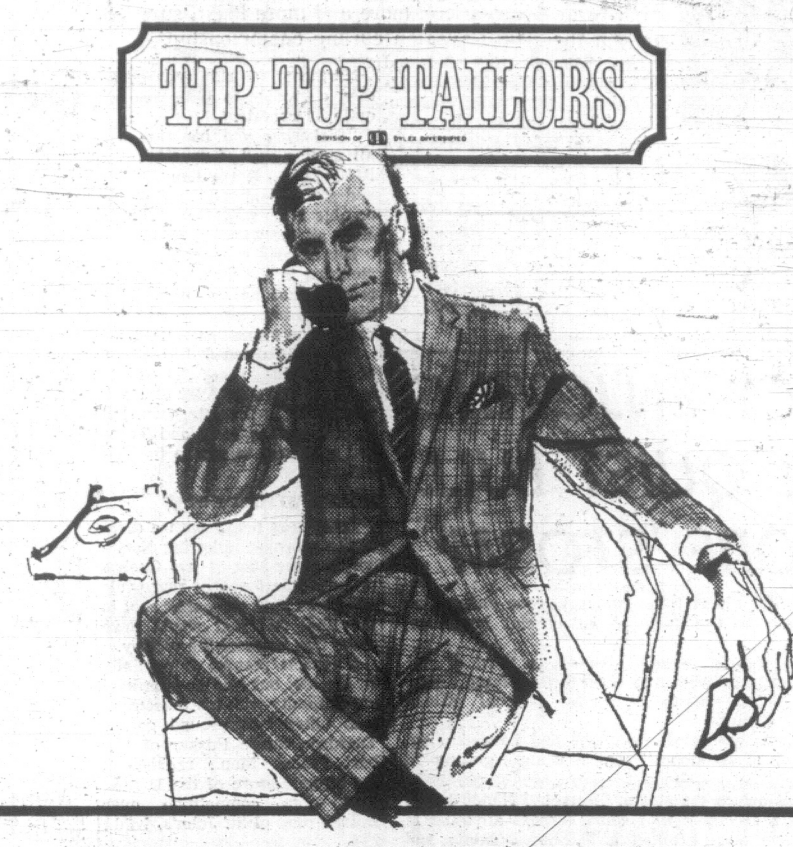

HAVANA (UPI) — A Colombian airliner hijacked and forced to fly to Cuba with 29 passengers will be permitted to leave the Communist island today, Cuban officials said.

Authoriteis in Santiago, Cuba, where the Avianca Airline DC4 landed Tuesday, said "three young men" commanded the pilot to go to Cuba during a flight from Riohacha to Barranquilla on Colombia's northern coast.

They did not indicate why the men hijacked the plane or whether they would be allowed to remain in Cuba. They said the remaining passengers and four crew members toured downtown Santiago and spent the night in a hotel.

In Bogota, a newspaper said the hijackers were Colombian guerrillas trying to get their critically ill leader to Cuba for urgent medical treatment. The report was not confirmed.

(The newspaper, El Vespertino, identified the leader as Ricardo Quelara Parada, 40, head of the underground "Popular Liberation Army."

NON-CONFORMIST TO GET THE AXE

A Japanese plum tree that couldn't conform with its Mountain Ash and Maple neighbors will get the axe this month.

The Victoria parks and beautification committee made the recommendation to fall the non-conforming tree Tuesday over the protests of parks administrator Herb Warren and Ald. Ian Stewart.

The decision was made after two residents of Basil Avenue complained that the flowering plum tree just didn't fit in with its neighbors.

Ald. Clyde Savage described the tree as "awful looking, towering up to the sky."

Mr. Warren agreed that the tree didn't conform, but he added that he felt that the residents of 1230 and 1234 Basil Avenue were asking for its removal to ensure a better view from their property.

"We don't remove trees for views, if we do we are going to get into trouble," he said. "We have looked into this complaint before and decided the tree should stay."

But Mayor Hugh Stephen said he felt it better out of the way and the committee, with the exception of Ald. Stewart, agreed.

B.C. Rink Tied for Third Spot After Costly Miss by McCubbin

KELOWNA—Bob Pickering and his Saskatchewan rink from Avonlea look more and more like a sure bet to win the 1968 Canadian curling championship.

The Western rink defeated Alan Smith of Charlottetown 11-8 Tuesday for its third consecutive victory and set the scene for a clash today with Alberta's Ron Northcott and his unbeaten Calgary team.

"Ron and I have met a lot of times," said Pickering, "but I think we can beat him if we can keep up this steady curling. I'm getting used to the ice now and the boys are curling well for me."

RON NORTHCOTT
. . . studies situation

Northcott, world and Canadian champion in 1966, was not quite as confident.

"Pickering and his rink are all curling well. I consider it a 50-50 game. If we like the ice and get a good start, we should be able to do well. But it will be close all the way."

The Alberta rink recorded two victories in the third and fourth rounds Tuesday, but didn't look nearly as impressive as the Saskatchewan team.

Northcott downed Bill Tracy of Bagotville, Que., 9-8 in the morning and Jim Ayer of Fredericton 7-6 in the afternoon, but in both games Ayer and Trace had a chance to win in the last end.

HEAVY WITH A DRAW

Tracy was heavy with a draw in the morning, allowing Northcott a clear shot at two Quebec rocks on the four-foot ring while Ayer was light on a split shot in the final end that would have given him two and the victory.

Northcott blamed it partially on the ice, but said he was having difficulty with his takeouts.

In other fourth-round games Tuesday, Burke Parker of Gilbert Plains, Man., racked up the highest score of the 11-rink, round-robin competition over Bill Piercey of St. John's, Nfld., 22-5.

Dr. Don Gilbert of St. Thomas, Ont., defeated Don Fleming of Halifax 7-4 in a close fourth-round match while Bob McCubbin of Richmond, B.C., downed Tracy 10-8.

In the morning, Smith edged Ayer 8-7, Fleming downed McCubbin 9-8, Gilbert beat Piercey 11-8 and Parker swamped Herb Pile's Northern Ontario rink from Geraldton 14-7.

B.C. TIED FOR THIRD

The results left Alberta with a 4-0 record while Saskatchewan is 3-0. Prince Edward Island, British Columbia, Ontario and Manitoba have one loss, Northern Ontario and Nova Scotia have two defeats while New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Quebec are without a victory.

Tuesday marked the end of three consecutive comeback victories for Smith's P.E.I. rink.

Unbeaten going against Saskatchewan, the magic finally wore off and Smith dropped two threeenders after taking an early 2-0 lead.

"None of us curled well," said the 27-year-old Smith. "We just couldn't get going. The ice was swingy and Pickering caught on to it early."

McCubbin also had his unbeaten streak stopped Tuesday when he dropped a tight decision to Fleming. The British Columbia skip was shaky through out the game and missed a 12th-end draw that could have forced Fleming into a takeout.

Instead he slipped through the house and gave the Halifax rink the victory with a blank final end.

The five-day competition ends Friday and the winner will represent Canada at the World Curling Championships March 20-23 at Pointe Claire, Que.

NANCY ENJOYING THAT QUIET LULL BEFORE 'STORM'

ROSSLAND — The nicest thing Nancy Greene enjoyed on her arrival home was the lack of an official hometown welcome.

Oh, yes, there was a parade. Almost a third of the population in the Trail-Rossland area cheered the Olympic gold medal-winner in skiing. Apart from the parade, official functions were non-existant.

After almost three weeks of receptions and hand-shaking, Canada's pert "tiger of the slopes" confessed she's getting "a bit tired."

It may be a lull before the storm. Thursday, Nancy heads for Vancouver and a reception that could surpass anything in history. Schools have been granted a half-day holiday, and Premier W. A. C. Bennett plans to ride in the car alongside Canada's only medal-winner at the recent Winter Games.

Vancouver Mayor Tom Campbell estimated that 100,000 will see Vancouver's parade honoring Nancy.

But, at the moment, home is "appreciated."

Canucks Furl Clippers' Sail

VANCOUVER (CP) — Baltimore Clippers of the American Hockey League suffered their third loss in five games against Western League opposition as they were dumped 7-1 by Vancouver Canucks Tuesday night before 5,867 fans.

Canucks scored two unanswered goals in each of the first and second periods to grab a 4-0 lead and then outscored the visitors 3-1 in the final frame to skate away with the easy victory.

Billy McNeill led the Vancouver attack with a goal and three assists while Mike Laughton, Gord Vejprava, Stan Gilbertson, Bruce Carmichael, Phil Maloney and Dave Duke each added a goal.

Tom McCarthy replied for Baltimore.

The Clippers finished up their five-game tour of the west with a win, a tie and three losses.

Victory put Canucks four points ahead of fifth-place Phoenix in the battle for the fourth and last playoff spot.

Bell Horses Enter Belmont

NEW YORK (AP) — Four horses from Max Bell's Golden West Farms in Calgary Tuesday were nominated for the 100th running of the Belmont Stakes, June 1.

The four Canadian horses are Merger, LeVent d'hiver, Badnik and Younger Son.

A total of 153 three-year-olds were nominated for the 1½-mile Belmont, the longest, oldest and last of thoroughbred racing's triple crown events, which will be run at Belmont Park.

Same Result In Third Test

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (Reuters) — The third England-West Indies cricket test match ended Tuesday—a draw like the other two so far this year.

The West Indians scored 284 runs for the loss of six wickets on the fifth day of the match Tuesday.

But slow play and time lost because of rain in the early stages of the game ruled out much chance of either side gaining a victory.

Clive Lloyd scored 113 runs for the West Indies Tuesday and was not out when time ran out.

Earlier Tuesday, England added 37 runs to its first innings total to reach 449 and lead by 100 runs before the West Indies took its second crack at the batting.

READY FOR BIG SPIN

Spinning basketball on fingertip could be least of Dave Morgan's (left) talents. All-star choice while helping Oak Bay to Vancouver Island high school championship last year, Morgan and centre Tom Holmes (right) hopefully look forward to spinning out another title for Bays and coach Gary Taylor. Defending champs face Port Alberni in first-round action at University gym Friday night. Annual hoop gala winds up Saturday.

Killy Affair Flares

Skiing Probe May Help Start New Pro Circuit

By The Canadian Press

French skiing ace Jean-Claude Killy's amateur status is being questioned by the International Skiing Federation.

But the federation's probings may see an exodus of the world's top skiers for a more richly rewarding professional ski circuit.

Killy, winner of three alpine medals at this year's Winter Olympics in Grenoble, France, has long been a rumored recipient of prizes and money over and above the amount allotted under Olympic rules.

The federation alleged Monday that Killy had accepted money from a French publication, Paris Match, for exclusive use of his pictures and has given him until Friday "to show cause why he should not be suspended."

CHARGES DENIED

Killy and the publication both deny the charges being investigated by the French National Ski Federation. Maurice Martel, federation president, said in St. Gervais he was confident Killy could prove his amateur status and thus not be stripped of his international honors and not forbidden to compete in meets sanctioned by the FIS and its affiliates.

But it all became almost academic when French skier Leo Lacroix announced in Bijon, France, that he, Killy nad Guy Perillat were turning professional next year anyhow.

Lacroix didn't go into details, but in Montreal Verne Anderson, coach of the Canadian team in Grenoble, did shed some light on the matter.

FUTURE REVIEWED

Anderson, who retired as team coach following the Games to devote full time to his duties as vice-president of a French firm manufacturing ski boots, said the Killy investigation could be decisive in launching a new professional skiing circuit next season.

Reviewing the future of alpine skiing in the light of the investigation, Anderson said that "the top amateur skiers in the world have been talking about forming a professional circuit for next season" and that the confrontation over commercialism "could just be the deciding factor."

"There is heavy pressure from the manufacturers to bring about pro racing. They have millions of dollars invested in the sport and under current amateur rules are entitled to little or no return."

He said the professional circuit, so far planned only for men, would be backed financially by United States television and be built on a system of manufacturers teams.

SERIOUS RAMIFICATIONS

Anderson said that Canada's Nancy Greene "could make a fortune" as a manufacturer's representative any time she wants to give up competitive skiing. He added, however, it was unlikely the 24-year-old Rossland, B.C., student planned any such move in the foreseeable future.

Nancy, the 1967 women's world ski champion, was a gold and silver medalist for Canada at the recent Olympics.

An adverse decision for Killy Friday would strip him of his international honors and probably bring about a similar investigation by the International Olympic Committee, inevitably leading to withdrawal of his Olympic honors as well.

HINDERS B.C. PLANS

It also would put a serious crimp in plans for an international meet at Rossland March 28-31 at which Killy is expected to lead the French national team.

The 24-year-old whiz now leads the men's race for world championship by 35 points and the Red Mountain meet is the second-last on the championship tour.

At Pound Ridge, N.Y., Bjoern Ciellstroem, chairman of the FIS eligibility committee, said it was his understanding that "Killy made a statement before some 50 newspaper men that he had received money for use of his picture."

"If his explanation is not satisfactory, there would be a poll of council to decide on any disciplinary action. He would face suspension or disqualification."

FIS amateur rules deny competitors the right to receive any money through use of their reputation or standing.

Traded Players Give Games Extra Interest

By The Canadian Press

There may be more important games in the National Hockey League tonight, but the armchair coaches will be watching with interest the games in New York and Toronto.

The Rangers entertain Detroit Red Wings in their new Madison Square Garden while Toronto is host to Philadelphia Flyers in two of five games.

It will be the first chance fans have to see how players involved in the surprise Toronto-Detroit trade Monday fare in their new uniforms.

Frank Mahovlich, Peter Stemkowski and Gary Unger went to Detroit in exchange for centre Normie Ullman and wingers Floyd Smith and Paul Henderson.

START AS UNIT

Toronto coach Punch Impach, with his usual flare of flamboyancy, hinted Tuesday he'd play the Ullman-Smith-Henderson unit to start tonight's game against the Flyers.

There were reports that Mahovlich will line up with Gordie Howe and Alex Delvecchio to give the Wings, last in the Eastern Division, one of hockey's most potent scoring lines.

Other games on tap tonight have Montreal Canadiens visiting Oakland Seals, Chicago Black Hawks at home against Boston Bruins in a battle for third place in the Eastern Division, and Pittsburgh Penguins at St. Louis against the Blues.

HABS WIN 6-2

The Canadiens will be looking to pad their Eastern lead following a 6-2 victory over Los Angeles Kings Tuesday in the only scheduled game.

The Canadiens, who snapped a four-game winless streak with the victory, now lead New York by five points. Chicago is another two points back, one ahead of Boston.

The Canadiens spread their goals liberally Tuesday with Ralph Backstrom, Jean Beliveau, Bobby Rousseau, John Ferguson, Gilles Tremblay and Yvan Cournoyer sharing scoring honors.

The Kings got both their goals from centre Ed Joyal in the second period after the Canadiens had built a 3-0 first-period lead before 14,450 fans, the second largest crowd to watch a hockey game in the new Los Angeles Forum.

DAMAGE SUIT SET BACK FOR MAY 20 HEARING

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Coach Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens and player Claude Provost were arraigned Tuesday on charges of assaulting a Los Angeles fan with a hockey stick during a National Hockey League game here last Nov. 19.

They appeared in municipal court and were ordered by Judge Joan Dempsey Klein to appear May 20 for preliminary hearing.

The complaint was signed Nov. 24 by Bernard Weisman, 39, a salesman from Northridge, Calif., who said he suffered head injuries.

Weisman and Margaret G. Ottens, 37, of Granada Hills, also sued the two Canadians, the Montreal and Los Angeles hockey clubs, the National Hockey League and the city of Los Angeles. Weisman asked $405,000 damages and Mrs. Ottens $250,000 in the civil action filed Monday.

Neither Blake nor Provost would comment on the case Tuesday.

Hot Rangers Popping In All Departments . . .

MONTREAL (CP) — The resurgence of New York Rangers to within striking distance of first place in the National Hockey League's East Division is reflected in the latest scoring statistics.

The Rangers, with 75 points, trail Montreal Canadiens by only three points.

And if right winger Rod Gilbert continues his torrid second-half pace he could be the first Ranger to win the NHL scoring title since Bryan Hextall and Lynn Patrick finished 1-2 in the 1941-42 season.

Gilbert and Chicago's Stan Mikita share the lead with 73 points each. Another Hawk, Bobby Hull, and Gilbert's linemate, Jean Ratelle, are tied for third with 71 points.

New York's Ed Giacomin, who has given up only four goals in New York's last five games, recorded two straight shutouts last week to take over the lead in that department with a total of seven.

Scoring leaders (including Tuesday's game):

New Rule Losing Favor

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Cal Hubbard, American League umpire-in-chief, said Sunday that baseball's new spitball rule doesn't seem workable and he doubts it will be enforced.

The rule prohibits a pitcher from putting his hands to his mouth. It stipulates that a pitcher will receive one warning and that subsequent failure to comply will result in ejection from the game.

"One thing I can guarantee is that the umpires don't want the rule the way it is now," said Hubbard.

Hubbard, a member of the rules cimmittee, said he would much prefer legalization of the spitball.

"I can't understand why the general managers and managers were so insistent for this change," he said. "They were the ones who really pushed it through.

"I just don't think umpires are going to be putting a pitcher out of a game because he goes to his mouth. For instance, what if Joe Horlen Chicago White Sox puts his hands to his mouth in the first inning and he's warned about it. Then, say he does it again in the seventh — and he's pitching a no-hitter.

"I don't think an umpire is going to throw him out under those circumstances. The new rule just doesn't seem workable."

IMPROVED PLAY ON GREENS . . . . . BOOSTS KNUDSON'S CONFIDENCE

New Putting Stance, Irons Help Home-Lover

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Will sudden success-consecutive victories on the money-paved professional golf road-spoil George Knudson?

Not if that means that the pursuit of gold will ever replace the Canadian redhead's family as his first love.

A real homebody, he confessed during a warmup for this week's $100,000 Doral Open that: "When I walk out that door in Toronto, I feel like turning around and going right back in again."

Although he is the year's leading money winner, Knudson says he'll go right on with his practice of jumping the tour for weeks at a time to be with his wife and children.

In fact, after next week's tournament at Orlando, he'll go home to sit it out until the Masters at Augusta, Ga.

In successive victories at Phoenix and Tucson, the 30-year-old Knudson ran his bank account for the year to $50,310, including $43,662 in official tour tournaments.

Never before had he captured two tournaments in an entire season on the main tour. In nine years as a pro, he had taken home the winner's check only four times. His biggest money season was 1967 when he won $40,832 in PGA events.

The reasons for Winnipeg-born Knudson's sudden climb to the top include better physical condition, a switch in his putting stance, and a change to lightweight aluminum clubs.

The congenial 145-pounder always wears dark glasses to protect his eyes against acute sensitivity to sunlight. Knudson built up his strength with an exercise program and stands up better in the tournament grind.

"I've never before been able to contend week after week," he said. "This year, in five out of seven tournaments, I had a chance to take it all."

The change in his putting position, bringing the ball more to the centre of his stance, brought a remarkable improvement in his accuracy on the greens.

"I used to miss them from four feet in," he said. "I don't do that any more. My confidence has improved so much I feel like I can roll in every putt."

The aluminum club shafts, Knudson added, "have given me better control. I'm driving farther and I've been able to spin the ball better on my iron shots. I can go at the pin more aggressively."

This will help him, especially here, because an iron shot high to the green needs plenty of backspin to avoid skidding over into the notorious water hazards backing up many of the greens on the 7,028-yard Doral course.

Knudson said he will continue to play mostly on the winter tour, when blizzards are howling in Canada.

"I don't mind leaving Toronto so much in the winter."

Rather quietly, golf has taken root, along with the new sod, around the University of Victoria campus.

A six-man team composed of undergraduates will represent Uvic in an intercollegiate series to be played Friday and Saturday. Opposition will come from a 12-man University of B.C. team, with matches scheduled at Uplands Friday (at noon) and Saturday at Victoria Golf Club (at 1:30 p.m.).

Victoria's team stepped forward for the first time in January. Playing frozen Vancouver courses, UBC edged Victoria 2-1.

Victoria's team includes Roger Bishop, Brian Stott, Noel Pumfrey, Chris Hicks, Bob Davis, Jim Furmston and Al Cliff, president of the Varsity golf club.

UBC's team is liberally sprinkled with former B.C. junior team members (Gary Smith, Ross Ellison and Martin Zlotnik) and a former Canadian junior champion (Jim Seed). Also on board are highly-regarded Led Dobson, Harry White and Ron Fratkin.

While theirs seems to be a humble beginning, Victoria could develop an interesting collegiate golf program.

No other Canadian university is blessed with a more suitable, year-round golfing climate.

Three courses—Uplands, Cedar Hill and Oak Bay—are practically in the university's back yard.

Uvic, reports Cliff, has been extended invitations for matches with U.S. universities in the Pacific Northewst. These were declined, said Cliff, because the dates came too close to final exams.

A bigger and better competition schedule could be in the offing next year, however.

One of the most delighted champions around Vancouver these days is Art Donaldson, long-time Victoria resident who tended the course at Gorge Vale before being lured away by Capilano.

He recently beat out a field of 372 rivals to win the International Golf Course Superintendents' Association championship. The big field included many pros who also double as course superintendents.

Donaldson won by posting a pair of 75s over the tough Carmel Valley and Spyglass Hill courses in California.

"Victories like this are priceless to me," said cigar-chomping Arthur. "Until I won this thing, most of those guys down there never heard of Vancouver or British Columbia. That makes you feel kind of special."

'Imports' Help Quebec Police To 'Spiel Crown

BRANDON (CP) — Curlers from the Quebec Provincial Police force stayed home this year but won the policemen's Dominion curling championship Tuesday when their western representatives won the premier event of the two-day bonspeil.

The QPP, represented by skip Don Slager, third Bob Pettigrew, second Don Williamson and lead Kel Fitzpatrick, all of the Regina City Police, defeated British Columbia, represented by Fred Ellis and his Vancouver city squad, 8-3, in the final to win the first event and the Crump Trophy.

Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island also did not send rinks and were represented by teams from other provinces.

Expulsion Stains Stanley's Record

LONDON (AP)—Port Vale, the soccer team managed by Sir Stanley Matthews, will be expelled from the English League at the end of the season for making illegal payments to players.

The sentence was announced by the management committee of the league following a joint inquiry by the league and the English Football Association.

It was the first blot on the long career of Matthews, 53, who had the reputation of being the first gentleman of English soccer. He never was admonished by a referee or sent off the field during his 33 years as a player.

SOCCER KNIGHT

Matthews retired from playing three years ago and was the first professional soccer player to be knighted. He became general manager of Port Vale, a Fourth Division team.

Expulsion is the most extreme penalty possible under the league rules.

Port Vale can apply for re-election, and it would then be up to the other clubs in the league to decide by voting whether Matthews' team can compete again next season.

The last team to be expelled was Leeds United, 49 years ago.

The league fined Port Vale an additional 2,000 pounds ($4,800). It had already been fined 2,000 pounds by the FA.

Matthews and his officials were found guilty of paying illegal signing-on fees to new players and illegal bonuses to the team for winning matches.

Matthews was not available for comment.

Harris Returns To Stamp Camp

CALGARY (CP) — Wayne Harris, twice named the outstanding lineman in the Canadian Football League, has signed for his eighth season with the Calgary Stampeders.

Harris has been named to the Western Football Conference all-star team seven times and to the CFL all-star team five times. He was the CFL's most outstanding lineman in 1965 and 1966.

Playboy Pitcher Sees Handwriting

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — Houston Astros' pitcher Bo Belinsky doesn't think he will make the team this season.

But the colorful left-hander thinks he might be traded in a deal that would be satisfactory to both Belinsky and the team.

"I got to really feel I won't make the club," he said. "It's pretty well set. They've got a lot of fine young pitchers in camp.

"But I think they have hopes some favorable deal might be worked out that would be good for both of us," he added. "Atlanta, for instance, could use some left-handed pitching. So could some others. This is how things stand. . . .

"I saw the handwriting on the wall," he continued. "I'm 31 years old and they put me on the Oklahoma City roster after last season. I can put two and two together."

OWNS DUDE RANCH

Baseball's playboy pitcher who tossed a no-hitter for the California Angels in 1962 says he now is a partner in a dude ranch operation in Hawaii.

Belinsky had a 3-9 record with Houston last year and has compiled a big league career mark of 28-48.

"I'm a little disappointed I haven't done better in the game," he said. "Maybe I should have. But there were a lot of factors involved, which is neither here nor there."

Belinsky said he did not want to turn his back "on the game I basically love."

"It has certain qualities that satisfy me when nothing else does."

Canadian Sloop Closing Swiftly

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — The 73-foot yawl Bolero milked every gust of power from five to seven knot winds Tuesday to pull ahead slightly in the slowest ever sailing of the Miami-to-Nassau yacht races.

Ted Turner of Atlanta, skipper of the Class A yawl, managed only a small lead in the race and at nightfall could glimpse the sails of a dozen boats in hot pursuit.

One of the strongest pursuers was the Class B Canadian sloop Red Jacket, owned by Perry Connolly of Toronto. The Red Jacket has won two races on the 1968 Southern Ocean Racing Conference circuit.

Horsemen Issue Threat

WINNIPEG (CP) — Horse owners have unanimously agreed to boycott Assiniboia Downs race track in Winnipeg this spring if the provincial government does not give them financial assistance.

The vote was taken at a meeting of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association after Jim Cartlidge, a committee chairman, said he was confident some provincial aid would be forthcoming.

Association members earlier agreed to back their executive on any action taken to improve their lot. They had requested the province to reduce the 10 per cent parimutuel tax it now collects on horse racing.

Agriculture-minister Harry Enns rejected a tax change.

The minister has received recommendations on alternatives from the Manitoba Racing Commission and is to present the matter to the provincial cabinet this week.

Clay's Boxing 'Corpse' Showing Signs of Life

NEW YORK (AP) — Boxing bubbled with revived spirit today and looked ahead to a series of top calibre matches.

The highly successful twin title show in the new Madison Square Garden Monday night, in which Joe Frazier stopped Buster Mathis and Nino Benvenuti edged Emile Griffith, may have touched off a fresh boom in the often kicked-around sport.

Cassius Clay said boxing would die when he left. Well, the corpse had a lively time Monday night when 18,096 fans paid from $10 to $100 in contributing to a record indoor gate of $658,503.

Frazier collected $175,000 and New York, Massachusetts, Maine and Illinois recognition as heavyweight champion while stopping Mathis with a short, jolting left hook to the temple in the 11th round.

The Philadelphia slugger's manager, Yancey Durham, talked about possible lucrative matches with the winner of the Jerry-Quarry-Jimmy Ellis World Boxing Association title fight April 27, and with Floyd Patterson, Boone Kirkman of Seattle, Wash., Manuel Ramos of Mexico and Argentine Eduardo Corletti.

REGAINS CROWN

Benvenuti, back at the top as middleweight champion, may take on Don Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, Luis Rodriguez of Miami, Fla., of Gypsy Joe Harris of Philadelphia in his next title fight.

Durham said the unbeaten Frazier, winner of 20 fights including 18 knockouts, would have to get at least equal terms with the WBA winner.

Harry Markson and Teddy Brenner, who head the Garden's boxing team, said they have signed light-heavyweight champion Dick Tiger and Bob Foster, the knockout contender from Washington, for a title bout in the Gardens, possibly for May 24.

They also said they hope to make a Patterson-Kirkman fight for May 6 and a bout between Griffith and Italy's Sandro Mazzinghi, the former world junior middleweight champion, for either May or June.

"We also think Mathis can hold his own with any other heavyweight other than Frazier and would like to get a fight for him," said Markson.

Durham, who also manages the colorful Harris, said he would like to match him in a title fight against either Curtis Cokes, the welterweight champion from Dallas, or Benvenuti.

City Lineups Chosen For Bowling Rolloffs

Victoria fivepin bowlers will be represented by seven men and seven women in the Senior Pacific Coast zone championships May 18-20 at Gibson's Recreations.

Qualifiers were determined following a 20-game rolloff. Games were rolled at five different alleys.

Joining these teams will be two Victoria "pacer" teams composed of the eighth to 14th place finishers in the rolloffs. Both teams will compete with eight other cities, including Burnaby, North Shore, New Westminster, Port Moody, Port Coquitlam, Port Alberni and North Surrey.

CARDIGAN BAY

Pacer New King

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Cardigan Bay became the richest horse in harness racing history Tuesday night by winning the $30,000 Provincial Cup at Windsor Raceway.

The New Zealand-bred pacer picked up $15,000 and boosted his lifetime earnings to $932,571, surpassing the retired Bret Hanover's earnings of $922,616.

It was the second straight provincial Cup victory for Cardigan Bay, purchased by driver Stanley Dancer of New Egypt, Pa., and Irve Berkemeyer of North Milford, N.J., in 1964 for $100,000.

The then 12-year-old gelding had earned $130,000 on New Zealand and Australian tracks and owned a time of 1:57.2.

LENGTHENS LEAD

Driven by Dancer Tuesday, Cardigan Bay covered the mile in 2.00 1-5 and won going away by 6½ lengths. Last year, he was timed in 2:01.

Jesta Hill, owned by A. B. Hanson of Santa Monica, Calif., and driven by Jacques Grenier, was second while Dancing David, owned in partnership by Farrington Stables of Richwood, Ohio, and the Arnold Cattle Co., of Geneseo, Ill., and driven by Herve Filion of Montreal was third.

Dancer, 40, who first discovered Cardigan Bay from a picture in a harness horse trade magazine, was enthusiastic after the triumph.

EASY VICTORY

"I knew that my horse had it from the start," he said. "I was not interested in breaking records, but in winning. When we passed the field at the three-quarter pole, I knew we had it won, so I went after a time record."

The gelding is used to a heavy schedule, according to Dancer.

"The first time I saw Cardigan Bay in New Zealand," he said at a victory party, "he jogged 17 miles. Then he took a 10-minute break and came back for two more miles. He did the last one in 2:02 3-5 without a whip. Down under, that kind of work is routine.

EDUCATION WEEK

If Child Can't Attend School . . . the School Goes to the Child

Directions in education is the theme in this series of articles in which six local teachers offer their views on an aspect of their choice during Education Week.

By ANN M. OAKLEY

In an urban area such as Greater Victoria, it is normal to assume that all children attend the public school in their district to receive their formal education.

However, in some instances this is not so. Instead, we find the school going to the child!

This program, introduced by the Greater Victoria school board in September of 1961, is known as the "home visiting" service. It serves all children who are not physically able to make even the shortest journey to school.

It was designed specially for children confined to their homes for a period of three weeks or more and who would otherwise miss much of their schooling. Most of these "shut-ins" are victims of accidents; others are recovering from lengthy and serious illness or operations. However, these are also those who are handicapped physically and have little hope of ever attending school regularly.

It is the intention and aim of the "home visiting teacher" to keep these pupils up-to-date with their lessons and with the co-operation of the classroom teacher this goal is generally achieved.

However, no child is enrolled without the permission of the medical authorities; thus the physical as well as the educational progress of each child is closely observed.

The time spent with each pupil and the frequency of visits vary according to the number of children enrolled and the age of the child.

Primary children are visited at least three times a week; intermediate grade pupils twice a week and senior grade students once a week. Each child in primary and intermediate grades can count on at least one hour and a half of concentrated, personal attention each visit whereas the senior students receive longer periods of study.

This service covers the whole of the Victoria school district and as so much time is spent in travelling from one home to another, it can be readily understood why the enrolment must be limited. A larger "class" would mean less instruction for each individual pupil.

Mrs. Oakley's experience teaching all levels from primary to senior secondary had equipped her for her role as visiting teacher. Two of her three children have followed her into the teaching profession.

June Finish 'Not Good Enough For Me'

A tentative end-of-May date for completion of road and sewer work in the vicinity of the Empress Hotel isn't good enough for Ald. Clyde Savage.

City engineer James Garnett told the Victoria public works committee Tuesday that the rough work involved in street widening on Belleville and Government and the laying of a sewer line along Belleville, Government and Humboldt would be completed by the end of May.

"That sounds to me like a June finish," said Ald. Savage. "And that's not good enough for me. I want to see the entire project definitely finished by the end of May before the tourists start hitting town."

Mr. Garnett said he felt the work would be completed before the end of May deadline but pointed out that his department had no control over the weather.

"If the weather holds good we should be finished in time," he told the committee. "But we can't control the weather and that will be an increasingly important factor."

The road-widening program plus the installation of new street lights and the moving of the Empress sprinkling system will cost $58,380.

In a written report to the committee city manager Dennis Young said the installation of new street lights would not affect the cluster lamps on the Causeway.

But it would, he reported, eliminate the Chamber of Commerce lighted-word sign announcing coming events.

Funds for the project, which includes a re-alignment of driveways leading to the Empress, will be obtained from $76,000 in the capital budget originally earmarked for a cantilever balcony along the Inner Harbor.

"This project is no longer felt necessary or desirable and the transferred funds will be more appropriately used for the above," Mr. Young's report stated.

CALM IN COOP

But Also Tough On Table

A psychiatrist complained in the legislature Tuesday that use of tranquillizers in the poultry industry not only makes chickens calm in the coop but tough on the table.

"They taste like rubber," said Dr. Ray Parkinson (NDP—Vancouver Burrard) during debate on agriculture estimates.

He said tranquillizers are apparently used to increase the weight and moisture content of chickens and expressed fear that "consumers are getting rooked" as a result.

The comments were part of a wide-ranging question on the feeding of additives to animals. He asked Agriculture Minister Frank Richter for assurance that there is adequate inspection and control of effects on animals, produce and people of such substances as insecticides, hormones and vitamins.

"So far as I know there is no law to prevent tranquillizers being used," Dr. Parkinson said, adding that chicken doesn't seem to taste as good as it used to.

Mr. Richter replied that "to the best of my knowledge" tranquillizers are not included in feed of animals but that tranquillizer "implants" behind the ears of animals are common.

On insecticides, Dr. Parkinson said "I agree we shouldn't have a scare campaign" about residues reaching human beings through food, but he pressed Mr. Richter for information about controls.

"We must know exactly how we're judging the food we eat," he said. "We should be studying the direct effect on the human being."

Mr. Richter said a number of studies are under way either at provincial or federal level and that the whole subject involved health authorities.

He assured Dr. Parkinson that inspectors regularly check supermarkets for both quality and moisture content of chicken.

A committee is at work now to straighten out regulations covering the tranquillizer question, he said, but couldn't predict whether use would be limited by the rules.

Dr. Parkinson said he is "not convinced" that hormones are not being added to feed for some animals; asked for more information to help ease public fear and confusion over "excessive" intake of vitamins; and called for better labelling procedures to let consumers know exactly what is in the products they buy.

'MORE USERS AT UVIC THAN MOST SUSPECT'

Marijuana Treated 'Just Like Beer'

By JOHN MIKA

A legislative committee Tuesday was told that classing marijuana users in the same category as drug addicts and sending them to jail is adding to the problem.

Dr. Conrad Schwarz, a University of B.C. psychiatrist, told the committee that marijuana may well be harmful in itself and certainly should be banned by legislation but not as a Criminal Code offence.

David McLean, president, and Garry Curtis, graduate student representative, of the University of Victoria students' council, said there is serious concern and antagonism by students that harsh jail sentences for smoking marijuana are unjust.

●

They pointed out that while an education program apparently has been successful in radically reducing the use of LSD and other psychedelic drugs, the use of marijuana is skyrocketing despite the escalation of jail sentences.

Mr. Curtis said this proved that making marijuana use a crime was no deterrence. He advocated its control through sale in government stores the same as liquor.

But Dr. Schwarz said the B.C. Medical Association had given serious consideration to recommending a Liquor Control Board type of legislation for marijuana but had to reject it as impracticable at the present time because more basic research is needed to establish standards.

In a prepared brief, Dr. Schwarz said "it would be foolish to legalize the use of marijuana in our present stage of ignorance about its chemical composition, dosage range and short or long-term psychological and physical effects."

He said he knew of several cases which had to be treated in mental wards as a result of using marijuana but emphasized that a great deal more research is needed before conclusions can be drawn about the drug.

●

Dr. Schwarz said that other cultures which use marijuana have developed physical abilities to handle it just as western society over a period of centuries has developed a tolerance towards alcohol.

He said that after observing marijuana users at UBC—he estimated there were about 120—he concluded they were not subjectively aware of the fact that they became intoxicated.

HEARING CLOSED TO PROTECT WITNESS

A special legislative committee studying drug-taking in British Columbia went into secret session Tuesday night after one member warned that a young prisoner who had volunteered to give evidence might be in danger from other prison inmates.

A 23-year-old university student, serving 18 months for trafficking in marijuana, had volunteered to give the committee information on how drugs reach British Columbia, the number and type of people using them and the types of drugs in use.

The committee decided to close its meeting after Dave Barrett (NDP—Coquitlam) suggested the prisoner might be in danger from other prisoners.

"His life could be made pretty miserable," he said.

Mr. McLean and Mr. Curtis declined to say during the open session how many students at Uvic they believed were using marijuana but added "there are more than most suspect." They were to suggest a figure during the committee's in-camera session.

Both Dr. Schwarz and the students said that marijuana users come from all strata of society.

Mr. McLean added they tended to be the more intelligent and artistic students, but there could be no definite grouping.

●

He said marijuana is treated "just like beer" by students but is much cheaper.

Mr. McLean said students are "in a quandary" as to conflicting medical opinions about the harmfulness or harmlessness of marijuana.

He said they felt it incredible that in view of the questions about the drug, a driver impaired by alcohol who kills a pedestrian frequently is given a shorter jail sentence than a person who is merely caught smoking marijuana and causing no one else any harm.

Mr. McLean also said that the "zeal" of RCMP in raiding students' quarters to find marijuana has produced a horrified recoil.

"There were two cases which just made me sick and I can no longer have any respect for the Mounties," he said.

Mr. McLean said in one case, RCMP drug squad members raided a student's apartment by breaking the door in half, creating a chaos among his possessions and simply left after finding nothing.

"They didn't even consider fixing the door," he said. "They didn't even consider cleaning up the room."

He said in the second case, he spotted what he described as "an RCMP undercover agent infiltrating the campus as a supposed student who attempted to gain my confidence through treachery, and I use the term advisedly.

"I don't see that this is going to gain respect for the RCMP. This sort of thing is part of the breakdown in respect for law enforcement."

He said his chief concern now is to keep marijuana users away from the RCMP because a jail sentence could ruin completely the life of a young person "who is no more a criminal than you are."

The central question in student minds is whether society should send people to jail "under a law that is itself questionable."

Dr. Schwarz said he had an opposite impression of the RCMP.

●

"The RCMP in Vancouver and the city police have taken more people to emergency ward in hospital (after drug use) than they have taken to jail," he said.

But he agreed that making marijuana a Criminal Code offence is "inappropriate" and added few persons realized that simple possession could bring a sentence of two years, trafficking—which includes giving someone else a marijuana cigarette for nothing—could bring a jail sentence between two and seven years.

LOGS BLAZE on Willows Beach as bulldozer stands by to lift more on with shovel jaws. Burning is main part of $700 clearing of the beach prompted by complaints from beachcombers that logs blocked their paths. Oak Bay council voted three weeks ago to burn half of logs on beach; expect job to be finished by Friday. Some of logs thrown up on sands by winter storms will be left as seats for bathers.

Unions Ask Cutback In Board's Authority

'Tighter Bill To Ensure Fair Deal'

A general tightening up of the new workmen's compensation bill was urged today by the British Columbia Federation of Labour in a brief to the Legislature's standing committee on labor.

A second brief, by the International Woodworkers of America, supported the federation's call for an independent review board and a $500 penalty for employers who discourage reporting of accidents.

Labor federation spokesmen said the Workmen's Compensation Board must have its authority reduced through a tighter bill to ensure a fair deal for workers.

Among the recommendations of the federation are:

- Broadening the definition of "accident" to "injury or disability resulting out of employment;"
- Removal of time limits in establishing what injuries qualify for compensation;
- Tieing of compensation benefits to general industry wage levels rather than the consumer price index;
- Computation of earnings to allow for fringe benefits.

END SECRECY

The brief asked for an independent review board to hear appeals from workers and an end to secrecy which prevents workers from obtaining information on their claims files from the board.

The federation brief said it is "absolutely necessary" that employers discouraging re-

Major Changes To Ease Flow Of Peak Traffic

Major traffic control regulations will be introduced in Victoria this month if city council accepts a recommendation from the city's special traffic committee.

Douglas and Government Streets come in for the biggest share of the changes designed to create a smoother traffic flow during peak hours.

If council accepts the changes proposed by the special committee all parking on the east side of Douglas between Humboldt and Queens will be banned between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m.

MERCHANTS APPROVE

A similar recommendation in the past has resulted in protests from merchants but this time the store owners involved have given their approval.

The changes on Government will see a ban on left turns between Courtney and Fisgard Streets. The no left turn ban will also be in effect between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m.

Only one street escapes the no left turn ban. The committee decided to permit left turns on Johnson Street during the 4 to 6 period.

APPROVAL EXPECTED

City council will receive the recommendations on Thursday, March 14, and is expected to approve.

The committee will also recommend that signs banning parking or left turns at certain times of the day be made uniform.

At present some bans are in effect from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m.

The committee will suggest that traffic control at peak hours should be between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. to avoid confusion.

Traffic engineer Dave Campbell told the committee that Douglas and Government Street regulations were essential to enable downtown traffic to clear the main arteries without serious delays

TWO WAR HEROES met at Patricia Bay Airport this morning when Lieut.-Gov. George Pearkes was on hand to welcome to Victoria Lord Louis Mountbatten. (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

LORD LOUIS HERE TO BOOST FUND

One of the world's most decorated men arrived in Victoria today to boost the campaign for the handicapped children's fund.

Earl Louis Mountbatten of Burma was invited to turn the sod of the proposed $650,000 crippled children's clinic on the grounds of the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

The ceremony took place at 2:30 this afternoon.

"I think this is a wonderful project," he said on his arrival. "The citizens of Victoria deserve credit for their efforts on the behalf of handicapped children."

The British Admiral of the Fleet was invited to Victoria by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes after attending in Vancouver a Variety Club International $100-a-plate charity dinner.

On his visit to Victoria he is accompanied by Vice-Admiral Sir Ronald Brockman who was his right hand man in the Second World War. Others in the party include Ralph Pries of Philadelphia, president of the Variety Club, and James Carreras, London, England, chairman of the executive board.

Earl Montbatten had lunch in the Union Club prior to the sod-turning ceremony.

The Variety Club of which the Earl is a gold card-holder raised $15 million last year towards handicapped children's projects.

Lord Mountbatten said his fondest wish is to see Russia become a member of Variety Clubs International.

"There is nothing I would like better than a Russian tent chapter. After all the Russians have the world's best circuses and would make a great contribution," he said.

Firm Negligent In Man's Death Inquest Decides

B.C. Forest Products Ltd. was negligent in the sawdust truck death of 52-year-old Arthur Cathers a coroner's jury ruled Tuesday.

The body of the Point Ellice mill clean-up man was found when a sawdust truck was emptied in the company's Crofton mill early Jan. 30.

The truck had taken on the load about 10:30 p.m. Jan. 29. Cathers was working at the time, and one of his duties was to help load the truck.

The jury ruled factors in Cather's death were unsafe working conditions, laxity of Workmen's Compensation Board regulations, and operation of company machinery by other than qualified company personnel.

Reporting the verdict, the jury foreman said "the jury finds B.C. Forest Products negligent in the application of safety regulations."

The jury recommended the controls of the conveyor which loads the trucks "should be locked out and tagged out at all times except when in use by a designated employee."

Earlier, the inquest heard mill superintendent Donald Marshall testify a safety line had been installed in the sawdust bunker shortly after Cather's death.

He also said company policy had been changed to prohibit non-employees from operating the machinery.

ARTHUR MAYSE ON VACATION

60 MPH WIND

Tugs Still Battling To Hook Up

Two Victoria tugs were battling a southeast gale today in a desperate effort to save a smouldering, sinking tanker 160 miles off the Washington coast.

The tugs Sudbury II and Island Monarch, both owned by Island Tug and Barge, were fighting 60-mile-an-hour winds and high seas in an effort to put a towline on the 23,000-ton Liberian oil tanker Mandoil II.

The Mandoil was holed and set afire in collision with a Japanese freighter in dense fog last Wednesday.

GARBLED

"Radio communication with the two tugs has been garbled by bad weather," said Gordon Elworthy of Island Tug and Barge. "The static is very bad and we've no word on progress.

"The tanker is still drifting towards the Washington coast at about 1½ knots," Mr. Elworthy said, "and we've been unable to put a crew back aboard her."

During Tuesday's operations, fierce gales snapped a towline connecting the smouldering 700-foot tanker with the Sudbury II.

This morning a third tug, Island Sovereign, also owned by Island Tug and Barge, left Victoria to assist in the salvage operation.

Damage to the tanker Mandoil consisted of a 100-foot gash from bow to bridge, four ruptured oil tanks, buckled and scarred steel plates and gutted superstructure and bridge.

Eleven of the Mandoil's 43 crew are reported missing and presumed dead. Four men jumped overboard when the supertanker burst into flames.

WITH MOTHERS

Premier Shows Sympathy

A chance meeting and 30-minute discussion with Premier Bennett Tuesday night failed to produce more than sympathy for Victoria's protesting mothers on welfare.

A meeting of the up-in-arms mothers decided earlier to launch a series of "sit-ins" at the legislature starting next Tuesday.

The women want an arbitration board to revise rates which now allow them $25 a month to feed and care for a child.

Reg Clarkson, executive secretary of the organization of welfare recipients, said he met the premier by chance Tuesday night and had "a long friendly talk" in the coffee shop of the Legislative Buildings.

'FRIENDLY, FRANK'

Mr. Clarkson described it as "friendly frank duscussion but the social welfare problem was only one of many subjects we discussed.

"He was very interested in what we were doing and what our thinking was but he certainly was non-committal as far as the government's policy was concerned."

Mr. Clarkson, a social worker, said the Low Income group was anxous to meet Welfare Minister Dan Campbell before the sit-ins start.

MEET ANYTIME

"We want to be sure that he understands our position and that the situation is not 'window-dressing,' as he calls it, but a fight for civil rights.

"We'll offer to meet with him almost anytime."

About 120 turned out Tuesday night, including Liberal MLA Alan Macfarlane, at a public meeting to duscuss the welfare level issue.

Mr. Clarkson said the willingness of the mothers on welfare, numbering about 50, to sacrifice themselves for their children was "moving."

MUST FIGHT

"They said they don't want to commit civil disobedience but encouraged each other by reminding themselves that no matter what happened, they had to fight for their children."

The protesting mothers intend sitting in the public gallery of the legislature and not leaving when asked.

Mr. Clarkson said the welfare minister was quite right when he said community involvement is required to meet welfare problems.

"But Mr. Campbell is ignorant and cruel to humilate and degrade these mothers who are receiving $100 to $150 a month under what is required for minimum decent living when he tells them they don't know how to manage their money."

No New Leads In Search For Aircraft

An air-sea search for four persons and their missing aircraft was under way today despite some hindrance from the weather.

An Air-Sea Rescue spokesman in Vancouver said planes were in the air, but no new leads to the missing float plane had turned up.

Jerry Brock, of J. S. Brock Trucking, Port Alberni, was flying the Cessna light aircraft from his home at Kalamalka Lake, near Vernon, to Port Alberni. With him were his wife, son and a friend's son.

They left the Okanagan Friday afrernoon and were expected at Port Alberni over the weekend.

Parts of Vancouver Island and the lower mainland have been searched from the air, and a ground party went by helicopter up Mr. Arrowsmith to check out a false lead Tuesday.

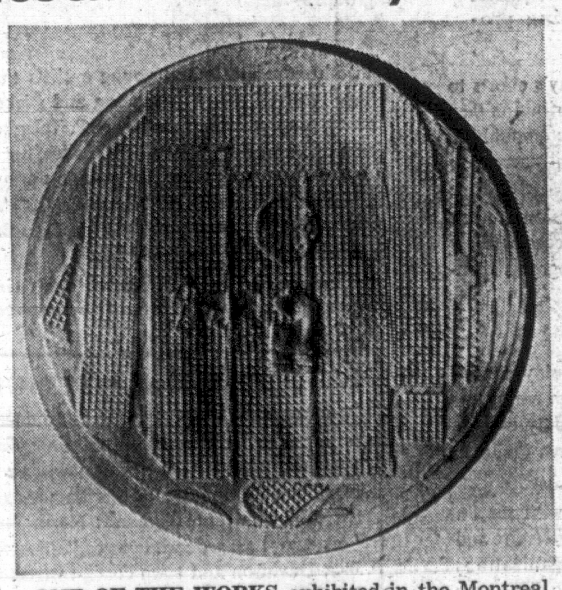

Artists Chosen for Survey 68

Works by three Victoria artists have been chosen for Survey 68, an exhibition at the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts.

Maxwell Bates, Don Harvey and Pat Martin Bates with Vancouver artists Jack Shadbolt, Gordon Smith, Bodo Pfeifer, Michael Morris, Brian Fisher, Claude Breeze and Ian Baxter, will be represented at the showing in Montreal from March 8 to April 7.

Survey, 68, an invitational showcase for what may be Canada's most significant developments in contemporary art, consists of more than 300 works by 113 artists from across the country.

The exhibition was organized by the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts on the recommendations of museum art school directors across Canada. A jury will determine winners of prizes and awards.

ONE OF THE WORKS exhibited in the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts spring exhibition Survey 68 is a relief etching "Mandala For Love Encircled" by local artist Pat Martin Bates.

Burglar Given Another Year

A man already serving a jail term for three counts of breaking and entering was sentenced in Sooke court Tuesday to one year for a fourth count.

Ronald Letcher, 19, pleaded guilty to breaking into Gibson's Store at Jordan River Feb. 21 and stealing $80 worth of goods.

March 1 he was sentenced in Victoria court to two years less a day for three earlier break-ins.

Ask The Times

Q. Does the educational department offer any commercial correspondence courses to adults; if so, which section? —A.T.

A. The department of education offers several such courses. Write J. R. Hind, director, secondary school correspondence division, department of education, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, for booklet and application forms.

Q. Could you please tell me if and where there is a vintage car club in Victoria? —W.M.C.

A. The Vintage Car Club of Victoria has a mailing address at 1252 Wharf Street in the city.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

High Gas Prices Blamed On 'Too Many Stations'

Gasoline prices would be lower if there were fewer service stations, an economist told a legislative committee this morning.

Prof. A. Milton Moore of the University of B.C. said too much money is siphoned off from oil company revenues propping up uneconomic service stations operated by lease.

He said the stations can't pay their way because there are too many of them competing for the motorists dollar.

"The pump prices of gasoline are higher than they need be mainly because there are too many service stations," he told a special committee of MLAs studying the situation.

FISGARD NEXT TARGET IN SPRUCE-UP DRIVE

Victoria will move into the last phase of its downtown clean-up paint-up campaign on March 27.

Main target for the drive will be Fisgard Street and the general area of Chinatown.

Property owners in the area will be invited to a city-sponsored luncheon on Wednesday, March 27, in the McPherson Theatre lounge.

Following the luncheon the property owners or building managers will be shown photographs of their property as it looks today and how it could look if the advice of the city's color consultant is followed.

The advice on color schemes and the type of paint to use to best advantage is provided free by the city.

The final design and the exterior painting firm called to do the actual paint-up is left to the individual owner.

FARMER GETS 24 CENTS

MLA Urges Probe Into Meat Profits

An immediate investigation into high prices in the meat-packing and grocery industries should be launched in B.C., Cyril Shelford (SC—Omineca) told the legislature Tuesday.

"The farmer is not getting a fair share of the wealth," he said as debate on agriculture estimates went into its second day.

Mr. Shelford, who described himself as the only practising farmer in the legislature, said he couldn't understand why British Columbia didn't join the prairie provinces' royal commission on grocery prices which this week called for an investigation of the grocery business.

He said he sells beef at 24 cents a pound, yet restaurants in Victoria pay $2.20 a pound for sirloin that isn't a bit better than his own brand.

His comments came during debate and questioning of Agriculture Minister Richter on his $7,700,000 estimates.

Mr. Shelford said a national farm union may be the only hope for a solution to farmers' problems but hoped some other answer could be found.

Liberal Leader Ray Perrault said the basic problem is taxation and urged that school taxes on farms be figured on a home-and-site principle rather than on total acreage.

"Some people can hold their wealth in oil paintings and Grecian urns," he said, "but some young farmer on a marginal farm" gets nailed with the taxes.

FAIRS NEED HELP

John Tisdalle (SC—Saanich and the Islands) repeated an earlier request for special provincial aid for the 100-year-old Saanichton Fair and for small fairs generally.

Mr. Richter said the government helps out smaller fairs and recognizes their social benefit, "but we sometimes question how much agricultural benefit is derived from the smaller fairs."

He agreed with Mr. Tisdalle that there had been "a sad experience" with federal measures to help out Saanich farmers faced with the golden nematode pest.

Mr. Tisdalle said fumigation had sterilized soil and that considerable confusion existed throughout the whole problem.

FARMER SUFFERS

"They used the sledge hammer on the nematode but missed and hit the farmer on the head and he's still feeling it," said Mr. Tisdalle.

David Stupich (NDP—Nanaimo) expressed concern about surplus Australian fruit being sent to Canada and damaging the industry here.

Opposition Leader Strachan called for an all-out drive to increase numbers of university-trained agriculture experts in the province.

In answer to a question Mr. Richter said he didn't have "anything startling" to report about starling control.

Dr. Ray Parkinson (NDP—Vancouver Burrard) had recalled plans last year to either "bake them in a pie or export them to Australia."

The agriculture estimates passed Tuesday night after more than nine hours' debate over two days.

CARELESS DRIVERS

Fined in central court Tuesday for careless driving were:

Robert Atherton, 142 Gorge, involved in rear-end collision on Dallas near Douglas Feb. 4, $40; Werner Fillman, 815 Selkirk, involved in rear-end collision on Skinner near Catherine Feb. 2, $35; Margaret McAllister, 3151 Aldrige, involved in accident at Cook and Pandora Feb. 5, $35; Douglas White, suite 112-110 Menzies, struck fence on Pemberton Feb. 2, $35; Kenneth Weidman, 155 Lurline, involved in accident on Gorge Road near Jutland Jan. 3, $35; Judith Marson, 127 Goward, through stop sign and speeding on Shelbourne Feb. 1, $35.

FALSE TEETH
Chewing Efficiency Increased up to 35%

Clinical tests prove you can now eat and chew better—make dentures average up to 35% more effective—if you sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. FASTEETH holds uppers and lowers more firmly so they feel more comfortable. FASTEETH is not acid—doesn't sour. No gummy, pasty taste. Helps check "denture odor". Dentures that fit are essential to health. So see your dentist regularly. Get FASTEETH at all drug counters. Advt.

Cattle Rustlers Using Helicopters

A Social Credit MLA told the Legislature Tuesday that cattle rustlers are a problem in his area and that stiffer penalties are needed to discourage them.

Cyril Shelford (SC—Omineca) also called for a check station on the road between Hazelton and Terrace where the rustlers could be headed off.

"Anyone can move through there with 20 cattle at a time," he said, adding that 35 to 40 cattle had been rustled in one area last season.

No one has been caught so far, he said, pointing out that the deep freeze makes it easier than in earlier days to dispose of rustled cattle and eventually get the meat on to the market.

He said the rustlers may be using helicopters as an aid.

"It's certainly something that has to be watched," he said.

These Telephone men are life savers

And it's no accident. Their training through B.C. Telephone Company safety programs teaches them what to do.

When there's a telephone man in the vicinity, chances are he'll take charge in event of accident or emergency.

His reactions will be immediate; his actions quick and sure. And it's not accidental that he knows what to do and how to do it.

As a B.C. Telephone Company employee, he'll be drawing upon the skills and knowledge acquired through company-sponsored safety training programs carried on continuously.

This training is part of the B.C. Telephone Company's efforts to create among its employees an awareness of the contribution they can and should make to the safety of their individual communities, both on and off the job, and to equip them with the skills necessary to do so.

The men pictured above in a first aid training session are just a few of thousands of British Columbians who receive safety training every year through employee and public programs sponsored and encouraged by B.C. Telephone.

A Wide Interest

Internally, the company places great emphasis on employee training in all aspects of safety on the job to protect both employees and the public. But B.C. Telephone's interest in safety extends far beyond safe work practices. It extends to the home, the highways, the water and everywhere you find people.

That's why the company works in co-operation with the St. John Ambulance Society, the B.C. Safety Council, police, fire and school authorities and other safety-conscious organizations throughout British Columbia to bring safety training to employees and public.

More than 1,500 B.C. Telephone employees have earned first aid certificates through company-sponsored courses. Two of the seven employee teams won zone playoffs in 1967 to enter the provincial first aid finals sponsored by the B.C. Workmen's Compensation Board.

Nearly 3,000 employees have earned safe-driving certificates by successful completion of the company's defensive driving course, which includes eight hours of lectures, films and discussions and classroom and highway examinations. The same course is being extended to employee families and the public through interested groups.

Keep B.C. Safe

Two-hundred thousand young cyclists throughout the province have received safety instruction and stickers through the bicycle safety program sponsored by B.C. Telephone and carried out by employees working with safety, police, fire and school authorities.

And these are just a few specific examples of the widespread safety endeavors of B.C. Telephone and its more than 7,200 men and women, endeavors aimed at making British Columbia a safer place in which to work and live.

These efforts are rewarded each time an accident is prevented, each time a life is saved.

THIS WAS FOR PICTURES

'Not Sure Who He Is or If He Exists'

The mystery man who allegedly offered a $25,000 bribe to a court case witness to "get Gaglardi" and the provincial government appears to have been a red herring, Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) said in the legislature Tuesday night.

Attorney-General Bonner told the NDP member that his department's investigation of the matter had turned up nothing that wasn't already known through the newspapers.

"I'm not aware who such a person is or if he exists," said Mr. Bonner, adding that U.S. authorities had been called in on the case in an attempt to find the man.

Mr. Macdonald said a B.C. Supreme Court justice had cast doubt on testimony of Glen Geery, of Montana, a witness in a Vancouver court case, that a man named Mark Kennedy had offered him the bribe.

The Gaglardi allegation may have been a "smokescreen," said Mr. Macdonald.

Highways Minister Gaglardi, under pressure in connection with involvement of his two sons in real estate deals along provincial highways, had made the allegation in the legislature during a defence of his record.

A further charge by Mr. Gaglardi that his home and family have been "bugged" was termed by Mr. Bonner "a very interesting question" but he added:

"I have no information on that subject . . . and if I were asked to investigate I wouldn't know where to begin," he said.

NEMETZ

Nemetz Appointed To Appeals

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice Nathaniel T. Nemetz of the British Columbia Supreme Court has been appointed to the Appeal Court of the province to replace Arthur E. Lord who retired recently, the justice department announced Tuesday.

Judge Nemetz was appointed to the Supreme Court in 1963. Previously, he practised law in Vancouver with the firm of Nemetz, Austin, Charistie and Bruk. He was admitted to the bar in 1937.

The department also announced the appointment of Judge W. Kirke Smith of the county court of Vancouver and G. G. S. Rae, a Vancouver barrister, to the B.C. Supreme Court.

They will fill two posts recently created by an amendment to the Judges Act.

By DICK BARNES

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top U.S. civilian adviser says the United States must boldly take the initiative to root out corruption in South Vietnam's government because, he insists, there aren't enough honest Vietnamese officials to do the job.

"Corruption is permeating all echelons of government and society, corroding the vitality of this nation, eroding the framework of government and unnecessarily prolonging the war," the adviser said in private reports from Vietnam.

The reports were made available to The Associated Press on the condition that the adviser, chief of the 22-man team in Vietnam, not be identified.

The adviser declared: "Vietnamese officials are so involved that very few have hands sufficiently clean that they can make an immediate major independent contribution."

An Agency for International Development spokesman in Washington told a reporter Tuesday:

"When you get into the business of trying to make another government clean, under international law you get into the question of sovereign nations."

MEETS OPPOSITION

The U.S. adviser sent a copy of the report to his superiors in Washington along with another complaining that he had previously proposed stern measures against graft only to encounter opposition in the U.S. mission.

His report to AID recommended that the United States:

—Create an anti-corruption office within the U.S. mission, invite the South Vietnamese to set up a corresponding office, and offer rewards to Vietnamese citizens for solid evidence of corruption.

—Confront the government of South Vietnam with examples of corruption as they develop and "insist that law enforcement and revenue collecting officials go to jail and be publicly disgraced for involvement in graft and corruption."

—"Abandon our present devotion to the fiction that corruption is the special field of lower- and middle-echelon government officials. Instead place the blame squarely where it belongs—right at the top."

His reports told of corruption extending to the top of the Vietnamese customs collecting organization and said unknown millions of dollars in revenue had been lost. He gave examples ranging from police shakedowns to opium smuggling.

Senator Ernest Gruening (Dem. Alaska), chairman of the Senate subcommittee on foreign aid expenditures, and a long-time investigator of corruption in Vietnam, told a reporter "our efforts are not effective because some of our agencies aren't concerned about corruption."

Last week Gruening, after seeing copies of the adviser's reports, told the Senate of a gold and opium smuggling operation which he said "involved the highest South Vietnamese government officials."

The team chief's January report detailed a South Vietnamese power struggle which led to dismissal of the director-general of customs, Nguyen Van Loc.

In his recommendation to AID, the adviser listed 17 types of corruption. His examples included:

—"The court officials who can keep a person locked up for months on technical, trumped-up charges until a payoff is made. . . .

—"The police officials whose 'check points' are synonymous with 'shakedown points.'"

SELLS PRIVILEGES

—"The customs official who sells to the highest bidder the privilege of holding down for a specified time the position where the graft and loot possibilities are the greatest."

—"The very high officials who condone, and engage in, smuggling, not only of dutiable merchandise, but undercut the nation's economy by smuggling gold and worst of all, that unmitigated evil—opium and other narcotics."

"Americans bear a considerable burden of reponsibility for the extent to which corruption has mushroomed and become such a cancer," he said.

"We simply have not faced up to the fact that in Vietnam, public office has always been synonymous with personal privilege for the officeholder."

FILL 'ER WITH GAS, PUT WATER IN BUMPER

CHICAGO (AP)—Safety-minded motorists soon may be telling their service station attendants to "fill 'er with gas, check the oil and put some water in the bumper".

The new approach to safety, vinyl bumpers filled with water, was demonstrated Tuesday in Chicago.

Plugs along the top of the bumpers pop out on impact to let the water squeeze out, cushioning the force of collisions.

HARD DRUGS IN LSD

TORONTO (CP) — Hippies claim their doses of LSD and marijuana are being contaminated with hard narcotics.

If the hippies are right, says a Montreal doctor, criminal narcotic syndicates may be invading the teen-age market.

Dr. J. Robertson Uwin, director of Adolescent Service at Allan Memorial Institute, Montreal, says in the current issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal that marijuana "cured" with opium is said to be widely available.

"Increasingly, one hears claims from the young users and distributors that many of the commonly-used drugs are being mixed or cut with other drugs, frequently without the knowledge of the individual user."

Capsules of LSD are widely reported to contain a small dose of LSD and a large dose of methedrine powder, says the article.

Atropine—a sedative and narcotic—is sometimes used to intensify the effects of LSD. Cases with resultant atropine poisoning have recently turned up in emergency departments of Montreal hospitals.

RICH MARKET

It would not be surprising that international syndicates invade the market, it says, considering the size and affluence of the teen-age population.

"However, samples checked throughout the year by the federal authorities have not been found to contain opium."

The article says younger teenagers have recently been experimenting with a wider variety of substances in their search for kicks.

The latest fad is reported to be inhaling the contents of poisonous insecticide aerosol bombs, emptied into closed cars or small rooms.

The doctor, also an assistant professor of psychiatry at McGill University, believes neither marijuana nor any other intoxicant should be freely accessible to persons under the age of 18.

"With the exception of marijuana, it can be safely asserted that all of the drugs discussed above are dangerous enough to require legal and social restrictions against their distribution and use. . . ."

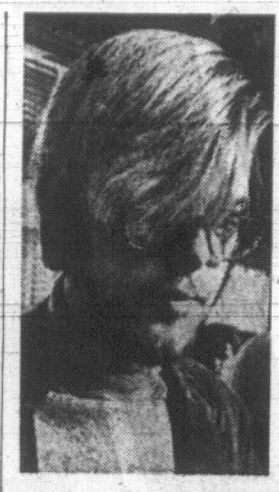

The article says most authors feel the use of marijuana does not commit a person to later use of hard drugs such as heroin.

Highland Dancers Compete Saturday

Students from dancing schools on the Island and the mainland will compete here Saturday in the Victoria Highland Games Association indoor meet, scheduled from 9:30 to 5:30 in the Club Tango.

Local competitors will be from the Adeline and Heather Duncan, Sheila Mallard and Catherine Costain schools of dancing.

July 27 has been set as the date of the association's summer meet. It will be held at University Stadium and will feature a track meet as well as dancing and piping.

DECLARING he will refuse to be drafted, 19-year-old Christian Hayden, son of actor Sterling Hayden, burned his induction papers in front of the U.S. armed forces centre in Los Angeles Tuesday. He said his father, a decorated U.S. Marine Corps captain in the Second World War, approved of his stand.

FINAL PLANS DELAYED

Curtis Turns Down Industrial Debate

Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis has turned down a challenge to debate a light industrial estate in the Royal Oak district.

He said Tuesday municipal planning proposals will be brought forward through committees, council and public hearings which will provide "ample opportunity" to air the subject.

"I have no intention of entering into a debate with an individual on a plan not yet complete," he said.

Plans for the estate, south of Royal Oak Shopping Centre and west of Patricia Bay Highway, were expected to be disclosed this month.

But pressure of other work at the municipal hall has led to a delay and no firm date is indicated although it should be in the next month or two.

On the weekend, Royal Oak resident Dr. Adam Szczawinski, an opponent of the light industrial estate, challenged Reeve Curtis, or anyone on council or in the planning department, to debate the need "for any industry coming to the Saanich Peninsula."

He said the peninsula has a booming business in the retirement industry and people who retire to the West Coast don't want to go to Vancouver because of the concentration of industry there.

Bandits Shoot Guard

MONTREAL (CP) — Six hooded bandits including three juveniles who police believe are aged between 11 and 14, held up the basement mail room of CNR's Central Station Monday night and shot and wounded a Brinks Express Co. guard. The juveniles were armed with machine guns while their adult accomplices carried pistols.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 6, 1968—PAGE 25

A LITTLE DASH WILL DO IT—Tim Carlson, Christian Mundigler and Brian Costello practice the culinary art in the kitchen of St. Louis College during the lunch break. They're hoping the college's Parent-Teacher Organization will sign them on as chefs. Like everyone else at the college they are looking forward to the PTO's annual smorgasbord which will take place at the Fellowship Hall, Balmoral Road, on Friday, March 15. There'll be two sittings, one at 5:30 p.m. and the other at 7 p.m.

Says Member of Royal Commission on the Status of Women in Canada

COMMUNITY GROUPS—SOLE PRESSURE WEAPON

By PAT DUFOUR

Voluntary organizations are the most important factor in women's struggle for equality.

This is the opinion of Mrs. Lola Lange, who is in Victoria today. Mrs. Lange, one of the eight commissioners serving on the Royal Commission on the Status of Women, is convinced that women's organizations have an effective role to play in the reform of legal, economic and social conditions for women.

"It is through the pressure of women's groups that this commission was formed. Without them, women would have no effective voice."

UNIVERSITIES COULD HELP

She's disturbed at the universal complaint that women's organizations across Canada find it difficult to get new members, especially from the younger-aged groups. Mrs. Lange is anxious to see some sort of training provided which would equip women to play effective roles in such organizations. She suggests that the extension departments of universities might well provide such a program.

The problem of retraining, says Mrs. Lange, is one with which the commission is deeply involved. Women are taking a larger part in the labor force than ever before, yet opportunities for adequate training are still in the woman's-place-is-in-the home stage.

MORE TRADES NEEDED

"There is all kinds of technical training available for boys, but how about girls? Do they all have to end up being hairdressers, stenographers or practical nurses?"

She tells of one union official in Ontario that told her that when women in her plant were laid off, even when it was through no reason of their own, the opportunity for retraining was deplorably small compared to that offered to the men. They could get retraining only as stenographers or bookkeepers.

Part of the blame for women's inability to get an equal break lies with women themselves. "I've found that many tend to live for the present alone. I've talked to young university women who can only think of their immediate future, marrying and settling down. Others in business act the same way."

Commissioner Lola Lange, Claresholm, Alta., is here today for a brief visit. She'll be back on April 15 and 16 when she and other members of the Royal Commission on the Status of Women hold public hearings at the Empress Hotel.

There are exceptions. Mrs. Lange has talked to many successful women. They consider themselves different, saying that their accomplishments were made because they were serious, worked hard, unlike many women who were unprepared to do this.

FINDS 'TEENS 'SQUARE'

This complacent attitude, which Mrs. Lange feels is a stumbling block to change, is also seen in the teen-agers. As she says, "So many of them are 'square'. I'd like to see the commission appoint a teenager to stomp around, listening to what they have to say."

She describes a sifting process which she's found to be present when women want to assume positions, either in politics or community organizations which are predominately male.

"Women are forced to earn their spurs in the auxiliary of the main group first. Unless the men are convinced that the women accept them, they just won't get to first base."

Mrs. Lange reports that the commission has set up a research department which is investigating areas that have never been studied before. These include the status of women in department stores and opportunity for women on university faculties. "There seems to be a quota system that keep women professors down to minimum numbers. But, it's hard to prove."

GOOD RESPONSE

The response to the commission's request for briefs has been so good that the closing date had been extended to March 22. Victoria hearings will take place at the Empress Hotel on April 15 from 8 to 10 p.m. and April 16 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Meanwhile, commissioners like Mrs. Lange act as 'listening posts', probing the frustrations of Canadian women.

So far, the diagnosis calls for two final reports, says Mrs. Lange. "There are so many fields involved that I'm sure we'll end up presenting one set of recommendations for immediate action and another that, geared to a long-range plan, will be able to adapt to the accelerating changes that are almost impossible to anticipate."

DEAR ABBY . . .

Impaired Hearing May Be the Answer

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: One of the men in our office claims that in all the 31 years he has been married he has never had a fight with his wife. He says that she has never nagged him, questioned him, or contradicted him. And furthermore, he claims that he has never heard her raise her voice to him. Is this possible?

THE OFFICE GANG

DEAR GANG: It's possible, but highly unlikely. Maybe there is something wrong with his hearing.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 30-year-old man who will be getting married in a large church wedding come June. My bride is 25 and we've been engaged for two years.

I was raised in a strict home where hand-holding in public was considered sinful, so perhaps you can understand why I can't see myself kissing my bride in front of all those people in church.

I am very inhibited when it comes to public demonstrations, but I am normal otherwise.

I have told my bride that I consider a kiss between a man and his beloved a very sacred and private affair, and I do not intend to kiss her in front of all those people in church. She says everyone will be disappointed if we don't kiss.

I explained that if I were to give her a "token" kiss, people might get the impression that I am incapable of one more passionate, and will feel sorry for her. And if I kiss her in public the way I kiss her in private we may be in for a lot of criticism. What do you suggest?

JUNE GROOM

DEAR GROOM: Of all the reasons for kissing after a marriage ceremony, not wishing to "disappoint" the onlookers is the poorest. It seems to me that you two could compromise without going to one extreme or the other.

DEAR ABBY: I am a young woman with what I thought was a good marriage. We have two beautiful children and a lovely home.

My problem is my husband's constant companion. (I'll call him Alex.) Almost every night Alex calls here, and if he doesn't come over to spend the evening with us, my husband meets him somewhere. Usually at some bar.

If my husband and I go out together, Alex always joins us. When they are together, I feel like an intruder. Abby, I love my husband, but I am beginning to feel like a housekeeper. What should I do?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Have a talk with your husband, but remain calm, and don't become accusative or hostile. Ask him point blank what there is about Alex that he finds so fascinating. If your husband won't (or can't) try to be more of a husband to you, get professional help. Your doctor can advise you.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Penny Goes Shopping For Board and Darts

By Penny Saver

There is something so masculine about a sporting goods store. I ventured into one the other day looking for a surprise gift for my husband and sons and was quite intimidated by the rows of fishing rods, guns and weight-lifting equipment. As a woman whose most sportive activity is shaking the dust-mop, I felt out of place. I felt even more foolish when the salesman asked if he could help me and I had to admit I was looking for darts. After the first few questions I felt more foolish than ever: What length of flight did I want? Did I want a set ot three in a plastic case or perhaps with chrome plated barrels? Did I want an expensive board or a cheap one? Or, did I want a board at all? Perhaps he thought I was at war with the neighborhood cats.

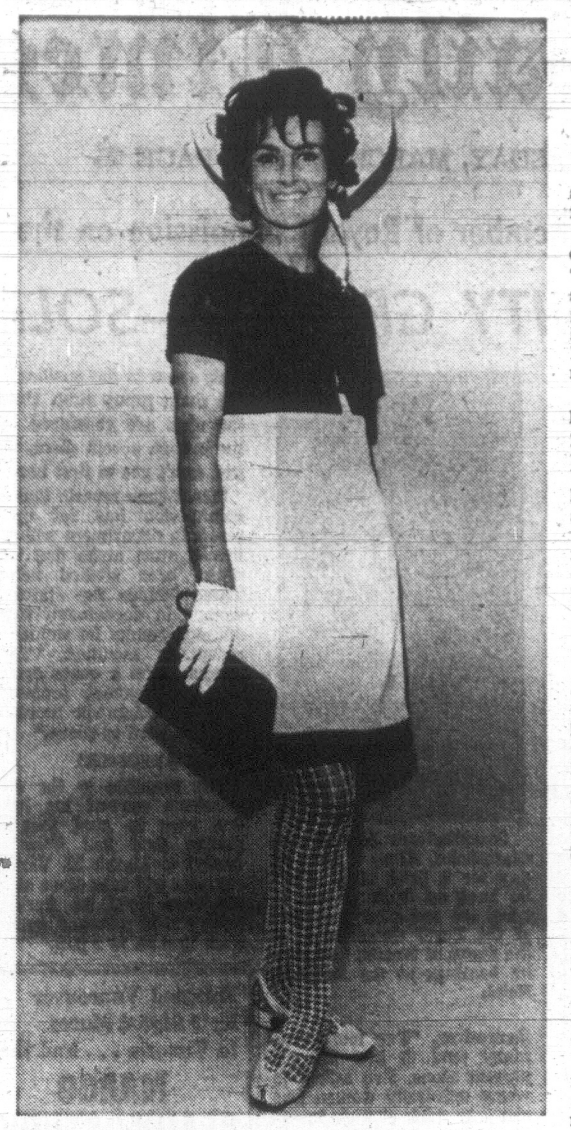

Once I had explained that the darts were to be a present for my husband and sons and that I knew nothing at all about them, the salesman was very understanding. I learned that the flight is the feathering on the dart and can be plastic or feathers and that the barrel is the metal part of the dart that gives it the weight and holds the point. I also learned that darts—as a game—is quite popular in Victoria.

Flights come in two lengths, the long ones giving more stability, and are interchangeable. Darts come in sets of three from 98 cents to $3.95 (these have extra flights) and come in attractive plastic carrying cases. Serious dart players have their own special color or pattern of flight. Chrome plated barrels are another vanity that the serious dart player can indulge in.

I decided my group wasn't serious about darts, yet, and bought them each a 98 cent set of darts and a 59 cent dart sharpener (I expect them to miss a lot). Then I turned to the problem of the board and received another surprise. I had always thought that those bright yellow and black boards are made of wood. They aren't; they are made of rolled paper. Depending on the thickness, they range in price from $2.50 to $5.95. You can guess which I chose! Top quality boards, I learned, are made of pig bristle. Actually made from the hide of the wild English boar, these are very expensive—$23.95—but they are a must for the dart fan. The material they are made of closes in the holes from the darts (up to a certain point of course) so that the board is intact again. This means it is longer lasting. These boards are painted attractive shades of green and pink. I also learned that the numbers on the outside of the dart-board are only stapled on so that they can be rotated. This way an area that gets heavy play can be shifted to a stronger part of the board.

At last I have lost my fear of sporting goods stores and will be able to shop for my menfolk with confidence—in the kindness of the salesman! As my purchases were being wrapped I saw some fascinating things, some of which are ideal for women as well. One item that attracted my attention was a 35 cent lace tightener. This is a hook that can be used to tighten laces on things such as ice skates and hiking boots. Doing up the long, long laces on my ice-skates always struck me as a tedious chore and I would have been glad to have this gadget when I was young. The hook folds into an attractive beige plastic cover so that it can be slipped in a pocket without fear of snagging or puncturing anything.

If you would like to know where I shopped, please call me at 382-3131.

Is Director for Well-Known Pattern Company

BALLET DANCER TURNS TO FASHION

One of the finest training for a position in the fashion world is ballet dancing.

This is the conviction of Pat Gwyer, who visited Victoria on Tuesday to present two fashion shows at Woodward's which gave an exciting example of how the home sewer can look like a Powers model, thanks to modern fabrics and designers.

Pat, who lives in Toronto with her husband, Terry, spent 19 years learning ballet, part of that time with the Sadler's Wells Ballet Company, now known as the Royal Ballet. She still has a delightfully English turn of phrase in spite of the fact that the Gwyers have called Canada home for the past 9½ years.

Although Pat gave up ballet, "When I found that I wasn't prepared to spend years in the rigorous routine of a ballet dancer" she cites her reasons why she feels her dancing helped prepare her for the position of fashion director with her company.

"Ballet gives you a sense of line and beauty, teaches you to move and walk well, and demands an understanding of the French language."

Leaving ballet, Pat modelled for a while, then headed for Scandinavia where she studied textile design in Norway and Denmark.

The Gwyers emigrated to Canada by accident. "Terry, who is a consultant engineer, was sent to do a six-month job in Toronto. An avid skier, he found that eastern Canada was all that he wanted. He sent for me."

Pat resigned from her job as fashion director with McCall Patterns in London. Her retirement from business life was brief.

"My managing director had given me a letter which I was to deliver personally to the president of the New York office. As soon as he read it, he persuaded my husband and myself that I should do the same job in Canada."

To the uninitiated, being a fashion director may sound glamorous and not too demanding. Pat's schedule proves otherwise. She spends eight to 10 weeks on the road in the spring, presenting shows across Canada. In June she prepares fashion shows for the Canadian National Exhibition. She hits the road again after Labor Day, returning in November to plan the Miss Canada pageant.

Asked if she sees any notable difference in clothes worn by women in western Canada, Pat will tell you that we are more conservative in the west.

"Westerners are not so great for the right bright trends which easterners pick up quickly through American influence. Colored hose and shoes, for example, take longer to catch on. Styles, here, are more relaxed and comfortable. Frankly, I like it that way."

Pat reports that more women are sewing their own clothes than ever before and that women of young children are the most ardent seamstresses. Says Pat, "It's a matter of straight economics."

She feels that women with larger figures must learn to be more adaptable. "They have a legitimate complaint when they say there aren't enough exciting patterns for the plump woman. But, here again, it's a matter of economics. We get the same complaint about bridal gowns. Both are a minority group.

"In the case of the larger woman, they must learn to take the bull by the horns and experiment in mixing and matching patterns, taking a jacket from one, perhaps, to go with a dress pattern they like. They should become proficient in altering patterns."

Distinguished Nurse Dies In Toronto at Age of 83

TORONTO (CP) — Elizabeth L. Smellie, one of Canada's most honored nurses, died Tuesday at the age of 83.

Miss Smellie served as a nurse in both First and Second World Wars. Between the wars she helped build the Victorian Order of Nurses into a country-wide organization.

During the Second World War, Miss Smellie set up Canada's first women's army, the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

In 1906, she went to the John Hopkins Training School for Nurses in Baltimore, Md., over, she said in an interview in 1954, "the most strenuous objections" of her father.

Graduating in 1909, she went to McKellar General Hospital in Fort William, Ont., as night supervisor.

In 1914, she volunteered for war duty overseas. Within three years she was matron of the Moore Barracks Hospital at Shorncliffe, England, where thousands of sick and wounded Canadian soldiers were treated.

She was awarded the Royal Red Cross, First Class, by King George V in 1917.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Problem for Some Women

I must admit it because it is true. I do write more about losing weight than about gaining it! Periodically, my underweight readers complain about this.

Lowman

Believe me, I have not forgotten you. I write more about overweight because I hear from more overweight women. They are more uncomfortable trying to restrict their bulges than you may be compensating for nature's lack with falsies. Also, obesity is now known to be a real health hazard.

I sincerely think it is more difficult to gain weight than to lose it. However, to those of us who must constantly fight extra pounds the diet suggestions for gaining weight sound mighty good. It is hard for us to feel sorry for you!

I love you even if you are underweight, so today let's review the rules for gaining weight. First, have a physical checkup. Your physician may discover a condition which is causing your skinny state.

You are the lucky ones who can have chocolate malts, pie a la mode, hollandaise sauce on your asparagus or broccoli, luscious salad dressings, cream soups, gravy and hot rolls, just to mention a few items. And I should feel sorry for you?

One warning here, though. Do not try to stuff yourself with lots of such rich foods at the expense of the essentials for good nutrition. If you do, you are likely to gain a blotched complexion rather than pounds.

Vitamin deficiency is thought to be one factor in underweight. Eat lots of fruits and vegetables, whole wheat cereal and bread, meats, fish and poultry, along with more fattening foods.

Many underweights find that they eat more if their daily food intake is divided between five small meals instead of three large ones. If you prefer the three usual meals then add a malted milk shake, ice cream and cake, cheese and crackers, juice, or whole milk with a little cream added, and fruit, in between meals and before going to sleep at night.

Of course, you must have plenty of sleep, and you will find mild exercise and aid to gaining weight. Swimming is perfect.

Also, try to cut hurry out of your life. Calm down. Take little rest periods during the day.

The usual figure faults which harass thin women are a small bust and straight up and down legs. The following is one of the best increasers of bust measurement I know.

Stand or sit in front of a mirror. Raise your arms up in front of you. Bend your elbows. Grasp the forearm of the left arm with the right hand and the forearm of the right arm with the left hand. Push the elbows toward one another, as you resist with your hands. Relax and continue. This is a very effective exercise.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

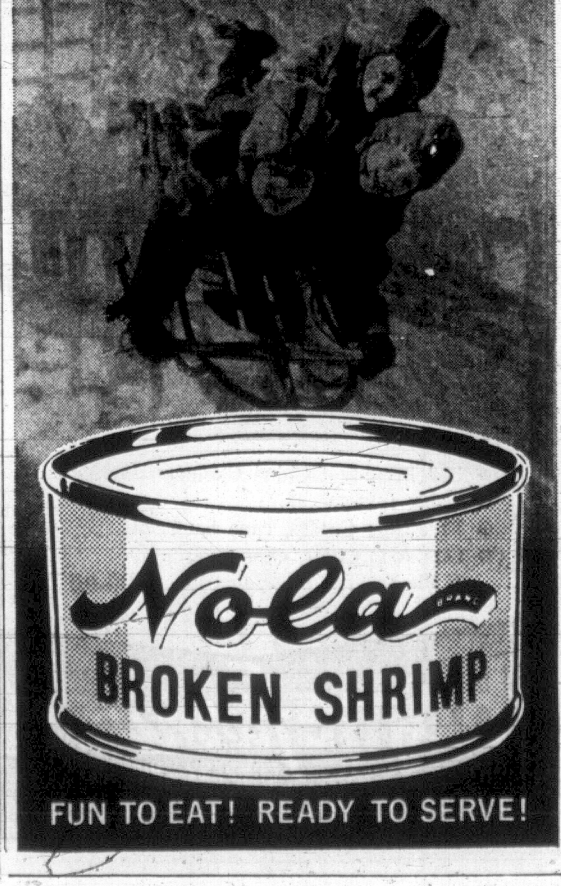

"He might be a great shot with a bow and arrow on TV, but when he was in my gym class in high school he had the coordination of an adagio dancer with two left feet."

Hints on Pooch Raising Given by Dog Obedience Class Instructor

IT'S NOT ENOUGH TO LOVE HIM—BOWSER NEEDS TO BE RESPECTED

By SUSAN BECKER

OTTAWA (CP) — You can love a dog but unless you respect him you aren't doing him any favors, says Judy Figg, who teaches a night school dog obedience class.

"A dog is a proud animal. He likes to be respected by you.

"He has always been a member of a pack and he looks to someone for guidance. He wants to know if he can go into a room or jump on furniture.

"A dog loves a routine—eating food in the same place, going for walks in the same area."

Mrs. Figg, who came to Ottawa 22 years ago from London, England, has been involved in training dogs since she got her brown and white springer spaniel, Randy, eight years ago.

She is a member of the Bytown Obedience Club and has taken "clinics" with Milo Pearsall, who she says is probably the leading dog obedience expert in North America. Her own obedience class is part of the Ottawa collegiate Institute board's adult education program.

Randy and Mr. Magoo, an inquisitive, nine-year-old cat, live with Mrs. Figg in a ground-floor apartment with a yard at the back.

NEEDS EXERCISE

"It's not a bad thing to keep a dog in an apartment, but it's unfair if people work and can't walk their pets.

"If a dog has to sit home alone all day, the poor little thing gets bored silly."

Randy, aside from daily walks, has a prime view of everything that goes on in the street from his hassock next to a front window.

"He's the busybody of the street," Mrs. Figg says, laughing.

The advantage of having a purebred like Randy, she explains, is that his temperament is guaranteed by the breeder. "You can't do that with a mutt, although they can be quite smart."

One of the worst things the owners of any dog can do, she says, is to treat him like a baby. "I'm a nut about dogs being dogs."

Jewelled collars are no recompense for the loss of freedom and dignity a dog suffers when he is constantly nagged and clutched by an overindulgent owner.

"We've had dogs in our classes who could hardly walk because of this."

PRAISE ESSENTIAL

A dog needs firm kindness and plenty of praise, even when he is made to carry out an order.

"Randy knows I'm the boss. When I tell him to do something, he does it because he knows he's going to have to do it."

A properly trained dog may eventually learn to obey hand as well as voice signals.

"Lassie and Rin-Tin-Tin and the Littlest Hobo all respond to hand signals because voice commands can't be used while the cameras are in action."

But the first thing any dog—future movie star or not—has to face is being housebroken.

The process takes a week, Mrs. Figg says.

First, keep the dog in one area, preferably a room with an easy-to-clean floor . . . perhaps the kitchen. Spread the entire floor with clean newspaper.

Put the puppy outside after it has slept, eaten or played.

As the week progresses, take half the amount of paper away. The dog should keep to the paper. Keep cutting it back until there is only one piece left.

Put the smelly piece of paper outside so the dog will realize that he is supposed to ask to go out.

FROM YOUR LOCAL DAILY NEWSPAPER

ADVERTISING SERVICE!

★ A specially trained sales representative is assigned to your account. He is capable of planning effective advertising campaigns to increase your business and can supply you with authentic facts and figures on newspaper advertising.

★ As an additional free service, your local daily newspapers make available to you a comprehensive selection of illustrations and headings by topflight artists. These ad tools bring your advertising to life, attract the attention, create the desire to buy.

★ A full-scale copy and layout service is available. Here you receive every assistance in compiling your advertisement: choosing the illustrations, arranging an effective layout, planning color effects and presenting your sales story to the best advantage.

★ Men with years of experience in their specialized trades set up your ad using the most suitable types from a wide variety available. After your ad is composed, a proof is delivered to you so that any desired changes may be made before publication.

★ Nothing is left to chance. Your sales message is then delivered personally to the thousands of subscribers who make a habit of reading Victoria's daily newspapers. They welcome your advertisement as part of the day's news.

Business firms are aware of the value of well-planned advertising, placed at the right time, for results that are the backbone of every prosperous organization.

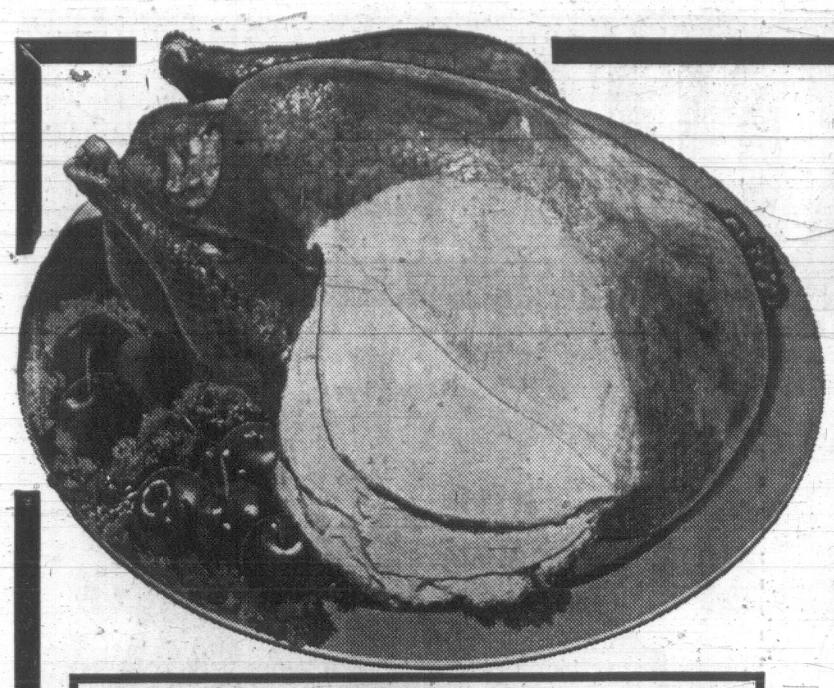

Your local daily newspaper service embraces all the important details that combine to bring you the finest advertising package you can get anywhere for the money. Check these valuable advantages. As an astute business person you will see that it offers more than any other media in the advertising field.

WARREN — On March 4, 1968, in Victoria, B.C., Mr. Percy Frederick (Pete) Warren of 6711 Welch Rd., Central Saanich, a pioneer resident and former councillor, having resided here since 1912. He leaves his wife Kathleen Annie; one brother, Herbert E., in Victoria; one sister, Mrs. F. L. (Dorothy) Worsley of Victoria; nieces and nephews. He was a member and former Warden of St. Mary's Anglican Church, Saanichton, and served as a member of the Police Commission.
Funeral services will be held in McCall Bros. FLORAL CHAPEL, Johnson and Vancouver Sts., on Friday, March 8 at 3:30 p.m., Rev. O. L. Foster officiating. Cremation.

9 IN MEMORIAM

LOKKEN—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. C. E. Lokken, who passed away March 6, 1967.
God saw her getting tired
And He laid her down to rest;
We miss her very dearly
But we know it was the best.
—Sadly missed, Sadie and Hector.

LOKKEN—In memory of a dear friend, Mrs. Caroline E. Lokken, who passed away on March 6, 1967.
Is missed by a dear friend, James O. Dow.

TOYOTA COROLLA

"THE CLEANEST ECONOMY CAR EVER TO COME FROM THE OTHER SIDE OF ANY OCEAN!" Who wants an economy car that won't get out of its own way and is left behind on hills? The TOYOTA COROLLA has more power, a higher top speed and better acceleration than any other car in the 1,100 cc class. And it still gets better than 40 miles on a gallon of regular gas.

10-POINT DRIVE

'Beat Bill 33 At Ballot Box'

The best way to fight Bill 33 is at the ballot box, the secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labour said today.

Ray Haynes was commenting on a special federation conference in New Westminster Tuesday which outlined a 10-point drive against the bill now before the B.C. legislature.

One section of the bill allows the cabinet to order compulsory arbitration where it is deemed necessary to "protect the public intrest and welfare."

"The main point is a program of political action to acquaint our members with the dangers in the bill and urge them and the general public to defeat this government," said Mr. Haynes.

"It was obvious that the mood of the conference was defeating the government.

"Although two or three individuals suggested action along the lines of a general strike, the vast majority agreed the only way to win this kind of a fight is at the ballot box. The policy of the federation has been to support the New Democratic Party."

HELP VICTIMS

One of the points in the Beat Bill 33 drive provides for action as deemed necessary to help any trade union which has compulsory arbitration imposed on it.

This would leave federation leaders with a free hand, without tieing them to any particular action.

Federation president E. T. Staley of Victoria, in his address to the conference, said the program will take time and effort to implement.

"Who is responsible for this Social Credit government in B.C.?" he asked.

"You and I. We are the ones responsible for our lily-livered stand on political action.

"We cannot negotiate compulsory arbitration and Bill 33 out of existence. We can only beat them by political action.

"We had rallies. We made speeches. We lobbied and we talked about political action year after year. And now we stand at the crossroads."

NO OTHERS

Jack Williams of Ottawa, public relations director for the Canadian Labour Congress, said B.C. is taking action no other province has taken.

"The federal government has spent $1,250,000 on a study which will soon be made public," he said.

"Industrial relations studies are being pursued in Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia.

"British Columbia is jumping the gun with this bill and assuming it has all the ready answers before these reports have been made public.

'PHONEY'

"The implication that this is based on Swedish experience is completely phoney. This bill is in direct conflict with the (B.C. government commissioned) Nemetz report."

The federation's Beat Bill 33 program includes:

- Mobilization of unions across Canada and in the United States for financial and other help;
- Donation of up to one day's pay from trade unionists to help defeat the government in the next election;
- Creation of a Beat Bill 33 fund immediately;
- Series of information conferences throughout B.C.;
- Series of public meetings to voice labor's views on civil liberties;
- Personal contact by union members with MLAs;
- Union representation to MLAs;
- Trade unionist membership representation in the legislature when Bill 33 is being debated.

If Bill 33 is passed, the federation will petition the federal government to disallow the legislation as contrary to conventions of the International Labor Office which supports right to strike.

Mr. Haynes admitted Canada hasn't formally agreed with this "but the fact they have participated in the ILO should mean something."

COMPENSATION

course to compensation should be subject to a $500 fine.

An employee on compensation must be guaranteed the right to resume his employment, the brief said, charging that under present practice employees are penalized by going on compensation by loss of their jobs.

The practice of many firms in keeping injured employees on the job at a reduced work load even when suffering serious injury must also be ended, the brief said.

An annual review of the legislation and the administration of the Workmen's Compensation Act should be carried out by a five-member review committee, the brief said. Periodic royal commissions were insufficient.

The brief also urged a speeding-up of the board's handling of claims, charging serious delays have caused hardship for workers.

VICTORIA

Incinerator Burning Ban Turned Down

A bid to ban all incinerator burning in the city of Victoria failed in public works committee Tuesday.

City engineer James Garnett made the suggestion after the committee heard complaints of heavy garden refuse and incinerator burning in the Dallas Road area.

Mr. Garnett suggested that a bylaw banning burning be introduced.

"People don't have to burn their refuse now," he said. "The city will pick up their extra waste at very low cost. All they have to do is ask for the service."

Ald. Clyde Savage was in favor of compulsory legislation to force people to use the existing service.

But he ran into opposition from Ald. Hugh Ramsay and Ald. Ian Stewart.

"I think people have the right to burn a few leaves," said Ald. Ramsay.

"I can't see the objection and I am against introducing restrictions."

Ald. Stewart agreed.

"If I turn on my hose and flood my neighbor's lawn I am responsible for the damage," he said. "I think the same applies to a garden fire. If its creating a hazard or a nuisance or damaging the family wash, my neighbor has a way to stop me."

The motion to permit limited burning to continue, once a permit is obtained, as long as it doesn't violate the city's anti-smoke bylaw was approved.

10-Acre Minimum On Subdivisions Studied in Valley

Saanich is considering a 10-acre subdivision minimum in the Blenkinsop Valley.

The move would be "a holding measure only" until a plan for the area is finished towards the end of this year, said municipal planner Tom Loney.

Present subdivision minimum is 1.6 acres except in the flooding area where it is five acres.

If the temporary proposal is approved by council, a property owner would need 20 acres to subdivide.

The 10-acre proposal was recommended by the lands and planning committee and tabled by council for a further report.

"The purpose of 10 acres is to stop subdivision on a 1.6-acre basis until we have the Blenkinsop Valley plan," said Mr. Loney.

"On a 1.6-acre basis, it creates lots too large for an urban area and too small to be considered country estates. A substantial number of 1.6-acre lots would compromise future subdivision patterns."

He said this could lead to creation of "long, narrow lots."

Police Think Injured Man Beating Victim

A man police say was apparently beaten is in fairly good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital today.

Raymond Edward Rogers, about 35, was found near Craigflower and Admirals Road at 1:30 a.m.

Colwood RCMP said he was bleeding badly and it appeared he had been hit on the head.

He was taken to hospital where he is reported suffering concussion.

Rogers has lived in the Salvation Army hostel, 521 Johnson, for the past two weeks.

Cost Share Plan Agreed For Clinic

Central and North Saanich have agreed to participate in an inter-municipal cost-sharing plan to raise a total of $75,000 towards the Handicapped Children's Clinic Fund.

The fund is for the construction of a $650,000 clinic to be built on the grounds of the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

The city and Esquimalt have already entered the scheme, but Saanich and Oak Bay councils have yet to be heard from.

Under the inter-municipal formula for sharing grants, North Saanich will pay $1,800 and Central Saanich $1,875. The city's share is $28,875 and Esquimalt's $6,600—all to be paid over a three-year period.

The fund is seeking to raise $250,000 through civic grants, public subscriptions and industries. A total of $400,000 has been pledged by provincial and federal governments.

So far the fund has raised $30,000 through public subscriptions.

NO STAND-IN

Johnson Decides Against Primary

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lyndon B. Johnson, who still hasn't said whether he will run again in November's U.S. presidential election, let it be known Tuesday that he doesn't want to be a candidate in April.

Massachusetts holds its presidential primary April 30, and Johnson declined to permit his name to be placed on the Democratic preference ballot, nor would he permit a stand-in candidate to run in his place.

A number of states have presidential primaries in the coming months. Registered party members, in primary voting, indicate the candidate they prefer. The official party nominee is chosen later at a national convention of party delegates from each state.

Since Tuesday was the primary ballot deadline in Massachusetts, that means the name of Senator Eugene McCarthy (Dem. Minn.) will be the only one on the Democratic preference ballot.

If he wins, Massachusetts party delegates, by that state's law, must support him at the national nominating convention.

Primary voters can write in the names of persons they prefer, however, and Democratic party leaders are expected to mount a write-in drive for Johnson—which they can do without his assent.

REGRETS MOVE

McCarthy, a dovish opponent to Johnson's Vietnam policies, regretted that Johnson had "decided not to have a direct confrontation with me, particularly in view of the overriding urgency of the great issues facing the nation today."

Elsewhere in the politics-and-primaries picture Tuesday, there were these developments among Republicans:

Former vice-president Richard Nixon, widely considered leading candidate for his party's presidential nomination, campaigned in New Hampshire, where he is entered on the state's March 12 ballot.

He pledged to end the Vietnam war if he were president, but wasn't specific about how he'd do it.

"I can assure you we'll find the way by using our economic and diplomatic and political leadership and add that to what we're doing militarily," he said.

Nixon said he would support the Republican presidential nominee, whomever he may be.

That could be Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, who said in Albany that he's "not volunteering for anything."

"I'm not burning my draft card either," added Rockefeller, who would become an increasingly promising presidential prospect if Nixon failed to fare well in the primaries.

Another top Republican, Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, said in Sacramento, Calif., the "stakes are too big" to allow dissension among Republicans, and pledged to support the convention's choice.

Across the country, in Washington, Reagan got in another call for unity when, in a message delivered at a party fund-raising affair, he called for an end to "bickering and backbiting" among Republicans.

Barry Goldwater, the 1964 Republican presidential candidate, told the same meeting the way to win is to "combine the roughness of Nixon with the softness of Reagan."

Reagan says he's "not a candidate" for president.

PRISONERS TO TEST PESTICIDE EFFECTS

OTTAWA (CP)—Prisoners at Kingston penitentiary have volunteered to be human guinea pigs to study the effect on humans of agricultural pesticides and other chemicals.

Up to 50 prisoners may be involved, on a strictly voluntary basis, in the study being carried out by the federal food and drug directorate, the Canadian penitentiary service and Queen's University pharmacology department.

A statement Tuesday by Health Minister MacEachen and Solicitor-General Pennell said the studies will assess how the human body alters and excretes small amounts of chemicals found in food as a result of farming and processing practices.

The amounts of chemicals used would be similar to those found in foods already on the Canadian market.

Father Couldn't See Titanic Rockets: Son

LONDON (AP) — New evidence was cited Tuesday in a fresh effort to clear the name of a sea captain blamed for some of the 1,500 lives lost in one of history's best-remembered tragedies at sea—the Titanic.

Once again Britain's board of trade was asked to reopen the inquiry into the sinking of the luxury liner which hit an iceberg in the North Atlantic in April, 1912.

The original formal inquiry ruled that the captain of another ship could have gone to the Titanic's help and saved the lives of some passengers.

The new petition asked for the reopening of that part of the case to clear the name of the late Stanley Lord, skipper of the Californian.

Before he died in 1962 Lord claimed repeatedly that the Titanic was in an icefield 20 to 30 miles from his ship and that he was unable to help.

The new petition is based on an affidavit from a survivor of the Titanic, Lawrence Beesley, who died last year at the age of 89.

Beesley lists the time of the last distress rocket fired from the sinking Titanic. If correct the Californian could not have seen the rockets.

The original inquiry, which did not have this testimony available, charged that Lord ignored the distress rockets.

The captain's son, Stanley Lord, a retired bank official, is seeking to clear his father's name, implicated in the book and film on the sinking, A Night to Remember.

China Seeding Hit By Political Turmoil

HONG KONG (AP) — Red Chinese provincial radio broadcasts said Monday political turmoil and factional fighting are severely hampering spring planting in much of Soth China.

One broadcast indicated the enemies of Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung have disrupted traffic on the main railway lines carrying Chinese weapons from the southwest province of Yunnan to North Vietnam.

'PROMPTED BY GREED'

Court Throws Out Holzworth Claim

VANCOUVER (CP)—Contractor Dick Holzworth of Helena, Mont., Tuesday lost his $65,000 damage suit against Vancouver promoter Arthur Burton Lymburner following a British Columbia Supreme Court trial involving a 1957 highways department contract.

Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe said Holzworth had not proved the fraud he alleged.

Holzworth claimed Lymburner fraudulently misrepresented the financial condition of L and M Logging Co. and the state of work on the highway contract.

Lymburner denied Holzworth's claims and said he made a full disclosure to him at the time of his investment in the company. He said financial difficulties the firm got into later resulted from mismanagement.

"I do not believe that the plaintiff was either as careless or as stupid as he would have the court believe," Mr. Justice Munroe said. "I think, rather, that he in common with his associates, was prompted to enter into this venture by greed."

Glenn Geary and Clyde Thornton, also Montana contractors, were involved in the contract with Lymburner and Holzworth.

BEACON HILL BIKE RACES ON IN MAY

The Victoria Cycling Club will again hold its annual bike races in Beacon Hill Park in May.

But parks administrator Herb Warren isn't happy about the event.

The application of the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association to hold the annual race on May 18 was approved by committee Tuesday.

"I have stated my objections before but have always been overruled," Mr. Warren said. "The race is dangerous and I think you will find the police chief agrees with me on that."

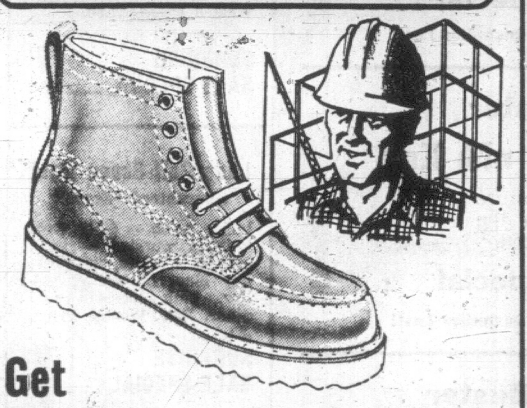

The parks committee voted unanimously to give the race the green light.

Post time this year will be 1 p.m.

Grit Repeats Win

WINNIPEG (CP) — Liberal Ed Dow's narrow victory in a 1966 provincial election was questioned then nullified by a court decision. Monday, the former Boissevain mayor made no mistake in a byelection, winning by more than 200 votes over his nearest opponent, Progressive Conservative Allan Rose.

INCLUDE CIVIL CASES

B.C. Studying Legal Aid Plan

By BRUCE YEMEN

Possibility of a full-scale legal aid system in British Columbia is getting careful study, Attorney-General Bonner told the Legislature Tuesday.

He was replying during debate on his departmental estimates to a question by Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) who warned that a flood of divorce cases after May 1 will point up the need for civil as well as criminal legal aid.

Mr. Macdonald said "literally thousands of people are tied to dead marriages" in the province and that the new divorce law effective May 1 will mean a big backlog of cases will hit the courts.

But many people will continue in a "living hell" because a divorce case—possibly even more costly and complicated than before—will remain financially out of reach, he said.

'LIP-SERVICE'

He said the cost of legal aid in B.C. this year will be borne largely by lawyers and that it amounts to lip-service to equality under the law.

"The well-to-do fellow has a better chance in the courts," he said.

Legal aid should be a matter of right, not charity, he said, calling for a system of public defenders and legal aid centres for the poor.

Mr. Bonner said his department is studying closely Ontario's new legal aid system—"the only full-blown legal aid program on an enriched sort."

"We don't know what it will cost and Ontario doesn't know either," he said.

He said his department is working closely with a B.C. Law Society sub-committee on a number of possible improvements to the current system.

In addition he plans a trip to Los Angeles this year to study the public defender system there, he said.

In replies to other questions from Mr. Macdonald the attorney-general said the royal commission on automobile insurance hadn't yet indicated when its report will be ready.

NO SPECIAL SESSION

Mr. Macdonald asked if he planned to call a special session of the legislature to deal with the report in view of the fact that an estimated 16,000 drivers are kept off B.C. roads for financial reasons.

Mr. Bonner said he hoped the whole question of drivers who are denied driving rights because of failure to provide proof of financial liability or because of judgments against them will be clarified by the commission.

Study of the report will take some time, he said, and no special session of the legislature will be called.

Mr. Macdonald urged a publicly-administered insurance program to solve the problem.

Mr. Bonner agreed with the NDP member of the importance of separation of the processes of justice and recommended that the magistrates court in the proposed Vancouver courthouse be physically apart from the police, prosecution and jail functions.

Garde Gardom (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) urged an end to "behind the barn" drinking laws and called for Sunday liquor with meals, entertainment in pubs and liquor room service in hotels.

He also asked for a $2,000,000 public education program on the moderate use of alcohol, which he said could be paid out of $52,000,000 liquor board profits.

SUMMER SITTING OF COURTS

Attorney - General Robert Bonner Tuesday said courts will begin sitting in July and August.

He was replying in the legislature to a suggestion by Garde Gardom (L — Vancouver-Point Grey) that the traditional two-month legal holiday be cut due to the growing backlog of cases.

Mr. Bonner said a revision of the sitting schedule for courts is about to enter its final consideration.

"There will be provision for July and August availability of the courts," he said.

CUTS WAITING TIME TO SIX MONTHS

Interests of Children Come First in New Bill

The needs of a child will be placed ahead of the technical rights of the parents in government wardship cases under two bills introduced Monday in the legislature by Social Welfare Minister Dan Campbell.

The bills would amend the Child Protection Act and the Adoption Act along lines proposed by a 1965 legislative committee study, re-inforced by the consensus of a foster parents conference last April and an adoptive parents conference last fall.

One amendment would establish a "temporary committal" of a child to agency care in cases involving protection of children.

A social welfare department spokesman explained this would make it easier to return the child to the parents where feasible.

FASTER ADOPTION

At the same time, another amendment would establish a "permanent committal" to agency care and this would into an adoption family in the event return to its natural parents is not feasible.

The spokesman said present procedures require up to two years waiting time, particularly in the case of abandoned children, before a child can be adopted. The new system would cut this to six months, greatly increasing the likelihood of adoption.

Parents could appeal a permanent committal order as a matter of right, under the proposed legislation, by applying to a Supreme Court judge to terminate the order.

Freeze All Rents For Year: Berger

An opposition MLA Tuesday introduced a bill aimed at modernizing a B.C. statute copied from a centuries-old English law.

Tom Berger (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) proposed legislation which would amend the Landlord and Tenant Act which he said "is simply a copy of an English statute passed during the reign of Queen Anne 250 years ago."

The bill would freeze all rents for one year, place the onus for repairs on the landlord and provide a "rent-strike" procedure enabling tenants to ensure essential repairs are carried out.

It also prohibits landlord discrimination against renting to families with children and sets up a quick and inexpensive procedure for landlords to repossess immediately premises when tenants wilfully refuse to pay rent or cause damage.

. . . And So It Goes

Agriculture Minister Richter, after explaining that tranquillizer "implants" behind the ears of cattle were not in the edible portion: "I don't know . . . I haven't eaten an ear in a long time. I've been married for 35 years."

★ ★ ★

Richter: "I don't take out insurance because I don't feel I'll ever die, in spite of the opposition."

Premier Bennett: "I don't think he will either."

Attorney-General Robert Bonner, answering requests for more entertainment in pubs: "There is a certain amount of entertainment right now as matters stand, if you select the right pub at the right time."

★ ★ ★

Premier Bennett to Hartley: "Don't put words in my mouth, my friend."

Dowding: "There's no room!"

Strachan: "He's always got his foot in it."

How About Employing Indians?

Agriculture Minister Frank Richter told the legislature Tuesday he had studied the possibility of bringing in labor from Jamaica to work on B.C. farms.

"I made no recommendation because I didn't think it was feasible," Mr. Richter said.

During discussion of a vote for $22,000 for farm labor services, William Hartley (NDP—Yale Lillooet) said only $3,000 had been spent in the current year.

"Could we not do more to move our native Indians to fruit and vegetable areas?" Mr. Hartley asked.

He suggested the money could help provide transportation and housing for seasonal labor.

Mr. Richter said there are organizations well equipped to provide such help, such as growers associations.

"Actual transportation is not that much of a cost factor," Mr. Richter said.

The average cost to transport a worker from one part of the province to another is about $10, he said.

"If it isn't worth that much to the farmer to have them I don't think they need them."

THE SHAPE OF TOMORROW

Epcot a Lot Like Camelot With Sun, No Rain, Inside

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

What will the city of 2000 AD be like?

The late Walt Disney had the answer before he died on Dec. 15, 1966.

And his vision is now taking shape at Orlando, Florida—3,000 miles from the magic kingdom he created at Disneyland, California, in 1955.

During a recent visit to Disneyland, I saw a scale model of the City of Tomorrow his loyal henchmen are now building in Florida.

It will be known as Epcot.

Disney envisioned Epcot as the first accident-free, noise-free, pollution-free city in the world.

The man who created Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck was dying of an internal ailment when he sketched out his plan for Epcot—a project which will cover 435 square miles and cost more than $650,000,000.

Disney's City of Tomorrow looks like a gigantic wheel.

At the hub is a hotel more than 30 storeys high. Surrounding it are high-density apartments, a wide green belt of recreational areas; schools and churches; low-density areas of homes; and at the outer rim, far from the residential community, an industrial centre.

Underground are highways for trucks and buses. A level above, but still below the surface, are roads for automobiles and a fast-moving monorail system.

The entire commercial and shopping centre of Epcot, covering more than 50 acres and radiating from the centre, is enclosed by a great plastic roof.

Inside the centre is climate-controlled so that pedestrians—shopping, dining or simply strolling—don't care whether it's rain or shine, hot or cold, night or day.

SUN STORED

Whatever happens outside, there is sunshine within—even if it be stored-up sunshine.

And what of the people of Epcot? Will they be at war or peace when the city is completed in 1975?

Disney believed in the United Nations and saw in it the nucleus of a world order that would preclude total war.

"Undoubtedly," he wrote, "there will be more regional wars but I think, if there was to be all-out nuclear war, it would have happened before now."

MESSIAH NOT ANSWER, SAYS PUBLISHER

Negotiated, Institutional Solutions Right Approach to Quebec Problem

MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Ryan, publisher of Le Devoir, says the problem of Quebec nationalism is not going to be solved by the appearance of a saviour or a messiah.

In a speech to a businessmen's association, he warned English Canada against entertaining such an illusion.

"There must be negotiated solutions, institutional solutions," he added.

He later said the current messiah is Justice Minister Trudeau, Liberal leadership candidate.

English Canada's constant search for a French-Canadian messiah was a mistake, based on many mistaken illusions about Quebec, he said.

Although he felt Mr. Trudeau's presence in the leadership race "very interesting," he did not agree with the justice minister on several points.

For instance, the justice minister was not correct in saying that Ottawa deserved the credit for obtaining language rights for French-speaking Canadians outside Quebec. Credit actually should go to provincial premiers such as John Robarts of Ontario and Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick, to the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism and to 10 years of sustained pressure by the Quebec provincial government.

Mr. Ryan said the realistic instinct of French-speaking Canadians suggested to him that the majority of the population preferred to find a satisfactory solution to the country's constitutional problems that would include "the maintenance of an organized link with Canada."

He felt Quebec's two main political parties, the Liberals and the Union Nationale, best reflected the "real aspirations of the Quebec voter."

"In constitutional matters (Premier) Johnson has moved towards the centre since he got into power. By comparison, the Quebec Liberal party has drawn up a list of powers sought for the province that is strangely similar to the requests formulated by the Union Nationale. There now are only differences of detail between the two parties."

Goiters: Various Types, Treatment

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

There are a number of types of goiter—enlargements of the thyroid gland which lies just below the Adam's apple. One is a rubbery goiter which is usually not toxic, and the woman or man is not made ill by it. If it gets big, it is deforming and ugly, and hence it should be removed.

Alvarez

Then there is the nontoxic adenoma. Adeno means a gland, and Oma means a tumor, hence an adenoma is a nodule in the thyroid gland. Sometimes it produces too much thyroid hormone, which makes the pulse race and makes the woman feel warm and ill and sleepless and perhaps makes her very nervous and toxic, and then the little tumor should be removed.

Also there is the exopthalmic goiter. Ex means out, and Opthalmic refers to the eyes; hence the word means a goiter which is full of hormone which pushes the eyes forward. This disease, if not treated, can seriously damage the heart.

There is another trouble which is a sort of inflammation of the thyroid gland—called Hashimoto's disease.

★ ★ ★

Recently, there was an editorial in the journal of the American Medical Association, in which the author favored the treatment of hyperthyroidism (a condition in which there is too much thyroid hormone) with an operation. A number of able physicians promptly wrote in disagreeing with this idea.

They were in favor of using the so-called atomic cocktail, made of radioactive iodine that accumulates in the thyroid gland and there can destroy it. However, several of the writers said that their only objection was that they thought the editor should have admitted that both the operation and the treatment with radioactive iodine have advantages and disadvantages.

The operation is a difficult one and hence should be performed only by a man who has been well trained in this field of surgery. He has to work in a very bloody field, and he has to avoid cutting one of the important nerves which run close behind the goiter, Injuring one of them will leave the person able only to whisper. Also, the surgeon must take great care not to remove the four tiny parathyroid glands which lie back of the goiter, because their destruction can bring on an often-troublesome disease.

Another problem of the surgeon is that while taking out enough of the overly active gland to give the woman health, he must try to leave enough of it so that she will not be left hypothyroid all her life, and compelled to take each day a dose of thyroid hormone.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Garry Blaser, age 11, of Enid, Oklahoma, for his question:

Does a person's blood type change?

A person's blood is a complicated brew of assorted chemicals. In a healthy body the ingredients are rich and chemically balanced. Sickness causes many unhappy changes in a person's blood and the balanced recipe may lose some of its peppy bounce with age. But, so far as we know, a person's basic blood type does not change throughout life.

A person's blood group is a very important item in his medical history. In cases of surgery or serious accident, a patient may need a transfusion of blood from someone else to restore him to life. Bottles of red blood are donated and kept on hand for these emergencies. They are carefully labelled according to their blood groups, because a patient can accept only blood of a certain type. Whole blood from a donor must be the right type to mix with the blood of the patient. A transfusion of the wrong type causes the patient's blood to clot and the clumps could be fatal.

Nowadays, certain types of transfusions can be done which do not depend on matching blood types. This is not because medical science has learned how to change blood types. The assorted chemicals in a person's blood may change for the better or for the worse. But his basic blood type does not change. It is a very general classification based on merely one or two of the hundreds of assorted chemicals in the complicated blood stream.

At the turn of the century, the new idea of blood transfusions was full of promises. Patients suffering from serious surgery were revived. Lives were saved after serious accidents. But with all this success, there were many miserable failures. Doctors could not understand why transfusions of whole blood were fatal to certain patients and lifesavers to others. So research scientists analyzed blood samples from different people more closely. Not all blood, they discovered, is alike. Some types refuse to blend with others. When these types are mixed, the floating red cells clump together and the lumpy clots tend to clog vessels in the patient's circulatory system.

Have Blood Type on Record

The clumping of red cells is called "agglutinating." The problem occurs when certain agglutinogen substances in the red cells are mixed with certain agglutin proteins in the liquid plasma. A sample of your blood reveals a compatible blend of these substances. This is true for everyone. But the blended recipes are not all alike. Certain agglutinogens in the person's red cells may be forced to cause clumping by certain agglutinins in somebody else's plasma.

The agglutinating factors were classed at type A and type B. Your blood may contain either of these factors, both of them or none at all. You belong in a group A or B, in group AB or O—and there you stay. An O type can give whole blood to anyone. An AB type can accept blood from anyone. Other mixtures may be disastrous. It is simple and sensible to have your blood type on record in case of emergency.

The red cells that contain the agglutinating factors float in the liquid plasma of the blood. For some types of transfusions, this plasma is the vital ingredient. Nowadays, in many cases, the red cells can be removed—and with them goes the clumping problem. A person's blood type does not change. But medical science has changed the picture of transfusions between blood groups—for the better. With the red cells removed, anyone's plasma may be acceptable to all four groups.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Jody Dell Seay, age 10, of Houston, Texas, for her question:

Where does radium come from?

Radium is one of several radioactive substances found in the earth's crust. These radioactive substances change from day to day. Every hour, a certain number of their atoms change into atoms of some other substance. Big atoms of uranium break up into smaller atoms and these smaller atoms break into still smaller atoms. The original uranium changes step by step into a special kind of lead. At one step, it forms atoms of radium. But radium also is radioactive. Right on schedule, its atoms break into smaller atoms of other substances.

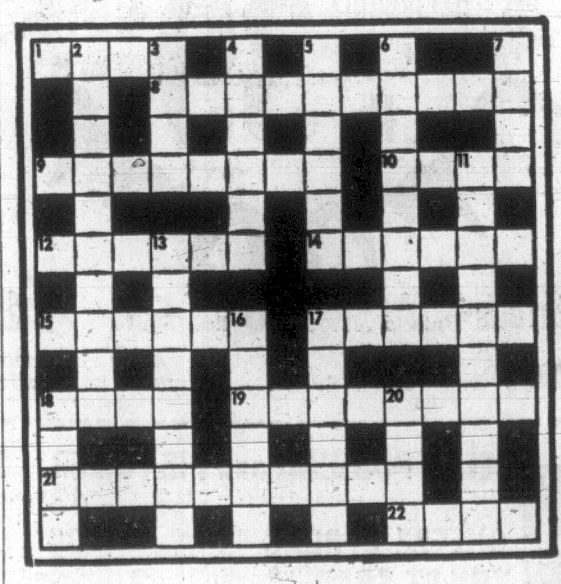

The earth's radium is part of a long chain of radioactivity that takes billions of years. It is born and it dies in a rock where other atoms also are changing. Separating it is a hard job and there is never much of it in a rocky ore. We can take it from pitchblende or carnotite, autunite or uraninite, or from other rocky ores of uranium. Two hundred tons of the best ore may give us 100 tons of uranium and just one little ounce of radium. No wonder that little bit of radium is worth half a million dollars.

Ottawa Sticks To Statement

PARIS NEXT TO FOLLOW GABON LEAD?

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson says he does not know about any plans of France to invite Quebec to an educational conference in Paris.

Mr. Johnson was commenting on a rumor circulating here Tuesday that France plans to follow the precedent of Gabon and bypass Ottawa to deal directly with the provincial government.

The premier was asked whether Quebec had received any invitations from any other French-speaking countries.

He replied:

"No, not that I know of."

Asked whether he would accept any such invitations, he said:

"I never answer hypothetical questions."

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal sources said today Ottawa sticks by its statement that it suggested to Quebec that Quebec Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal head a Canadian delegation to an international education conference in Gabon last month.

Canada has suspended diplomatic relations with Gabon for by-passing Ottawa and inviting Quebec to attend the Feb. 5-10 conference. Mr. Cardinal headed the Quebec delegation.

Prime Minister Pearson said in a statement Monday that Ottawa's willingness to ensure the fullest Quebec representation on a Canadian delegation to the meeting was made clear more than once to Quebec authorities.

"Indeed, it was suggested that the Quebec minister of education could head a Canadian delegation," Mr. Pearson added.

Premier Johnson of Quebec said Tuesday that the federal government never officially invited Mr. Cardinal to head a Canadian delegation.

Informants here have said that Paris was behind Gabon's action, which included dispatch of a note interpreting the Canadian constitution.

A new confrontation is expected in the fall when the 17 French-speaking nations of Africa, plus France and Madagascar, hold their next edueational conference.

It is not yet known here which country will act as host for the next meeting. It could be France. Gabon was host for last month's meeting and, Ottawa officials say, received Mr. Cardinal as a head of state.

Mr. Johnson said he knows of no plans of France to invite Quebec to the next education conference.

SERIOUS QUESTION

Federal sources said today the entire incident might appear to be one of protocol or petty legality. But the question was serious.

The question boiled down to: Does Quebec want to go it alone abroad or does it accept being part of a bilingual and bicultural Canada?

The sources said modification of the constitution is a matter for Canadians.

Ottawa could not accept any intervention by foreign governments in the discussion by their statements or actions.

The constitution might be changed some time. But it had not yet been and should be represented by both Ottawa and the provinces. Even more, foreign governments should do the same.

The sources said that when a Commonwealth education conference takes place, Ottawa invites all the provinces to be represented on the Canadian delegation. Why should it be different for an education conference among French-speaking nations?

Sources said there is nothing in the constitution which entitles Quebec to be present alone at an international conference.

Representation limited to Quebec did not correspond to the interests of Canada or to those of all French-speaking Canadians in all the provinces.

N. VIETNAMESE WILL VISIT SWITZERLAND

BERN (AP) — The Swiss government announced today that a North Vietnam foreign ministry official will soon visit Switzerland.

At the same time it disclosed that its ambassador to Peking, Oscar Rossetti, had talks "on the political situation" with the North Vietnamese foreign minister in Hanoi during a five-day visit there in mid-February.

The statement immediately sparked off more speculation that Switzerland may be trying to set up a Vietnam peace conference in Geneva. But the government continued to deny this.

Rossetti has been appointed official Swiss government representative to the North Vietnam foreign ministry, although it is denied that this in any way implies Swiss recognition of the Hanoi regime.

Soon Everyone a Chief In Armed Forces, Says MP

OTTAWA (CP) — The prestige of faster promotions is one way the armed forces compensate for the hazards and mobility required by military life, Lt.-Gen. E. M. Reyno, chief of personnel, said Tuesday.

Replying to criticism that there are 35,000 corporals in the 100,000-man Canadian unified force, Gen. Reyno said giving a man corporal's stripes after successful completion of his five-year apprenticeship designates him as a professional Canadian soldier.

He told the Commons defence committee that high enlistment requirements and high standards of training give Canadian servicemen skills that are easily marketable in civilian life.

Pay scales were about equal with private industry for similar jobs, but fringe benefits in the armed forces were well behind.

Douglas Harkness, a former Conservative defence minister, complained that early promotions are "destroying the rank structure" of the forces.

Corporals were doing the work of privates and captains the work of lieutenants.

WAY TO PAY MORE

Mr. Harkness said it is just a way of giving them higher pay. He said recruiting emphasis is entirely on pay and fringe benefits.

"That has not been the basic reason why people adopted service careers and why they stayed in."

He cited liking for the way of life, loyalty and pride in a unit as a big factors.

Gen. Reyno said the situation is different today than even 10 years ago. Young people were "realisitic" and were concerned about housing, pensions, education for their children and community stability.

Planning on ways to encourage people to stay in the service was based on questionnaires answered by those who left the service.

Heber Smith (PC — Simcoe North) said making every technical man a corporal is down-grading the role of the section leader.

Gen. Reyno said the leadership qualities of the section leader are recognized by a crown on his sleeve designating a senior corporal. Provision was made for 1,500 such ranks and about 900 had been filled.

Marcel Lambert (PC — Edmonton West) complained that the senior corporal rank has been given to former army personnel, but not to former air force personnel doing the same job.

The three Conservative critics also challenged the wisdom of combining intelligence and police training in one school.

NINE PEOPLE KILLED; FIRES STARTED BY GAS

HOUSTON (UPI)—Fires, which officials said appeared to have been deliberately set, swept two houses less than two blocks apart in East Houston Tuesday night and early today and killed nine persons.

Arson investigator M. E. Manos said gasoline appeared to have been poured on the floor of the house in which one man died. He believed gasoline or kerosene was used to start the rooming-house fire.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Jetliner Pilots Indicted

TAIPEI, Formosa (Reuters) — Two American pilots of a Boeing 727 jetliner in which 21 persons were killed when it crashed were indicted Tuesday on charges of manslaughter through negligence.

Stuart Dew, 46, captain of the plane, was charged with manslaughter through occupational negligence and Hugh Hicks, 51, was charged with manslaughter through negligence.

They were part of the crew of a jetliner carrying 63 persons on a flight from Hong Kong to Taipei which crashed near here Feb. 16.

The indictment identified Dew as captain of the plane and said Hicks was at the controls on the flight. Both have been barred from leaving Formosa.

A Formosa civil aviation administration report on the crash said Hicks, though qualified to fly 727s, was not listed as the pilot or co-pilot on the flight and failed to control the altitude of the airliner over Linkou, 12 miles northwest of here near where the plane crashed.

The report said Dew was responsible for the crash because he turned his seat over to Hicks.

Peninsula Orchestra Concert Set

The 30-piece Peninsula Concert Orchestra—the only such amateur group on the lower Island—will present its fourth annual concert at Claremont Secondary School, Wesley Road, Friday at 8 p.m.

Under the Saanich Night School program, the orchestra meets once a week. It will be assisted by the Metchosin Choral Group which consists of 20 singers from the Metchosin, Glen Lake and Langford area.

Conductor of both orchestra and choir is Derek MacDermot, well known Victoria singer and musician.

Orchestral numbers will include the Sailors' Dance from Purcell's Dido and Aeneas, Intermezzo, Mascagni; the second movement of Beethoven's Symphony No. 1; Nicolai's Merry Wives of Windsor overture and selections from Bernstein's West Side Story and Kern's Cat and the Fiddle.

Night and Dreams by Schubert, September Song by Kurt Weill, two selections from Mikado and Gondoliers and Edwards' By the Bend of the River, will be the choral selections.

All proceeds will go to supply new music for the orchestra.

Work Party Organized By Boy Scouts

A work party is being organized by Boy Scout officials to clean up Camp Barnard, the district scout camp near Sooke.

A scout house spokesman said today notices have been sent to leaders of scout groups in the district, asking for volunteers.

Work parties will be detailed to put the camp back in order for the spring-summer camping season, the spokesman said.

The date set for the cleanup is Saturday, March 23, between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. A bean supper following the work has been planned for the scouts, leaders, rovers and other officials who turnout.

Labor Committee Jolted by Letter

OTTAWA (CP) — Donald MacDonald, acting president of the Canadian Labor Congress, jolted the Commons labor committee Tuesday by producing a letter from the International Brotherhood of Teamsters voicing opposition to the government's controversial labor board bill.

He sprang the letter on Bryce Mackasey, minister without portfolio, after Mackasey said it was unfair of the CLC to say that the labor bill was inspired by the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

Mackasey quoted testimony before the labor committee Feb. 1 by Labor Minister Nicholson to the effect that the teamsters union, as well as the CNTU, supported the changes proposed in the legislation.

The labor minister's remarks at that time were made in response to questions by Mackasey who then was the minister's parliamentary secretary.

MacDonald produced a copy of a letter sent to Nicholson by H. Ray Greene of Montreal, an official of the teamsters' eastern conference. It was dated Feb. 2.

The letter complained about Nicholson's remarks and said the teamsters oppose the bill.

MacDonald said there is no doubt in anybody's mind that the bill is an appeasement to the CNTU which is seeking to remove Quebec workers from national bargaining units. Under existing law, it has been unsuccessful in previous attempts to obtain certification for CBC and railway workers in Quebec who belong to national units.

The CLC executive spent four hours before the committee Tuesday, most of the time fencing with Liberal MPs on the issues of CLC representation on the Canada Labor Relations Board and the implications of the new bill.

MacDonald rejected suggestions that the presence of three CLC nominees on the board, compared to only one from the CNTU, leads to bias against the CNTU in board decisions.

Police Ask Public's Help In Finding Missing Worker

CHEMAINUS — Millworker William Sowerby of Chemainus has been missing since Saturday night when he went visiting friends on a boat at the government wharf.

He was not reported missing till late Sunday evening.

Divers searched the immediate Chemainus harbor area near the waharf Monday without success.

Chemainus RCMP have now asked for help from the public in finding Mr. Sowerby who is 58.

A police spokesman said today: "We don't know if he's in the water or just disappeared."

Sowerby is 5'8" tall, weights 160 pounds and has light brown hair turning grey. He was wearing blue pants, blue shirt and no topcoat.

LADYSMITH — Two Port Arthur youths who pleaded guilty to the Feb. 13 theft of $14,820 in American Express travellers' cheques were sentenced here Tuesday.

James Taranin, 18, was sentenced to 12 months definite and nine months indeterminate at Haney Correctional Institute.

His companion Peter Walas, 19, received a two-year suspended sentence and was sent back to his home.

The accused stole the cheques from Ladysmith Credit Union and were caught when Taranin tried to cash one at a Duncan bank.

NANAIMO — A 17-year-old youth must visit 10 Nanaimo beer parlors and identify himself as being too young to drink.

He must then return to police court with 10 signatures of the beer parlor managers.

This unusual order was made by Magistrate Eric Winch in police court Tuesday when the youth pleaded guilty to entering a beer parlor last Friday.

NANAIMO — Fire chief John Colin McArthur, who retires at the end of this month, will be succeeded by Deputy Chief Albert Dunn.

Chief McArthur joined the department April 1, 1939. He and Mr. Dunn joined in the same year.

Council has ratifed labor relations committee recommendations giving firemen an 11 per cent increase retroactive to Jan. 1.

COURTENAY — The Courtenay Chamber of Commerce is against the Horne Lake route for a new road to Port Alberni.

The chamber still supports a road via Cumberland. Not a single member at a recent meeting favored the Horne Lake route.

Curbs Sought On Fruit From Australia

British Columbia should curb inportation of Australian fruit, Dave Stupich (NDP — Nanaimo) told the legislature Tuesday.

Mr. Stupich said the Australian fruit is surplus production and subsidized by the Australian government. It is posing unfair competion to B.C. fruit growers.

Agriculture Minister Frank Richter said "while we're making representation to Ottawa, we haven't the power in B.C. to exclude these imports into Canada."

Mr. Richter said a suggestion by Mr. Stupich for a B.C. subsidy or incentive to fruit growers within the province would be a "stop-gap measure, not based on sound economics."

"We would prefer to control the inflow," the minister said.

Sharp Rise In House Construction

NORTH COWICHAN — An unusual number of new housing starts was recorded in February in North Cowichan.

Building inspector Ken Brownsey said permits were issued for 17 new homes.

The new housing surge covered the general area including Chemainus, Crofton and the south end of the municipality.

The February total was $298,600 compared to $84,783 in February last year.

Two-month total for 1968 was $416,200 compared to $192,382 last year.

OFFICER FAILS TO SETTLE MILL DISPUTE

PORT ALBERNI — Provincial officer Jack Sherlock was unsuccessful Tuesday in an attempt to end the work stoppage at MacMillan Bloedel's Somass sawmill.

Forklift operators walked off their jobs Thursday to protest the suspension of two men.

Almost 1,000 workers have been idled.

OUCH! THAT HURTS would be what most creatures would say when they felt the business end of a hypodermic needle this size. But killer whale at Pender Harbour takes this vitamin shot from veterinarian Dr. Roberta Hartman without so much as a flick of the dorsal. Fishermen used slings to hoist unnamed whale while vet administered shot and gathered blood sample. Whale, which was captured by fishermen, has been sold for $5,000 to Vancouver Aquarium where Dr. Hartman works. But she will remain at Pender for another two months living on herring diet.

It's a Girl, 5,000 Pounds

VANCOUVER (CP)— A whale captured at Pender Harbour, north of here, will only be a playmate and not a mate for Skana, who now romps at the Vancouver Aquarium.

After conducting a six-hour test, curator Vince Penfold said the whale is a female, weighs in at about 5,000 pounds, is about five to seven years old and 16 feet long.

"She is docile and friendly," he said. "She'll make a great attraction when we move her to the aquarium in a few months."

PTA Leaders Changing Direction

DUNCAN — Parent-teacher relations at the secondary level in this district are receiving a shot in the arm.

The near moribund PTAs at individual schools are being replaced by a Cowichan District Parent-Teacher Association.

It is the only functioning secondary PTA in the province.

One of the founders, Mrs. Doreen McIntyre, said Tuesday: "Chief function of the PTA is to act as a means of communication.

●

"The aim is to get parents together with teachers to discuss problems of mutual concern.

"We are trying to change the concept of the PTA. Previously it was mainly a fund-raising organization and this proved a deterrent to the popularity of the association in regard to its other functions."

Principal Grant Garnett of Mount Prevost School says: "There is no question of teachers feeling that parents are sticking their noses in where they're not wanted.

"The interest of parents is always welcome."

●

Mr. Garnett said previous fund-raising efforts by PTA groups were to provide schools with luxury items of equipment.

Now, because school boards are meeting these needs more and more PTAs have outlived their usefulness in this regard.

Mr. Garnett said recent mass delegations at the legislature illustrated the PTA intention to try and influence educational changes at the provincial level.

Cowichan PTA has decided to hold four panel discussion sessions a year alternately at the four secondary schools in the district.

●

The first will be held Thursday, at Mount Prevost School when the topic will be "Shift Systems in Secondary Schools."

Panel members will be school board chairman Joseph Frumento; Trustee John Efford, chairman of the transportation committee; H. E. Dewar, principal of Alexander Elementary School; and Mr. Garnett.

Dr. Owen Gloster will be moderator.

Discharge Of Waste Called Safe

PENDER ISLAND — Discharging primary sewage waste into Swanson Strait off Pender Island would not pollute local waters, a technical adviser told a pollution control board hearing here Monday.

Dr. Mervin Stewart said strong currents in the channel would carry away and dissipate the waste.

There are no beaches in the area, he added.

The hearing considered an application by H. G. Topliss to discharge effluent into the sea from two large subdivisions about three miles south of Port Washington.

100 LOTS

The adjacent subdivisions contain over 100 lots.

It is proposed to treat the effluent in two special septic tanks before the waste is piped 200 feet to sea and discharged in about 50 feet of water.

About 70 attended the hearing. It is the first application of its kind made on the island.

Most persons at the hearing wanted to know the details of the sewage disposal plan and to be assured the sewage would not pollute nearby bays.

C. J. Keenan, pollution control board director, took the application under consideration.

BRIGHTER DAY

Grey Skies Sung Away By Robin

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Early Tuesday morning!

As I write this column I can look from my window and see fog drifting low over the housetops. It's warm and moist with a promise of sunshine to come.

Forbes

Muggy is the word many would use to describe this day. I can think of no better. It is muggy. And but for that promise of sun, it could be depressing.

Even our gardens, pulsing with awakening life as they must be beneath the refuse of last year's growth, look neglected in this light.

They challenge us to get out and test the damp, wet earth. Or if not that to at least look up the old seed catalogues and dream of the color and perfume that is weeks away from realization.

At this point my own words tempted me to leave the typewriter and go into our garden where the soil is so wet we sink up to our heel tops with every step.

★ ★ ★

I looked at the dead leaves that clog the borders, the clusters of black stems leaning forlorn and still in the perennial bed, the brittle stalks of dead flowers. And like many another, I longed for the days up ahead.

This mood held me when I came back to finish my column. And, but for a hap'instance (as a friend once called it) I might have concluded on just as muggy a note as the morning.

The hap'instance? I looked out my window again. A robin sat on the highest gable of a house across the road. And suddenly, I was conscious—not of the mist and the grey sky—but of the blossoming trees all along our street and now in full spate of pink bloom.

Below my window, spears of forsythia were golden yellow. Little clumps of wandas, first of the primrose family to appear, were wine purple against the wet earth.

A bevy of yellow and purple crocus flowers, encircling a central tree, looked radiant in the pale light.

★ ★ ★

When I looked toward the cutting garden of a golf club at the back of our place, I could see rows of golden daffodils (pale ladies of the grey morning) nodding a friendly greeting.

Beyond the daffodils, the club's gardener had drawn the black earth into neat furrows. He had scattered seeds, staked the ends of each row and in the way of gardeners, had placed the empty seed packets on the stakes for easy identification.

He was back now, stepping carefully between the rows. Looking for the first green shoots that would herald another year's supply of flowers.

As I watched, he stooped down and gathered a handful of earth in his hand. Stood up and rubbed it thoughtfully back and forth between thumb and fingers.

★ ★ ★

Satisfied as to its workable qualities he tossed it aside, moved over to his wheelbarrow, took a shovel in his hands and started to dig another row.

There was patience in his slow movements. Understanding of the moods of nature in the way he turned the soil. Belief, too, in the cycle of the seasons.

Mists might hang low on the horizon. The sun might not break through this day. But up ahead was the growing season and he intended to be ready for it.

So it is that the scene is set. Blossoming trees, robins on housetops, the black soil drawn into even seed beds, all herald the approach of spring.

★ ★ ★

Soon now I'll look out my window one morning and feel a subtle warmth in the air. I'll hear a meadow lark sing on the edge of the golf links. I'll note that the seeds in the cutting garden have sprouted and are showing green leaves.

Off in the trees I'll recognize the harsh mating call of the cock pheasant that wintered close to our place. Quail will be darting along the edge of our garden.

Then truly spring will have arrived!

New Ottawa-B.C. Clash On Superport Scheme

PRISON OFFICERS pin notice on gate of Salisbury's central prison announcing that Rhodesian government hanged three Africans today after rejecting an order by Queen Elizabeth commuting their sentences to life in prison. The men had been convicted of murder and terrorism.

Bennett Insists On Share

By JOHN MIKA

Premier Bennett has declared virtual war on the federal government's intention to build and operate the Roberts Bank superport entirely through the National Harbors Board.

He said Tuesday night he will proclaim today the B.C. Harbors Board Act which the cabinet had pigeon-holed since its passage by the legislature a year ago.

The cabinet order proclaiming the act was expected to be signed later today by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes.

The government move came so suddenly that there was insufficient notice for obtaining royal assent this morning as Gen. Pearkes was tied up greeting Lord Louis Mountbatten.

In Ottawa, Transport Minister Paul Hellyer was not available for comment but a spokesman from his office said they are still awaiting an official reply from Mr. Bennett in regard to the port development plans.

The legislation would allow the cabinet to appoint a board of three to seven members with power to borrow up to $25 million for development, in conjunction with private enterprise, of port facilities in the lower mainland area.

HAS MONEY

Although it does not specifically deal with Roberts Bank, Mr. Bennett said it would be used to build a provincial superport there and he would advance the board all the money it needed "with three minutes, if necessary" from provincial government funds.

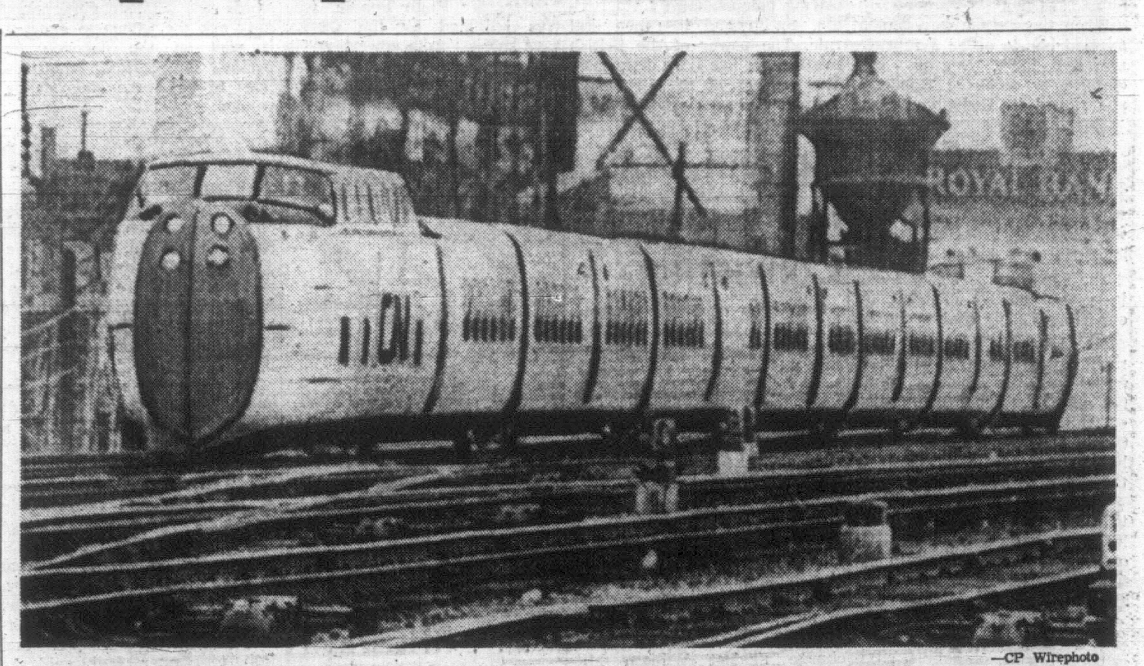

He added he still is leaving open his offer to Ottawa that it share the project on a 50-50 basis.

Mr. Bennett made the announcement to reporters outside the legislature at the start of Tuesday night's sitting, following by a couple of hours a press statement by NHB chairman Howard Mann.

Mr. Mann said in Vancouver the federal government will build and operate the superport and ruled out any possibility that administration would be shared with the provincial government.

He said while the NHB will exercise its exclusive jurisdictional right to build the docks, it

Murder Charges Pondered by U.K.

100 OTHERS TO FOLLOW?

Three Negroes Executed By Rhodesia

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Three convicted African murderers were hanged today and speculation mounted on whether the hangings foreshadowed a mass execution of more than 100 other Negroes under sentence of death in Rhodesia.

The three men—central figures in a new Anglo-Rhodesian constitutional drama — were hanged here shortly after dawn despite reprieves granted by the Queen, still recognized as Rhodesian head-of-state.

The execution of the three Negroes—sentenced to death before Rhodesia unilaterally declared its independence in November, 1965—seemed to open the way for an early declaration of a Rhodesian republic and final break with Britain.

107 IN DEATH ROW

The three men were the first to be executed here since the independence declaration. Their bodies were buried immediately in graves at the prison where they were hanged.

News of the hangings was flashed on local radio programs and spread quickly through the city.

Their hanging turned the spotlight on 107 other Negroes waiting in "death row." These include murderers and guerrillas captured in action against Rhodesian security forces.

The notices announced that Victor Siferani Mlambo, James David Dhlamini and Duly Shadreck were hanged at 9 a.m.

Mlambo and Dhlamini were convicted of killing a white farmer in a gasoline bomb attack and Shadreck was condemned to death for murdering a tribal chief.

POSES THREAT

Their hanging was the strongest challenge yet to the British government by the breakaway, white-ruled colony and plunged the two countries into the biggest head-on clash since Rhodesia declared independence.

The Queen commuted the sentences on the three Negroes Saturday after the Rhodesian Appeal Court refused a stay of execution. Smith and his government previously said they still recognized the Queen while

LONDON (AP)—Britain is urgently considering bringing murder charges against key Rhodesian rulers and the hangman who executed three Negroes reprieved by the Queen, the government disclosed today.

Commonwealth Secretary George Thomson told a tumultuous session of the House of Commons that Britain's attorney-general, Sir Elwyn Jones, "is giving urgent consideration" to all the legal implications of the executions in Salisbury early today.

These implications, he told Labor member Andrew Faulds include proper retribution from those held personally responsible for the executions.

Faulds had asked specifically if the British authorities would seek to punish—even with the death penalty—the "judges, officers of the so-called government of Southern Rhodesia, the warders and the hangman."

Thomson replied: "All those matters are for the attorney-general and, as I have already indicated, he is giving them urgent consideration."

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Ski Association announced today that Nancy Greene of Rossland, B.C., has been cleared of charges that would have endangered her amateur status. (See also Page 12.)

MARCHAND
. . . backs Trudeau

Marchand Quits As Leader Of Quebec Grits

OTTAWA — Manpower Minister Jean Marchand has resigned as leader of the federal Quebec Liberal caucus because of his support of Pierre Trudeau for the leadership of the Liberal party.

There have been rumblings of dissension among other candidates for the Liberal leadership in the cabinet over Mr. Marchand holding the key post of leader of the federal Quebec caucus and at the same time actively and openly supporting Mr. Trudeau.

Supporters of other candidates who are members of the cabinet have made no secret of their annoyance.

Their indignation has been shared by some of the candidates although in the interests of cabinet solidarity they have not spoken out against it.

Mr. Marchand made public today his letter to Prime Minister Pearson. He said, "it is with regret that I request you to relieve me of my functions as leader of the Quebec Liberal caucus.

"I came to this decision as a result of the double announcement of your intended resignation from active political life and holding, in April, of the convention of our party. As I intend to support one of the declared candidates, I think it only fair that I resign from the position to which you named me," he said.

"I would have taken this action; in any case, after the election of the new leader of the party," said Mr. Marchand in his letter.

MP Resigns Seat

OTTAWA (CP) — Maurice Allard, 46, independent member of Parliament for Sherbrooke, has resigned his Commons seat, Speaker Lucien Lamoureux announced in the House today.

Mr. Allard told newsmen his reasons were personal.

NEW TAX MEASURES THURSDAY

Freeze on Hiring Ordered by Sharp

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Sharp announced today he will introduce new tax measures Thursday to raise $390,000,000.

He also promised further spending cuts of $75,000,000, an immediate freeze on civil service hiring and "within a day or two" proposals for a program of restraint on prices and wages.

He said the long-promised program of restraint will be handled by a review board.

Mr. Sharp opened a full-scale economic review in the Commons with a plea for early debate on the tax increases, which will be revealed in detail Thursday.

REPLACES LOST REVENUE

The $390,000,000 in revenues are designed to replace $425,000,000 of revenue lost with defeat Feb. 19 of the government's income tax bill.

On his proposals for restraint, Mr. Sharp said legal controls will not work and persuasion must be attempted.

"We must give priority in our fiscal policy to resisting inflation.

"We must also plan, in consultation with business, with labor, and with all those whose decisions are important in determining prices, a means of greater understanding of the mutual danger of excessive increases in prices and in wages, and other costs by which those in positions of strength can exploit their market power under present circumstances."

Crew Lifted Off Oil Rig By 'Copter

LONDON (AP) — Battling 80-mile-an-hour winds, a British Coast Guard helicopter ran a life-saving taxi service today and lifted all 45 crew members from an oil drilling rig breaking up in the North Sea. No casualties were reported.

The rig, the $6,000,000 Ocean Prince, radioed from 110 miles off England's northeast coast that the gale winds and heavy seas were threatening to sink it and rescue ships could not get near.

Top Czech Officer Defects

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maj.-Gen. Jan Sejna, until recently a top political officer of the Czechoslovakian army, has been admitted to the United States as a refugee, U.S. officials said today.

Sejna, a former official in the defence ministry and a member of parliament, fled Czechoslovakia last week with his 18-year-old son and a 22-year-old girl. Authorities here said they understood the girl is his son's fiancee.

The state department said Sejna, 40, had applied for permanent residence in the U.S., and that the request is under consideration.

The general fled while Czech courts were taking away his parliamentary immunity. Press dispatches from Prague reported he was accused of misappropriating state funds.

Washington authorities said they believed he wound up on the "wrong side" of a political controversy which has unseated top Communist officials in Czechoslovakia.

Chief Justice Moves Out

SALISBURY (CP) — Sir Hugh Beadle, Rhodesia's chief justice, was reported Tuesday to have moved out of Government House after a dispute with Sir Humphrey Gibbs, the governor.

Beadle has lived at the residence since Rhodesia's declaration of independence from Britain.

Informed sources said the two parted Monday after an argument over Beadle's recent High Court judgment in the cases of three Africans sentenced to death for murder.

The argument between the two men apparently centred on judgments which the High Court gave in the appeals by the condemned Africans, whose hanging has plunged Britain and Rhodesia into a new constitutional crisis.

20-Point Decline In Rate of Pound

LONDON (CP) — The pound sterling dropped 20 points today as speculators continued to change their paper money for gold, silver and even copper.

Dealers emphasized, however, that trading on the foreign exchange market was extremely thin and the Bank of England did not support buying of sterling.

The pound opened at $2.4025 in U.S. funds, 10 points below Tuesday's close but quickly soared to $2.4077. Business dried up in the afternoon and the rate trailed off to close at $2.4015, 10 points down on the opening and 20 on the day.

The early strength of sterling was reflected at the fixing in the pound price for gold, which at 292 shillings, 10 pence was 8¼ pence below Tuesday's figure. The dollar parity was unchanged at $35.19⅞.

MINERS' LAST WORDS: 'PULL UP THE CAGE!'

CALUMET, La. (AP)—Twenty-one miners were trapped deep in the caverns of a salt mine today after fire in a shaft put an electric hoist out of action.

The last word heard from the men, about midnight Tuesday, was: "Pull up the cage!" After that communications cables were burned through. The fate of the 21 was unknown.

Emergency units swarmed into the remote marshy area bordering the Gulf of Mexico, where salt mining is a multi-million-dollar industry in large domes that reach like smokestacks into the earth.

Police reported workers were trying to build another shaft to reach the isolated men.

Explosion, Fire At B.C. Refinery

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — An explosion and fire broke out today at the Pacific Petroleum refinery at Taylor, eight miles south of here, injuring one man.

Tom Gannon, 21, was burned in the initial explosion and was taken to hospital where he was reported in good condition.

EXECUTIONS AROUSE AFRICAN LEADERS

'Now Is Time to Crush Regime'

By REUTERS

Bitter criticism from many African Commonwealth countries was heard today in the wake of Rhodesia's execution of three convicted Negro murderers despite the granting of a reprieve by the Queen.

Vice-President Daniel Moi of Kenya said in Nairobi that Rhodesian defiance of the monarchy gave Britain the ideal opportunity of crushing the breakaway Rhodesian regime of Ian Smith.

In Zambia, a banned Rhodesian nationalist party, the Zimbabwe African Peoples Union, said those involved in the execution would be shot on sight when the opportunity arose.

A statement from the party's offices in Lusaka said Rhodesian Chief Justice Sir Hugh Beadle "must understand that he and his henchmen who have ganged up to execute or carry out this series of murders will be shot on sight when the opportunity presents itself."

A ZAPU spokesman added: "They have by this action condemned themselves to death."

In London, the chairman of Britain's United Nations Association called on the British government to bring charges against Rhodesians responsible for the hangings. Humphry Berkeley declared the government should "take steps at once" to charge Clifford Dupont, officer administering the Rhodesian government, Smith and Justice Minister D. W. Lardner Burke and the executioner for the "crime which has been committed."

Elias Chipimo, Zambian high commissioner to Britain, said the executions "would shock civilized world opinion and must be condemned internationally."

Zambia has called in vain for Britain to crush the Rhodesian rebellion by force.

J. N. Karanja, Kenyan high commissioner in London, said it was outrageous that the illegal regime should have defied the Queen.

"Hanging these people is judicial murder," he said.

An Indian high commission spokesman in London said in view of the Queen's reprieve the executions by Rhodesia was tantamount to murder.

NDP Demands Authority To Subpoena Witnesses

By JOHN MIKA

The legislature's public accounts committee will decide Friday morning whether it will subpoena six witnesses to explain government vouchers involving Highways Minister Gaglardi's department.

Formal demands were made by two NDP members for calling of the witnesses on two separate issues.

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) asked for calling of four witnesses to testify about alleged falsification of vouchers in connection with steel girders installed on Mr. Gaglardi's leased ranch.

And David Barrett (NDP—Coquitlam) said he wanted to cross-examine the two pilots of the department's Lear jet about their expense vouchers.

STILL AT HOME

(Mr. Gaglardi still has not returned to the house following an operation on an impacted tooth and jaw cyst more than a week ago. He has stayed in his Kamloops home).

The Social Credit majority refused unanimous consent when Mr. Barrett tried to lay a complaint in the legislature that he was being denied the right to call the pilots by public accounts committee chairman Evan Wolfe (SC—Vancouver Centre).

TO MEET FRIDAY

But after Speaker William Murray held private conversations with both Mr. Barrett and Mr. Wolfe, it was announced the committee would hold its first working meeting Friday to decide whether the rules required that his request be fulfilled.

Mr. Wolfe told reporters that Mr. Dowding's request would be decided at the same meeting.

The 13-member committee is controlled by eight Socreds.

Mr. Wolfe said he did not think Mr. Barrett had sufficient grounds to request subpoena of the two pilots and he was not prepared "to see this develop into a general public inquiry.

"This is a committee matter and we normally deal with vouchers in camera and then hold a windup meeting to report to the house."

Mr. Wolfe said he also wants Mr. Dowding to indicate the questions he would like to put to the witnesses he wants called before a decision is made by the committee.

Mr. Wolfe, in answer to questions by reporters, said he had not made any inquiries into the allgegations that some of the vouchers were fixed.

He said he had not asked for a copy of the affidavit of Fred Renk, a highways department truck driver, that last May 1 he was ordered to deliver five steel girders to the Silver Sage Ranch at Savonna and to charge his time to another job voucher.

(Mr. Gaglardi told reporters, after the affidavit was disclosed by Mr. Dowding to the legisla-

63 KILLED

Big Jetliner Slams Into Mountainside

POINT-A-PITRE (CP) — An airline captain radioed he was landing in 1½ minutes but instead his Air France Boeing 707 jet plunged into a rocky mountainside on the French island of Guadeloupe Tuesday night, killing all 63 persons aboard.

A revised air line list showed 49 passengers and a crew of 14 were aboard. Originally 53 passengers were reported aboard.

Among the passengers were two newspaper men from the popular French magazine Paris-Match—reporter Hubert Herzog, 43, and reporter-photographer Tony Saulnier, 42. They had been on an assignment in South America.

Herzog was a brother of Maurice Herzog, a well-known mountain climber and former minister in the French government.

Mrs. William Zeckendorf Sr., wife of the New York real estate man, was also aboard the plane.

The captain radioed Le Raizet airport control tower as he began his final approach above the rugged volcanic peaks of Basse-Terre Island. But radio contact ended abruptly and officials saw flames explode on the slopes of La Soufriere (Sulphur Mine) Mountain only 12 miles from this capital.

Rescue teams found no survivors when they reached the burnt-out hulk of the giant jet on the mountainside near Le Camp des Anglais (English Camp).

Cause of the crash was not immediately known.

The crash is the worst Air France disaster since all 101 passengers and 10 crew members were killed six years ago when another of the airline's Boeing 707 jets crashed while trying to land during a tornado at this French West Indian possession.

This crash, June 22, 1962, came less than three weeks after another Air France air liner crashed and caught fire while taking off from Paris' Orly Airport, killing 130 persons.

When the crash occurred Tuesday night weather conditions were good and skies clear.

But clouds swirled around the treacherous 5,000-foot volcanic peaks where the plane, en route from Santiago, Chile, to Paris, started its final landing run to Le Raizet Airport.

Guadeloupe lies about 400 miles off the Venezuelan coast and is surrounded by several smaller French territories.

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — France has not yet offered to pay Canada a penny — or any other amount — for the military bases in France which this country was forced to abandon last year, officials said Tuesday.

Two years ago this month France withdrew militarily, though not politically, from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and ordered all NATO troops on her territory to leave.

Canada had to evacuate its bomber base and air transport terminal at Marville and its RCAF headquarters at Metz in northeastern France.

The French government agreed to help pay part of the transfer costs — NATO had to build a new military headquarters in Belgium — and to pay some compensation to Canada and the U.S. for the loss of their military facilities in France.

Canada paid $8,744,000 in capital costs for the Marville base and $2,270,000 for its facilities at Metz. It also paid $8,940,000 for the Grostenquin base in France, which was abandoned in 1964.

Officials said there is no accurate estimate of the costs of moving the RCAF air division to West Germany from France. But they ran into millions of dollars.

In the meantime, France had not offered to make any payments.

'QUAKE VICTIMS PITCH TENTS IN ROME

ROME (Reuters) — Sicilian earthquake victims and disabled war veterans created chaos outside Parliament Tuesday with a demonstration that blocked traffic for miles in the heart of Rome.

About 200 Sicilians pitched tents and made bonfires on the square outside Parliament. The veterans tried to break into the building but were repulsed by police.

The Sicilians demanded more government aid for towns devastated by earthquakes in January. The veterans and invalids demanded better pensions.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 6, 1968—PAGE 17

'MORE USERS AT UVIC THAN MOST SUSPECT'

Marijuana Treated 'Just Like Beer'

By JOHN MIKA

A legislative committee Tuesday was told that classing marijuana users in the same category as drug addicts and sending them to jail is adding to the problem.

Dr. Conrad Schwarz, a University of B.C. psychiatrist, told the committee that marijuana may well be harmful in itself and certainly should be banned by legislation but not as a Criminal Code offence.

David McLean, president, and Garry Curtis, graduate student representative, of the University of Victoria students' council, said there is serious concern and antagonism by students that harsh jail sentences for smoking marijuana are unjust.

●

They pointed out that while an educationprogram apparently has been successful in radically reducing the use of LSD and other psychedelic drugs, the use of marijuana is skyrocketing despite the escalation of jail sentences.

Mr. Curtis said this proved that making marijuana use a crime was no deterrence. He advocated its control through sale in government stores the same as liquor.

But Dr. Schwarz said the B.C. Medical Association had given serious consideration to recommending a Liquor Control Board type of legislation for marijuana but had to reject it as impracticable at the present time because more basic research is needed to establish standards.

In a prepared brief, Dr. Schwarz said "it would be foolish to legalize the use of marijuana in our present stage of ignorance about its chemical composition, dosage range and short or long-term psychological and physical effects."

He said he knew of several cases which had to be treated in mental wards as a result of using marijuana but emphasized that a great deal more research is needed before conclusions can be drawn about the drug.

●

Dr. Schwarz said that other cultures which use marijuana have developed physical abilities to handle it just as western society over a period of centuries has developed a tolerance towards alcohol.

He said that after observing marijuana users at UBC—he estimated there were about 120—he concluded they were not subjectively aware of the fact that they became intoxicated.

Mr. McLean and Mr. Curtis declined to say during the open session how many students at Uvic they believed were using marijuana but added "there are more than most suspect." They were to suggest a figure during the committee's in-camera session.

Both Dr. Schwarz and the students said that marijuana users come from all strata of society.

Mr. McLean added they tended to be the more intelligent and artistic students, but there could be no definite grouping.

●

He said marijuana is treated "just like beer" by students but is much cheaper.

Mr. McLean said students are "in a quandary" as to conflicting medical opinions about the harmfulness or harmlessness of marijuana.

He said they felt it incredible that in view of the questions about the drug, a driver impaired by alcohol who kills a pedestrian frequently is given a shorter jail sentence than a person who is merely caught smoking marijuana and causing no one else any harm.

Mr. McLean also said that the "zeal" of RCMP in raiding students' quarters to find marijuana has produced a horrified recoil.

"There were two cases which just made me sick and I can no longer have any respect for the Mounties," he said.

Mr. McLean said in one case, RCMP drug squad members raided a student's apartment by breaking the door in half, creating a chaos among his possessions and simply left after finding nothing.

"They didn't even consider fixing the door," he said. "They didn't even consider cleaning up the room."

He said in the second case, he spotted what he described as an RCMP undercover agent infiltrating the campus as a supposed student who attempted to gain my confidence through treachery, and I use the term advisedly.

"I don't see that this is going to gain respect for the RCMP. This sort of thing is part of the breakdown in respect for law enforcement."

He said his chief concern now is to keep marijuana users away from the RCMP because a jail sentence could ruin completely the life of a young person "who is no more a criminal than you are."

The central question in student minds is whether society should send people to jail "under a law that is itself questionable."

Dr. Schwarz said he had an opposite impression of the RCMP.

●

"The RCMP in Vancouver and the city police have taken more people to emergency ward in hospital (after drug use) than they have taken to jail," he said.

But he agreed that making marijuana a Criminal Code offence is "inappropriate" and added few persons realized that simple possession could bring a sentence of two years, trafficking—which includes giving someone else a marijuana cigarette for nothing—could bring a jail sentence between two and seven years.

HEARING CLOSED TO PROTECT WITNESS

A special legislative committee studying drug-taking in British Columbia went into secret session Tuesday night after one member warned that a young prisoner who had volunteered to give evidence might be in danger from other prison inmates.

A 23-year-old university student, serving 18 months for trafficking in marijuana, had volunteered to give the committee information on how drugs reach British Columbia, the number and type of people using them and the types of drugs in use.

The committee decided to close its meeting after Dave Barrett (NDP—Coquitlam) suggested the prisoner might be in danger from other prisoners.

"His life could be made pretty miserable," he said.

Firm Negligent In Man's Death Inquest Decides

B.C. Forest Products Ltd. was negligent in the sawdust truck death of 52-year-old Arthur Cathers a coroner's jury ruled Tuesday.

The body of the Point Ellice mill clean-up man was found when a sawdust truck was emptied in the company's Crofton mill early Jan. 30.

The truck had taken on the load about 10:30 p.m. Jan. 29. Cathers was working at the time, and one of his duties was to help load the truck.

The jury ruled factors in Cather's death were unsafe working conditions, laxity of Workmen's Compensation Board regulations, and operation of company machinery by other than qualified company personnel.

Reporting the verdict, the jury foreman said "the jury finds B.C. Forest Products negligent in the application of safety regulations."

The jury recommended the controls of the conveyor which loads the trucks "should be locked out and tagged out at all times except when in use by a designated employee."

Earlier, the inquest heard mill superintendent Donald Marshall testify a safety line had been installed in the sawdust bunker shortly after Cather's death.

He also said company policy had been changed to prohibit non-employees from operating the machinery.

Tugs Still Battling To Hook Up

Two Victoria tugs were battling a southeast gale today in a desperate effort to save a smouldering, sinking tanker 160 miles off the Washington coast.

The tugs Sudbury II and Island Monarch, both owned by Island Tug and Barge, were fighting 60-mile-an-hour winds and high seas in an effort to put a towline on the 23,000-ton Liberian oil tanker Mandoil II.

The Mandoil was holed and set afire in collision with a Japanese freighter in dense fog last Wednesday.

GARBLED

"Radio communication with the two tugs has been garbled by bad weather," said Gordon Elworthy of Island Tug and Barge. "The static is very bad and we've no word on progress."

"The tanker is still drifting towards the Washington coast at about 1½ knots," Mr. Elworthy said, "and we've been unable to put a crew back aboard her."

During Tuesday's operations, fierce gales snapped a towline connecting the smouldering 700-foot tanker with the Sudbury II.

This morning a third tug, Island Sovereign, also owned by Island Tug and Barge, left Victoria to assist in the salvage operation.

Damage to the tanker Mandoil consisted of a 100-foot gash from bow to bridge, four ruptured oil tanks, buckled and scarred steel plates and gutted superstructure and bridge.

Eleven of the Mandoil's 43 crew are reported missing and presumed dead. Four men jumped overboard when the supertanker burst into flames.

Premier Shows Sympathy

A chance meeting and 30-minute discussion with Premier Bennett Tuesday night failed to produce more than sympathy for Victoria's protesting mothers on welfare.

A meeting of the up-in-arms mothers decided earlier to launch a series of "sit-ins" at the legislature starting next Tuesday.

The women want an arbitration board to revise rates which now allow them $25 a month to feed and care for a child.

Reg Clarkson, executive secretary of the organization of welfare recipients, said he met the premier by chance Tuesday night and had "a long friendly talk" in the coffee shop of the Legislative Buildings.

'FRIENDLY, FRANK'

Mr. Clarkson described it as "friendly frank duscussion but the social welfare problem was only one of many subjects we discussed.

"He was very interested in what we were doing and what our thinking was but he certainly was non-committal as far as the government's policy was concerned."

Mr. Clarkson, a social worker, said the Low Income group was anxous to meet Welfare Minister Dan Campbell before the sit-ins start.

MEET ANYTIME

"We want to be sure that he understands our position and that the situation is not 'window-dressing,' as he calls it, but a fight for civil rights.

"We'll offer to meet with him almost anytime."

About 120 turned out Tuesday night, including Liberal MLA Alan Macfarlane, at a public meeting to duscuss the welfare level issue.

Mr. Clarkson said the willingness of the mothers on welfare, numbering about 50, to sacrifice themselves for their children was "moving."

MUST FIGHT

"They said they don't want to commit civil disobedience but encouraged each other by reminding themselves that no matter what happened, they had to fight for their children."

The protesting mothers intend sitting in the public gallery of the legislature and not leaving when asked.

Mr. Clarkson said the welfare minister was quite right when he said community involvement is required to meet welfare problems.

"But Mr. Campbell is ignorant and cruel to humilate and degrade these mothers who are receiving $100 to $150 a month under what is required for minimum decent living when he tells them they don't know how to manage their money."

No New Leads In Search For Aircraft

An air-sea search for four persons and their missing aircraft was under way today despite some hindrance from the weather.

An Air-Sea Rescue spokesman in Vancouver said planes were in the air, but no new leads to the missing float plane had turned up.

Jerry Brock, of J. S. Brock Trucking, Port Alberni, was flying the Cessna light aircraft from his home at Kalamalka Lake, near Vernon, to Port Alberni. With him were his wife, son and a friend's son.

They left the Okanagan Friday afrernoon and were expected at Port Alberni over the weekend.

Parts of Vancouver Island and the lower mainland have been searched from the air, and a ground party went by helicopter up Mr. Arrowsmith to check out a false lead Tuesday.

Unions Ask Cutback In Board's Authority

Major Changes To Ease Flow Of Peak Traffic

Major traffic control regulations will be introduced in Victoria this month if city council accepts a recommendation from the city's special traffic committee.

Douglas and Government Streets come in for the biggest share of the changes designed to create a smoother traffic flow during peak hours.

If council accepts the changes proposed by the special committee all parking on the east side of Douglas between Humboldt and Queens will be banned between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m.

MERCHANTS APPROVE

A similar recommendation in the past has resulted in protests from merchants but this time the store owners involved have given their approval to the plan.

The changes on Government will see a ban on left turns between Courtney and Fisgard Streets. The no left turn ban will also be in effect between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m.

Only one street escapes the no left turn ban. The committee decided to permit left turns on Johnson Street during the 4 to 6 period.

APPROVAL EXPECTED

City council will receive the recommendations on Thursday, March 14, and is expected to approve.

The committee will also recommend that signs banning parking or left turns at certain times of the day be made uniform.

At present some bans are in effect from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m.

The committee will suggest that traffic control at peak hours should be between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. to avoid confusion.

Traffic engineer Dave Campbell told the committee that Douglas and Government Street regulations were essential to enable downtown traffic to clear the main arteries without serious delays.

LORD LOUIS HERE TO BOOST FUND

One of the world's most decorated men arrived in Victoria today to boost the campaign for the handicapped children's fund.

Earl Louis Mountbatten of Burma was invited to turn the sod of the proposed $650,000 crippled children's clinic on the grounds of the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

The ceremony took place at 2:30 this afternoon.

"I think this is a wonderful project," he said on his arrival. "The citizens of Victoria deserve credit for their efforts on the behalf of handicapped children."

The British Admiral of the Fleet was invited to Victoria by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes after attending in Vancouver a Variety Club International $100-a-plate charity dinner.

On his visit to Victoria he is accompanied by Vice-Admiral Sir Ronald Brockman who was his right hand man in the Second World War. Others in the party include Ralph Pries of Philadelphia, president of the Variety Club, and James Carreras, London, England, chairman of the executive board.

Earl Montbatten had lunch in the Union Club prior to the sod-turning ceremony.

The Variety Club of which the Earl is a gold card-holder raised $15 million last year towards handicapped children's projects.

Lord Mountbatten said his fondest wish is to see Russia become a member of Variety Clubs International.

"There is nothing I would like better than a Russian tent chapter. After all the Russians have the world's best circuses and would make a great contribution," he said.

'Tighter Bill To Ensure Fair Deal'

A general tightening up of the new workmen's compensation bill was urged today by the British Columbia Federation of Labour in a brief to the Legislature's standing committee on labor.

A second brief, by the International Woodworkers of America, supported the federation's call for an independent review board and a $500 penalty for employers who discourage reporting of accidents.

Labor federation spokesmen said the Workmen's Compensation Board must have its authority reduced through a tighter bill to ensure a fair deal for workers.

Among the recommendations of the federation are:

- Broadening the definition of "accident" to "injury or disability resulting out of employment;"
- Removal of time limits in establishing what injuries qualify for compensation;
- Tieing of compensation benefits to general industry wage levels rather than the consumer price index;
- Computation of earnings to allow for fringe benefits.

END SECRECY

The brief asked for an independent review board to hear appeals from workers and an end to secrecy which prevents workers from obtaining information on their claims files from the board.

The federation brief said it is "absolutely necessary" that employers discouraging re-

Ask The Times

Q. Does the educational department offer any commercial correspondence courses to adults; if so, which section? —A.T.

A. The department of education offers several such courses. Write J. R. Hind, director, secondary school correspondence division, department of education, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, for booklet and application forms.

Q. Could you please tell me if and where there is a vintage car club in Victoria? —W.M.C.

A. The Vintage Car Club of Victoria has a mailing address at 1252 Wharf Street in the city.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Burglar Given Another Year

A man already serving a jail term for three counts of breaking and entering was sentenced in Sooke court Tuesday to one year for a fourth count.

Ronald Letcher, 19, pleaded guilty to breaking into Gibson's Store at Jordan River Feb. 21 and stealing $80 worth of goods.

March 1 he was sentenced in Victoria court to two years less a day for three earlier break-ins.

FISGARD NEXT TARGET IN SPRUCE-UP DRIVE

Victoria will move into the last phase of its downtown clean-up paint-up campaign on March 27.

Main target for the drive will be Fisgard Street and the general area of Chinatown.

Property owners in the area will be invited to a city-sponsored luncheon on Wednesday, March 27, in the McPherson Theatre lounge.

Following the luncheon the property owners or building managers will be shown photographs of their property as it looks today and how it could look if the advice of the city's color consultant is followed.

The advice on color schemes and the type of paint to use to best advantage is provided free by the city.

The final design and the exterior painting firm called to do the actual paint-up is left to the individual owner.

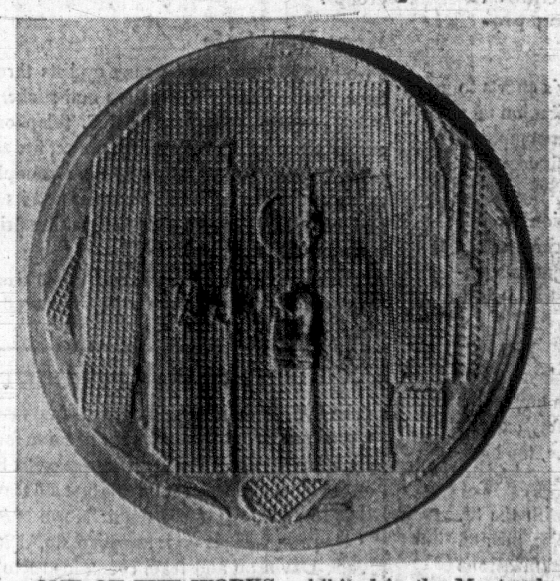

Artists Chosen for Survey 68

Works by three Victoria artists have been chosen for Survey 68, an exhibition at the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts.

Maxwell Bates, Don Harvey and Pat Martin Bates with Vancouver artists Jack Shadbolt, Gordon Smith, Bodo Pfeifer, Michael Morris, Brian Fisher, Claude Breeze and Ian Baxter, will be represented at the showing in Montreal from March 8 to April 7.

Survey, 68, an invitational showcase for what may be Canada's most significant developments in contemporary art, consists of more than 300 works by 113 artists from across the country.

The exhibition was organized by the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts on the recommendations of museum art school directors across Canada. A jury will determine winners of prizes and awards.

ONE OF THE WORKS exhibited in the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts spring exhibition Survey 68 is a relief etching "Mandala For Love Encircled" by local artist Pat Martin Bates.

High Gas Prices Blamed On 'Too Many Stations'

Gasoline prices would be lower if there were fewer service stations, an economist told a legislative committee this morning.

Prof. A. Milton Moore of the University of B.C. said too much money is siphoned off from oil company revenues propping up uneconomic service stations operated by lease.

He said the stations can't pay their way because there are too many of them competing for the motorists dollar.

"The pump prices of gasoline are higher than they need be mainly because there are too many service stations," he told a special committee of MLAs studying the situation.
